

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

P R E F A C E.

THE period of the Commonwealth, or, more properly speaking, the Inter-regnum, is an exceptional interlude in the long duration of monarchical rule in England, and as the period itself is exceptional, so are its records. During the civil war, and more especially after the death of Charles I., the whole routine of regal government was swept away—Privy Council, Exchequer and Admiralty departments, Star Chamber, Court of Wards, Court of Requests, Prerogative Court, Lord Chancellor, Treasurer and Chancellor of the Exchequer, Secretaries of State, &c.; and in place thereof, the whole executive government was represented by one single word—COMMITTEE. In the anxious avoidance of individual responsibility, no one man, apart from the army and navy, accepted office other than membership in committees. Of these the name is legion. The main governing power, the Council of State, was virtually, though not nominally, a committee, but this will be treated of hereafter. The other Committees, the order books of which are still in existence in the Record Office, are—

1. Committee for Advance of Money. This Committee was instituted in 1642 and lasted to 1655; its object being to find means, by voluntary or compulsory assessments, or by special assessments on the estates of delinquents, and advances thereon, to obtain money for the war against the King. Connected with this was a small committee for mitigation of the twentieth part assessment, which sat from 1643 to 1647.

2. Sequestration Committee centralized in London, but with Parliamentary Committees appointed by Parliament in each county also, the object of which was to seize and sequester the estates of delinquents, i.e. those who took the royalist side in the civil war, and of Papists or Recusants. The rules of this Committee were that, on an information of delinquency, if considered to be well grounded, the estate was seized and secured, pending investigation. If the accusation was proved to the satisfaction of the Committee, as in nine cases out of ten it was, the delinquent was deprived of his whole estate; but one-fifth was allowed for maintenance of his wife and children. One-fifth of the clear proceeds of an estate was also allowed to the informer against the delinquent. Moreover one half, or sometimes the whole proceeds of any delinquent's estate was frequently assigned to an officer in the army, or other public servant, who could not obtain payment of the arrears of salary due to him, provided the said estate were discovered by him. One-third of an estate sequestered for recusancy only was allowed to the Recusant.

The working of the County Committees was very unsatisfactory. In parts of the kingdom where the royalist interest was strong, it was almost impossible to secure men of character or position to sit as sequestrators, though they had 1s. in the pound on all the money brought in by their means. On the other hand, where parliamentary interest prevailed, the delinquents were a helpless prey to their enemies. Informers were rife, under the lure of self-interest, and estates were sequestered, and let at mere nominal rentals, to the committee-men or their friends, whilst the fifths due to the delinquent were thus reduced to a mere nothing, and often ill paid, or altogether withheld. Yet, though the losses of the delinquents were enormous, such was the malversation of the committees, that the profits to the State were very small in comparison.

At length a fresh modus operandi was adopted, and this gave rise to a new and very important committee, which in a few years absorbed the Sequestration Committee, viz. :

3. Committee for Compounding, from 1644 to 1657. Its object was to receive from delinquents themselves, either such against whom no information had been made, or such as were already under sequestration,—

- (1.) A confession of their delinquency :
- (2.) A pledge of adherence to the present government :
- (3.) A full account on oath of their possessions, real and personal :

Whereupon a legal report was made, and they were admitted to compound in proportions, according to their guilt; half the estate was exacted from any delinquent member of Parliament; one-sixth from those who had taken part either in the former or latter war; two-sixths or one-third from those who had been active in both wars, &c. Those who were in cities that surrendered on articles of war compounded according to the tenor of those articles.

Small as these proportions seem, in comparison to the previous forfeiture of four-fifths of the entire estates, yet being paid not through county committees, but direct into the treasury at Goldsmiths' Hall, and voluntarily, without the delay of proving the delinquency, the result was far more speedy and productive payments than those derived from sequestration. The number of compounders may be gathered from the fact that the original orders and papers relating to them fill more than 250 volumes, chiefly large folios of upwards of 1,000 pages each.

A treasurer's summary, compiled in August 1652, but with a few later additions [Vol. G. 43], gives a list, alphabetical as to the first letter only, of the names of and of those who remained abroad; these were not allowed to compound, but their entire estates were seized by the sequestrators.

4. Committee for Plundered Ministers, 1645–1653, the object of which was to augment, from the revenues of rectories, tithes, &c., estates of sequestered delinquents, the incomes of the neighbouring ministry, but always with the condition of their taking an oath of fidelity to the present government.

5. Committee of Indemnity, 1649–1656. Its object was to indemnify those persons who had seized horses or goods, for the service of Parliament, damaged lands or crops, taken free quarter, &c., against the legal consequences of their proceedings; and it had the power to suspend or supersede legal decisions, wherever it could be proved that the offence in question was committed in the service of the Parliament. It could also compel landlords to grant allowances for free quarters from the tenants' rent, and to deduct from the rent the amount paid for parliamentary assessments,—a proceeding which greatly facilitated the collecting of assessments. It protected the purchasers or lessees of sequestered estates against the claims of the original proprietors; and it guaranteed apprentices, who had taken arms on the parliamentary side, against suits for non-fulfilment of indentures.

6. Committee of Trustees for Sale of Fee-farm or Crown lands, 1650–1660, the title of which sufficiently explains its object.

There were many other committees of which no order books are extant, but only papers more or less numerous, such as:—

Army Committee;

Mint Committee;

Revenue Committee;

Committee for receiving the Accounts of the kingdom ; Committee for removing obstructions in the sale of delinquents' lands ;

Committee for Whitehall ;

Committee for relief upon articles of war, i.e., for relief of those who were denied the privileges accorded by the articles of war on which they surrendered, &c., &c.

It will be easily seen that the records of many of these committees must be in their nature half political, half personal. They are moreover so numerous that, had the usual chronological sequence of State Paper Calendars been adhered to, they would, by their bulk, have well nigh swamped the purely historical portion of the Calendar.
It has therefore been decided to print first the general
Calendar ; and then, as supplementary volumes, the proceedings of the several committees, abstracted, and where practicable, tabulated, in order to economise space, and to enable searchers easily to grasp and follow out the details of individual cases. A further history of these various committees is therefore reserved to the prefaces of the volumes in which their papers will be calendared.

The present volume mainly consists of the proceedings of the governing body, the Council of State, and commences from the date of the death of Charles I. ; several of the Committee Calendars will begin from an earlier date.

Immediately upon the execution of the King followed the sweeping away of the House of Lords. The so-called Parliament, consisting after Pride's purge, on 6 Dec. 1648, of but 80 members,—conscious of its numerical weakness, conscious too of the limited approval given to its proceedings in the country,—felt the need of some power in the State, which should combine into a compact body such adherents of the Parliamentary party as were to be found among the nobility and upper classes, the more intelligent and active of the army, and the lawyers. They therefore deputed five of their members to elect 40 men to form a Council of State. From these 40, Parliament chose 36, to whom were added the five electors, viz., Lisle, Holland, Robinson, Scott, and Ludlow, completing the number to 41.

The report from the committee upon the instructions to be given to the Council of State, which was virtually a draft of the Act for its constitution, was read in Parliament on 13 Feb. 1649, and 14 of the 16 instructions were passed.

The selection of members took place on 14 Feb.; two additions were made, and the quorum was settled at 9 members, on the 16th, when the question of the election of a president was discussed, and negatived by 22 votes against 16; and the two last instructions, one of which was for an immediate sitting, were passed on the 17th.

The records of the Council are contained in order books, which, either in the draft or fair copy, exist in almost unbroken sequence; in letter books, of which only six remain; and in books of warrants, recognizances, passes, &c. The order books are calendared entire, except—

- (1.) Those portions belonging to the Irish, Colonial, or Foreign Calendars.
- (2.) Orders for warrants or letters, which exist as letters or warrants, and are calendared as such.

For brevity's sake the more formal entries are thrown into tables at the end of the volume.

The work set before the Council was definitely propounded by Parliament (see p. 6), but on all vexed questions, and on all questions involving a responsibility which both bodies were alike anxious to throw upon each other, it is amusing to note the constant play of reference and counter-reference from one to the other (pp. 37, 39, 60, 153, &c.).

The tables placed at the end of this preface present an analysis of the sittings of the Council during the year, sometimes twice in the day, with the daily and monthly attendances of the members. Of the 319 sittings, the members attended on an average 106·14 (about one third). The average number present at each meeting was 13·63 out of the 41 members, the quorum being 9. Their first meeting was on 17 Feb. 1648-9, and their last on 15 Feb. 1649-50, when their power expired.

Most of the members of the Council of State being also members of the Commons, the Council sat as little as possible during the sittings of the House, but were accustomed to meet at 7 or 8 a.m. for business, and then to adjourn to the House. They sat more frequently than did the Parliament. The table above referred to will show 232 sittings only of Parliament during its period, whilst the Council of State sat 319 times.

The power possessed by this Council in Parliament may be best estimated by a few statistical facts. The attendance of members of Parliament, not being recorded in the Commons' journals, can only be estimated by the numbers of voters upon a division. During the three months preceding Pride's purge in Dec. 1648, the average attendance, as taken from a calculation based on 32 divisions, was 104 members; the largest number recorded present at any sitting being 238. During the three subsequent months, there were only 13 divisions; they give an average attendance of 57; the largest recorded number present is 78, the smallest 38.

Now as the Council of State, consisting of 41 members, was, with very few exceptions, chosen from these remaining members of Parliament,¹ it will at once be seen that, when they were unanimous and attended in force, they would command a working majority in the House. Therefore their perpetual references to Parliament really mean, not an appeal to an independent governing power, but an appeal from themselves, as a newly-constituted power, to themselves, with some additions, but bearing together the august name of Parliament.

If Parliament voted as the Council of State pleased, they had the shelter of a name. If by any chance it did not, as in the case of the election of a president of the Council, they could take an early opportunity of having the point in question re-transferred to the Council of State, and settling it their own way.

The Council of State first met at Derby House—the place of meeting of the Committee for both kingdoms, or Derby House Committee, which they superseded—but towards the end of May, they removed to Whitehall.

It is curious to note the rivalry between the parties who had been the foremost movers in the King's execution, to take possession of his abode, and of his property. Before his death, Whitehall was in the hands of the army officers. In May, however, when the Council removed its sittings thither, it was proposed that its members should have private apartments also assigned them for residence, and they voted to their own use, not only the palace, but 10,000*l.* worth of the late King's furniture tapestry, and other goods, to fit it for their reception (pp. 295, 383).

The furniture reserved for them consisted of hangings, carpets, chairs, stools, beds, curtains, chandeliers, fire-irons, &c., but an inventory of "other the late King's" goods, sent to the keeper of Whitehall to be reserved for "Council," is not extant (pp. 295, 369, 565). They were provided with fuel at the expense of the State (p. 259).

Officers were appointed to keep the privy lodgings, and also the chapel (p. 373); two chaplains, salaried of course by the State, preached every Sunday morning, and other persons were appointed to preach in the afternoons (p. 447).

The members to whom lodgings were specially assigned were the two Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal, Whitelock and Lisle (pp. 239, 374); Colonels Valentine Wauton, and Hutchinson,—the rooms of the former draped with six pieces of royal tapestry, two being the stories of Elijah and Hercules (p. 552)—; the serjeant-at-arms, Edward Dendy (p. 100), the two chaplains, Goodwin and Sterry (p. 373), and John Milton, the foreign secretary (pp. 388, 398); but the orders were general for any member of the Council who wished it to have lodgings in Whitehall. That many of them did desire rooms is evident from the repeated and urgent orders to the officers of the army and others, to remove from the palace.

The Council found it more easy, however, to pass orders than to obtain their execution, when their rivals were the officers of that army by whose fiat only they existed; therefore we find letter after letter, warrant after warrant, order after order, for the clearing of Whitehall of all its occupants except the soldiers on guard (pp. 83, 188, 201, 332, 533, 541). In August, a fresh and still more urgent order was issued to Lord General Fairfax, complaining that the presence of the army officers and others in Whitehall prevents the members of the Council of State from laying in their winter stores of fuel, and urging their immediate removal (p. 284); but though warrants were issued to this effect, the marshal-general treated them with "such contempt as is not comely to bear," and refused compliance (p. 311). A committee of three members was next appointed for clearing Whitehall (pp. 311, 332), afterwards increased to six (p. 362).

When the palace was at length cleared sufficiently for the official sittings of the Council, the next difficulty was to guard it. A power founded on military usurpation could only exist by military protection.

As early as March 1649, a committee was appointed to consider of the safe sitting of Parliament and Council, when the army was withdrawn to Ireland; (p. 53) and later on, the Lord general was cautioned that, whatever occasion might arise for the service of the army, one regiment of foot and one of horse were always to be left in town, for the safety of the Council. Several appeals were made to Parliament (p. 491), to the authorities of London, and to the Army Committee, to provide, not only for their own safety, but for that of the Parliament and Council, and especially to see that the soldiers on guard were duly and sufficiently paid, lest discontent should arise and lead to evils which they might not have the power to remove (pp. 139, 231, 234, 272, 287, 292). On one occasion, the city authorities were required to produce 1,200*l.* before noon the next day, and urged to continue diligently the assessment of 300*l.* a week laid on the city for the army (p. 453).

The neglect of the officers on duty to superintend personally the Council guard was complained of, and they were required to see that no spies nor clamorous women came near, and that no affront was offered to any member of the House or Council (p. 262). No one was allowed, upon any pretence whatever, to loiter in the Council-room lobby, and the doors leading into it were kept locked, and only opened to the members (p. 501), whilst 20 fully armed men were kept in constant attendance in the guard chamber (pp. 501, 503). At one time, an order was given for a thorough search of a house adjoining the Parliament house (p. 489). All gates and doors leading to Whitehall Gardens were kept locked, and keys only allowed to members of Council, or, with close restrictions, to two or three others. The water-gate was closed up, the key to be given to the sentry, and the gate only opened for members of the Council (p. 414). Even the keys of gates and doors leading into St. James' Park, upon which Whitehall abutted, were ordered to be delivered to Colonel Pride, and the doors to be nailed up (pp. 295, 296, 545), whilst St. James' tennis court was given up to the soldiers under him, who guarded alike Parliament and Council (p. 542), and had a guard-house erected for their accommodation in the tilt-yard of Whitehall (p. 551).

The proximity of other persons still lingering in Whitehall was considered so objectionable that the serjeant-at-arms was ordered to give in a list of their names, pending their entire dismissal (p. 182).

Of the members of the Council of State, nine were noblemen; four earls, one viscount, four barons. The only occasion when a stranger is recorded as present at the sittings, was on 8th March, when Lieut.-General Hammond, of notoriety from his conduct to the late King, was allowed to be present.

The Earl of Pembroke accepted a seat in the House of Commons, but was a rare attender at the Council of State; his name occurs several times upon committees to decide on the disposal of the more rare and valuable of the late King's goods. He died in Jan. 1650,¹ and the members of the Council of State were ordered to attend his funeral two miles out of London (p. 505).

The Earl of Mulgrave, though nominated, never sat in the Council, and seems to have retired to private life. He was omitted from the Council the following year.

The Earl of Salisbury, though the scion of a family which owed its elevation to Elizabeth and James I., took the Parliamentary side, but was not a frequent attendant at Council. He also became a member of Parliament, and took the engagement of fidelity to the present government.

Philip Sydney, Viscount Lisle, eldest son of the Earl of Leicester, was son-in-law of William Earl of Salisbury, and attended Council 116 times, whilst the Earl was present 70 times.

William Lord Grey of Wark, though placed upon the Council of State, was only present at one sitting, declined signing what only came from one House, and was therefore dropped from the second Council of State.

Thomas, Lord Grey of Groby, was a baron by courtesy, being the eldest son of the Earl of Stamford, but dying before his father, he never succeeded to the peerage.

Basil, Earl of Denbigh, was an active member of the Council, although his father had been a warm partizan of Charles I., and died, in 1643, from wounds received in a skirmish near Birmingham; but he was not continued upon the second Council. The reason for his expulsion will be found in papers of 19 Dec. (pp. 446-9), showing him in his true character of a cowardly trimmer, rather than a conscientious partizan on either side.

times only at the Council, but he was much employed in quelling revolutionary movements.

The president chosen by the Council of State, contrary to the vote of Parliament that there should not be a president, was Bradshaw, who presided at the late King's trial. He seems to have made the possession of this office a sine quâ non of his holding place in the Council, for he never attended till after 10 March, the day of his election, and from that time, was only twice absent and twice late during the 11 months of its sittings.

The quorum was nine, but several instances will be found in the tables when business was transacted with a smaller number present at the opening; e.g. six only were present on 24 Dec.; seven on 20 Oct. and 29 Jan.; eight on 26 Feb., 8 March, 2 May, 23 July, 7 Dec., and 9 Jan.

The officers of the Council of State were,— Gualter Frost, sen., secretary, salary 40s. a day and 2s. 6d. a day for a servant (pp. 173, 221).

Gualter Frost, jun., assistant secretary, salary 20s. a day (p. 221).

John Milton, secretary for foreign tongues, salary about 300*l.* a year.

Edward Dendy, serjeant-at-arms, salary 20s. a day, with eight officers, executing the warrants of Council under him, when required, at 3s. 4d. a day each, and 4d. a mile riding charges (pp. 275).

Messrs. Goodwin and Sterry, chaplains, 200*l.* a year each salary (p. 374).

Four clerks, 26s. 8d. a day among them (p. 221).

Twelve messengers at 5s. a day, and 6d. a mile riding charges (p. 173).

Mr. Scott, one of the councillors, had 800*l.* a year for carrying on the intelligence department (p. 227).

Mr. Hall had a salary of 100*l.*, with assurance of further care, for answering pamphlets against the commonwealth (p. 139).

Mr. Randolph had 80*l.* a year for his charge of the State paper office (p. 233).

Rich. Nutt, master of the Commonwealth barge, had the same salary as had been allowed to the keeper of the King's barge, viz., 60*l.* a year; his assistant Thos. Washborne 20*l.* (pp. 451, 481); and the watermen 20*s.* a quarter each (p. 491).

Rich. Scutt, keeper of Whitehall, had 16*s.* a day for himself and five servants (p. 474), and two porters had 30*l.* a year each (p. 487).

The management of the Navy was a business of grave concern, the more so because a portion of the fleet still remained faithful to the royal cause, and under the charge of Prince Rupert, was cruising first on the coasts of Ireland, then about Spain and Portugal, intercepting merchant vessels, and seriously interfering with trade. The office of Lord Admiral was, by request of the Council of State, taken away from the Earl of Warwick, and conferred upon the said Council (p. 9). As naval affairs, however, could not be guided by unpractised hands, a committee was appointed, consisting of Sir Hen. Vane, jun., former treasurer of the navy, Col. Valentine Wauton, appointed 23 Feb. 1649, and Aldermen Wilson and Pennington, and Luke Robinson, 12 March; to these were afterwards added, on 26 March, Col. Jones and Thos. Scott; and on 6 June, Cols. Purefoy and Stapley. Towards the close of the year, occur the names of Dennis Bond, Sir John Danvers, Sir Wm. Masham, and Col. Alex. Popham, but their formal appointment is not recorded.

The Admiralty Committee had their own clerk, Rob. Coytmor, at a salary of 100*l.* a year, and 50*l.* a year extra, on condition that neither he nor his clerk should receive fees (p. 443). They had also a separate messenger, Rich. Blackden, salary 30%. a year, and a doorkeeper, Rob. Tutnell, salary 20%. (p. 434).

There is no table of attendances of the Admiralty Committee given, but a proximate idea of the activity of the respective members may be found, from the number of times during the year in which their signatures to letters occur. These are respectively,—

Those members marked with an asterisk were continued the following year with several additions; the others were dropped, but Bond and Scott were again placed on the committee during the course of the year 1650.

It must not be supposed, however, that this table affords any clue to the number of the actual attendances, because it repeatedly happens that sittings were held when no signature occurs; that several letters were signed on the same day; or that letters were written by Coytmor, the secretary, on behalf of the Committee, and therefore not signed by them at all. The most active member, it will be seen, was Sir Hen. Vane, jun., navy treasurer, to whose skill and experience much of the success of naval affairs, at this period, may be attributed.

The title of this committee was Committee for the Affairs of the Admiralty and Navy, and it was simply a Committee of the Council of State. It must not be confounded with the Navy Committee, which was previously existing. The names of the following members appear as signing the Navy Committee's orders. Those to which asterisks are prefixed were also members of the Council of State:—

Both these committees must again be distinguished from the Committee of Merchants for regulating the appointment of officers of the Navy and Customs, often alluded to as the Committee of Regulators.

In addition to these three committees, there were three commissioners, generals, or admirals at sea, viz., Cols. Popham, Deane, and Blake, who practically, by their advice, regulated the distribution and movements of the ships, singly or in squadrons. Also the Navy Commissioners, officers distributed in the principal ports, whose business was to attend to the details of building, repairing, cleaning, and victualling the ships; and to the more difficult task of providing them with men. Parliamentary service was not popular with the mariners, the less so that their chief task was to hunt out the "revolted ships;" and in spite of numerous Acts passed for their encouragement, disaffection and mutiny were frequent amongst them, and the press system was constantly needed, to supply the ships with mariners.¹

The management of the Ordnance was vested in a committee of the Council of State; so also was that of the Mint, and that of the war in Ireland.

These, with the Committees for Private examinations, Foreign negotiations, and the Admiralty Committee, were permanent standing committees; but any occasional business that transpired was thrown into committee, and a reference to the Index, under the article Council of State, Committees of, will show how numerous and various were the points brought before this governing power for regulation.

Whilst abolishing the form of monarchical government, the Parliament and the Council of State were by no means prepared to accept the simplicity of republican institutions. They laid down the principle that the governing body which represented the people,—as by a legal fiction they themselves were supposed to do,—was entitled to all the honour, both from their own countrymen and from foreign powers, that had formerly been paid to the sovereign.

On the occasion of an invitation to dinner in the Grocers' Hall, given by the city of London to the Parliament and the Council of State, they were very anxious for the due observance of etiquette. A committee was appointed to confer with the city officers upon it (p. 172); it was decided that, after sermon at Christchurch, the Speaker and members should be received at the gate leading to the hall, by the Lord Mayor, aldermen, and members of Common council, the city sword delivered to the Speaker, and returned by him, and then carried before him in state to the hall. At the feast,—following, or rather going beyond, regal fashion,—no one was allowed to dine with the Parliament and Council; they had a table to themselves, the Lord Mayor and aldermen another, the judges another, and the officers of the army a fourth. At the first table, the post of honour was given to Lenthall, the Speaker; at his right was Lord General Fairfax, at his left Bradshaw, President of the Council of State; then the two commissioners of the Great Seal, Lisle and Whitelock, and then Lieut.-General Cromwell,—Fairfax and Cromwell holding a place at the first table, in right of their membership in the Council of State.

That no point of honour might be lacking, the Speaker was empowered to confer the honour of knighthood upon the present Lord Mayor, Thos. Andrews, and on Pennington and Atkins, former lord mayors (pp. 174, 175), but they do not seem to have assumed the title of Sir. A mace was also ordered for the Council of State, gilded like that of Parliament (p. 221).

For conducting their intercourse with other powers, they secured the services of Sir Oliver Fleming, former master of the ceremonies, who was well acquainted with all the details of court etiquette, and who wrote a long and elaborate report on the styles and titles given to the several Continental States, from which to form precedents of those to be adopted by Government. He advised that Parliament should be styled "most excellent, most high, and most mighty." But after the lapse of nearly a year, when the difficulties of intercourse with foreign powers had become more apparent, they decided to accept simply the title of Parliament of the Commonwealth of England (p. 497).

The style by which the Council of State designated themselves in foreign correspondence was Reipublicæ Anglicæ ordines (p. 494). The device on their seal was the cross and the harp; the legend was "the seal of the Council of State, appointed by the authority of Parliament."

The one important question remaining to be solved was, whether a power based on so slight a foundation would be able to stand. History, repeating itself age after age, proves that the rule of a small minority can only subsist under two or three conditions: one, that the State shall be already wearied with contention and civil war, and long to find repose under any government strong enough for administration. A second, that the power assuming rule carries with it the consent and approval of the armed force of the country. A third, that the opposing majority is split into factions, between whom exists an irreconcilable point of difference. These conditions were fulfilled in England in 1649. Seven years of civil strife had left the country longing for peace, and although according to Goodwin's calculations, the faction in power did not exceed two-sevenths of the people, yet the other five-sevenths being partly presbyterians and partly episcopalians, covenanters and non-covenanters, there was no platform on which they could meet, to overthrow the ruling faction.

But though they could not overthrow them, they were strong enough very seriously to embarrass them. The most formidable difficulty, that of the war in Ireland, finds no place in the Domestic Calendar, excepting so far as relates to the military provisions sent from England to Ireland, entries relating to which abound; but the remoter parts of Britain were a constant source of anxiety. Scotland took an independent position, and its Parliament refused to concur in or to sanction the proceedings of the English Parliament. It was virtually, for the time being, a separate country, under separate rule.

In Wales, the royalist party was so strong that it was found impossible to secure the working of a sequestration committee to fine delinquents, and therefore an Act was passed, first for South Wales (p. 13), and later for North Wales, imposing a general tax for delinquency on the counties of Wales, only excepting some of the wealthier nobility and gentry, whose estates were valuable enough to make them worth special prosecution (p. 271). The northern counties of England being similarly situated, a special commission was issued to Sir Arthur Hesilrigge, governor of Berwick, and others, to visit those counties, and compound with the delinquents, and he was occupied on this business from June to October, 1649.

In the West of England also, it was known that several of the principal gentry held commissions from Charles II., and only waited an opportunity to effect a rising (pp. 354-5). Both there and in Lincolnshire they contributed freely but secretly to his support (pp. 420-1).

The consciousness of the disturbed state of general feeling led to the issue of a circular letter to the sheriffs of counties, on 3 April (p. 68), exhorting them to watch all meetings at fairs and races, and prevent their being used for the promotion of dangerous designs ; local mandates to the same effect, urging the suppression of disorders, were often issued (pp. 45, 60, 95, 119, 180, 224, 273, 290). Notwithstanding all these precautions, however, one short year witnessed disturbances in Kent (pp. 251-4), at Walthamstow, Essex (p. 331), Cobham, Surrey (p. 335), Twickenham, and in Oxfordshire (p. 337), Derbyshire, &c. (p. 335).

More serious danger threatened when, in September, a design was set on foot to unite the Levellers with the Royalists, to subvert the Government. Again circulars were issued to all justices of peace and county committees (pp. 314-5), to keep a watchful eye upon all assemblages of people under any pretext, and to suppress disorders.

Great alarm was caused by the daring attempt of Col. Clive, late M.P., who led a riotous multitude, in an attack upon the troop of horse of Capt. Lumley Thelwall, passing through Shropshire on their way to Ireland, dispersed them as traitors and rebels, and seized and sold their horses in the open market (pp. 282, 536).

The year closes with orders for the re-establishment of county militias, all the officers of which were to swear allegiance to the present form of government, as a condition of their commissions (pp. 411-2).

As a further precaution, it was decided that all the castles and strongholds in the country should either be garrisoned, or so far dismantled as to be rendered untenable in a military point of view. This was to prevent their being seized and used as points d'appui by the royalists. In a few cases, where a fortress was deemed necessary, but its fortifications were so extensive as to require a large garrison, many of them were dismantled, and a strong citadel built, which could be held by a few men comparatively.

This forcible pulling down of strongholds will account for the perpetually recurring local traditions of castles destroyed by Cromwell. Many of them were victims, not to the civil war, but to the policy which succeeded it. Those ordered to be dismantled in the present volume are—

Sometimes discontent and disaffection would show itself amongst the sailors or soldiers, and these demonstrations were quelled with great care and pains (pp. 68, 111, 130, 140, 143, 149–151, 162, 236, 237, 287, 292, 303, 320).

Much fear was entertained lest disaffected soldiers should allow themselves to be transported into Ireland, and on their arrival, desert, and join the ranks of the enemy; therefore careful scrutiny was ordered. All the discontented were to be cashiered (p. 78), and none who had ever been in arms against Parliament were to be allowed to go to Ireland (p. 535). But the turning loose upon the country a number of disaffected and disbanded soldiers did not prove a happy experiment, as they caused many complaints by their disorderly conduct (pp. 298–9).

The quartering of the standing army in England, and of that marching to the waterside, for transport to Ireland, presented another difficulty; the men were not regularly paid, and they took free quarter, and perpetuated, by their disorderly insolence, one of the worst grievances of war in a time of peace, thus increasing the general disaffection (pp. 139, 150, 163, 174, 234, 273, 292, 306, 511).

The discontent that feared or failed to express itself in action, found vent in writings.

Among the books or pamphlets which were styled "treasonable, scandalous, or seditious," and whose authors were prosecuted and punished, occur the following :—

The Agreement of the People, and

The Moderate, for licensing the printing of which Mr. Mabbot was dismissed from his office as licenser of the press (p. 127).

Old and New Chains, to which Milton was ordered to write a reply (p. 52).

The Fiery Flying Roll (p. 560).

The English Soldiers' Standard (p. 528).

The Second Part of England's New Chains discovered by John Lilburne (pp. 55, 56, 58, 59), for which he was committed to the Tower.

The Earl of Strafford's trial (p. 555).

The Outcry of the Apprentices (pp. 314, 522).

Papers which passed at Newcastle (p. 167).

Elencticus (pp. 529, 534).

Pragmaticus (pp. 530, 537, 541).

The Man in the Moon (pp. 530, 550).

Impeachment against Cromwell and Ireton (p. 544).

Earl of Pembroke's speeches (p. 530).

Kingly bed of Misery (p. 530).

Vindication of the late Lord Mayor (p. 530).

It was generally easier however to condemn the book, than to seize and punish the authors. Still we find numerous persons committed to various prisons during the year for seditious publications. [See Warrant Tables, pp. 526-570, passim.]

This general discontent involved a heavy expenditure, as not only had the war in Ireland to be vigorously carried on, but a considerable body of forces was required in England, to keep down insurrections. The party cry, during the earlier stages of the civil war, had been so loud against undue taxation, that Parliament feared to exercise its prerogative in this respect too freely. They considerably increased, however, the assessments granted for the army during the civil war; and they devoted 150,000*l.* from the Excise to the payment of the arrears of officers and soldiers.

They had at their disposal, in addition to the ordinary revenue, the Crown lands, and those of the Queen and Prince; the lands and revenues of bishops, deans and chapters; the newly created revenue of the Excise, which yielded 200,000*l.* a year; and the large sums previously alluded to, as realised by the sequestrations or compositions of the royalists.

The Exchequer, at this period, was in a state of utter confusion. It had been the habit of previous years, during the civil wars, to raise by assessments, only available where the authority of the Parliamentary party prevailed, definite sums for a particular purpose, and to issue warrants upon the funds so raised. Therefore the funds upon which payments were assigned were very numerous, and the value of a warrant greatly depended upon the state of the fund on which it was drawn, and upon the previous charges on that fund. Frequent instances occur of warrants being transferred from one fund, whence payment seemed hopeless, to another in a better condition. The consciousness of the inconvenience of this mode of proceeding led to frequent, but abortive attempts to bring the funds of the State into one treasury (p. 390).

The warrants for money, which for the sake of brevity are tabulated (pp. 572-600), were all issued direct by the Council of State. It will at once be seen that the support of the war in Ireland formed by far the heaviest item in the public expenditure. Where the original warrants have been preserved, having passed through the Exchequer office, they are usually receipted, sometimes by the person for whom they are drawn, sometimes by some other, who acts for him on a power of attorney. These powers of attorney, duly signed and attested, are frequently enclosed in the original warrant.

The funds upon which warrants are drawn in the present volume are :—

1. Goldsmiths' Hall, the fund into which moneys from the compositions of delinquents were paid. Treasurers, Rich. Waring, and Michael Herring.
2. Fund of 50,000*l.*, to be raised for Ireland, from profits or sale of delinquents' estates, by Parliament ordinance. This is usually referred to as Delinquents' estates. Treasurer, Sir Adam Loftus, Treasurer-at-war for Ireland. Of this, 2,000*l.* was reserved for emergencies, and issued on special warrants.
3. Army Treasury, being the fund formed by an assessment of 90,000*l.* a month for the forces in England and Ireland, passed 7 April 1649. Treasurers-at-war or of the Army, Sir John Wollaston, Thos. Andrewes, John Dollinge.
4. Fund raised by sale of Deans and Chapters' lands. Of this, by ordinance of Parliament,— $\frac{1}{3}$ was reserved for the Navy,

$\frac{1}{3}$ for Exigencies,

$\frac{1}{3}$ for Ireland.

Treasurers, Thos. Noel, Step. Estwick, Wm. Hobson.

The warrants on these treasurers sometimes specify the branch of the fund from which they are to be paid, but not always.

5. Fund raised by assessments for 20,000*l.* a month, for the support of the war in Ireland, by order of Parliament, 16 Feb. 1647–8; called Ordinance for Ireland. Treasurers, Lord Mayor Thos. Andrews, and Maurice Thompson.
6. Excise. Fund of 150,000*l.* upon the Excise, reserved for the arrears of officers and soldiers, by order of Parliament of 28 May 1647. Treasurer, John Jackson.
7. Fund raised by the sale of prize ships and goods. Treasurers, the prize collectors.
8. Public Revenue Fund, from what was formerly called the King's Revenue, the name being changed 1 Feb. 1649, by order of Parliament.
9. Fund at the disposal of the Council of State. Treasurer, Gualter Frost, sen., the secretary.
10. Fund of 10,000*l.* a month raised by weekly assessments for Ireland, on orders of Parliament of 16 October 1644, August 1645, and March 1646; called the Old Ordinances for Ireland. Treasurers, Aldermen Andrews, Kenrick, and Avery.

Sums were sometimes paid over en masse to sundry officials, as Chas. Walley, manager of the victualling and transport service at Chester. These sums were then issued by warrants from them, so that they occur twice in the money column, first in total, and then in detail. Also sums were occasionally borrowed or transferred from one fund to another; therefore an addition of the money column would produce an exaggerated estimate of the real expenditure, unless made cautiously.

For a fuller exposition of the financial condition of the period however, the Exchequer papers, which at present form upwards of 300 partially unsorted bundles, must be arranged and tabulated. Till this is done, calculations would be based on imperfect premises.

Great anxiety was naturally felt by the young Government to obtain recognition from States and principalities abroad. One of their earliest meetings was devoted to the consideration of foreign affairs (p. 31), and a committee was appointed for the purpose (pp. 40, 111), but it collapsed, from the absence of any disposition on the part of foreign powers to enter into alliance with the Parliamentary Government. In July it was revived (pp. 233, 251, 261), and they began to venture upon the question of foreign agents (pp. 251, 261), but nothing was done. In September and November it was again revived (pp. 312, 412), but little was done to purpose (p. 412), and they complained that though Parliament, on 17 Aug. 1649, passed an Act for renewing all leagues and amities with foreign nations, "yet there has not hitherto been published the like declaration by such foreign kingdoms and states" (p. 484).

It was not until the lapse of nearly a year since their accession to supreme power, that the advent of the first foreign minister was expected, viz., an agent from Holland, and great preparations were made for his reception. A coach and seven horses were purchased, barges and watermen for conveyance by water provided, and splendid liveries ordered for the servants and watermen (pp. 502, 505, 509); but the arrival did not take place within the period of the present volume.

The difficulties of office of English agents abroad were the greater, because agents for the late King, who had been sent with proper credentials, and who had transferred their allegiance to Charles II., were resident in several parts, as consuls or agents; e.g., Hen. Hide in the Levant, Sir Sackville Crow at Constantinople, Cochrane at Hamburg, Sir Rich. Browne in Paris, Codgell the Scot, at Marseilles, &c. Also the agents of Parliament were not only perplexed but endangered by the frequent presence at foreign courts of desperate English royalists, prepared to revenge on them the death of their King, and their own confiscation and banishment.

The details of the diplomatic relationship with foreign powers belong to the series of Foreign Calendars; but in the present juncture, they have a special significance, because they bear upon the recognition of the change of government in England. As far as they appear in the present volume, they will be best noted under the heads of the respective States.

FRANCE was the country to which the royalist party naturally looked for help, as the widowed Queen of Charles I., daughter of Henri Quatre, and her son, Charles II., had already found an asylum there; but the state of the country, torn with civil strife, prevented any active interposition. The French ambassador was recalled from England (p. 80) and dismissed by Sir Oliver Fleming with the customary civilities (p. 83), a business agent only remaining (p. 426). An interdict on the import of English woollen manufactures into France followed, and retaliation was threatened in the shape of an interdict on the import of French wines (p. 274). M. Augier, a former agent for England in France, still remained at his post, claiming and obtaining heavy allowances for his extraordinary charges (p. 260), and trying to obtain redress for English merchants injured at sea (pp. 148, 221, 324, 340, 388, 474, 501), but with so little success that he was ordered to threaten heavy retaliation for the treatment of some English prisoners, the company of Capt. John Greene, who were menaced with the gallies (p. 277). Numerous letters of marque and reprisal were issued to aggrieved English merchants against the French, in compensation for their heavy losses (pp. 563–566). Augier was ordered by the Council of State to try to seduce Sir Rich. Browne, resident for Charles II., to act as spy upon the royalist exiles at the Louvre, and betray their secrets to the English Parliament, the plea used being that Charles II. would never be able to do anything for him, whilst the Council made liberal offers. Browne's reply was that he would retire to a remote corner of the world, and live on bread and water, rather than receive the greatest rewards those arch-rebels and traitors could heap upon him (p. 184). Augier was also to endeavour to prevail upon the governors of French port towns to prohibit the sale of prizes taken by the royalist fleet, and the imprisonment of their crews (p. 291), and to dislodge from Marseilles Codgell the Scot, consul for Charles II. (p. 376). The sending of a consul to reside at Bordeaux, in the interests of commerce, was contemplated (p. 40), but not carried into effect.

HOLLAND seemed to desire neutrality, and forbade its church ministers to meddle with foreign correspondence, either in Church or State (p. 52). But a serious complication soon arose. Dr. Dorislaus, one of the legal advisers on the trial of the late King, was chosen to go over to the Hague, on a special embassy to the States General. But almost immediately on his arrival, he was slain as a traitor and regicide, by the servants of the Marquis of Montrose (p. 133).

Such an outrage upon the person of a public minister of the State, inflicted because of his action in the parliamentary cause, was a source of great perplexity and distress to the government, and the more so that Walter Strickland, the Resident agent there, seemed to think a return to England essential to his own safety. Remonstrances and requests for the punishment of the offenders were sent, couched in the strongest terms; but only the provinces of Holland and West Friesland could be induced to respond frankly. Extreme care was taken to lavish all the honour that the Commonwealth could bestow upon the funeral of this proto-martyr to their cause; his body was brought over to England, embalmed, and laid in state in Worcester House. A public funeral at Westminster Abbey was ordered for him, attended by the members of Parliament, the Council of State, and the officers of the army, with blazoned escutcheons and other paraphernalia, superintended by John Alleyn, herald. A sermon was preached on the occasion by Mr. Cooper (pp. 135, 139, 141, 164, 165), and promises were more liberally made than executed, for provision to be made for his children (pp. 300, 313).

Joachimi, the late ambassador from the United Provinces, remained in England, being treated with great courtesy (pp. 10, 13), and was often consulted in reference to the treatment of Dutch merchants resident in England (p. 30). The capture of Dutch ships by the English fleet, which was perpetually in search of that portion of the ships still adhering to Charles II., caused frequent complications, on which he was also consulted (pp. 108, 123, 208).

Another difficulty occurred in the pressing by England of Dutch ships, to carry over troops for Ireland; fair pay was offered them, but if they refused it, they were taken by force. This caused some clamour, which Strickland, the resident at the Hague, could not easily allay (pp. 177, 179, 249, 250). His position was difficult; the States General delayed, and all but refused him an audience, though the Provincial States of Holland showed themselves more friendly (p. 370), and thereby obtained the restitution of a valuable ship, the Bommell, which had been taken by the English (pp. 300, 310, 546). He therefore announced his intention of returning to England, and steps were taken for his safe convoy (pp. 330, 370, 492).

HAMBURG.—The city of Hamburg, though unimportant in itself, was of consequence to commerce, on account of the trading interest of the Merchant Adventurers' Company, which had a flourishing establishment there. As early as March 1649, letters were written to the Senate, to acquaint them with the change of affairs in England, and to desire encouragement for the company (p. 43).

The Council of State urged upon the Adventurers resident at Hamburg, to select a man from their own body, to be invested with the office of agent, and offered the place to the deputy governor of the company. He declined it on the plea of private business, and none other of the company was willing to accept it (p. 100).

The Senate of Hamburgh were dissatisfied with the company, because of frauds and abuses in the manufacture of English cloth, and though they addressed the Council of State on 25 June, in a style which must have been highly satisfactory, as "the most illustrious, excellent, noble and "magnificent lords," the letter was one of complaint and remonstrance (p. 261). The reply, treating of matters relating to English politics, is calendared on pp. 270, 271. It complains bitterly that Cochrane, the resident on behalf of Charles II., had surprised and carried away the deputy of the Merchant Adventurers' Company resident there, and two of the merchants. The Senate, though duly informed and remonstrated with, failed to avenge the insult offered to the "Commonwealth of England," and the captives owed their rescue to the intrepidity of some young English merchants (pp. 270, 271). At length the Council of State proposed to send an agent to Hamburg, who should also be secretary to the Merchant Adventurers' Company there (pp. 222, 258). Ant. Ascham was first selected; having formerly been tutor to the Duke of York, it might be supposed that he would be less obnoxious to the royalist party, and therefore less imperilled; but he seems to have declined the dangerous honour (p. 288). Another man was thought of, whose name does not transpire (pp. 297, 330), but who was not sent.

In January 1650, the Council of State remonstrated with the Senate on the restraints laid upon English merchants who took the engagement of fidelity to the present government, ordered by Parliament in Oct. 1649. At length Rich. Bradshaw accepted the post of agent, and was dispatched to Hamburg, with a salary of 800*l.* a year (pp. 496, 498). A letter from him to President Bradshaw, dated 12 Feb. 1650, before starting, subscribed, "Your Lordship's most humble and thankful servant," is noticed on p. 512.

SWEDEN.—The Parliament wished to send an agent to Sweden, to see how it was likely to act towards the commonwealth (p. 33), being probably aware of the friendly inclinations of Queen Christina towards Charles II., and applied to the Eastland Company to recommend a fit person; Chris. Potley was sent in April.

TURKEY.—The diplomatic connexion between England and Turkey, was almost exclusively confined to the commercial transactions of the Levant or Turkey company, on whose behalf Sir Thos. Bendish already resided as ambassador at Constantinople; and although difficulties arose upon the change of government in England, they were of short duration (p. 87).

An agent in Turkey was also inquired for, to whom letters could be written on behalf of English prisoners at Algiers (p. 82) and also at Tunis, Bendish being lax in the performance of his duty (p. 242).

The Council therefore requested for Sir Thomas Browne, an English merchant resident in Turkey, who had been energetic in his efforts to release English captives, the same recognition as usually granted to agents and consuls (p. 239).

Spenser Bretton was appointed to act as consul at Smyrna, on behalf of the Levant or Turkey merchants (p. 435); and Hen. Ryley was settled by them as consul at Aleppo, notwithstanding some demur of the Council of State, because of complaints against him for speaking disrespectfully of the Government (pp. 426, 428, 431, 432, 435, 456).

FLORENCE.—The Florentine ambassador remained in England, but the only notice occurring of him is a promise to him, on the part of the Council of State, that his house shall not be searched for popish priests and Jesuits lurking about town, unless on special information of their being harboured there (p. 454). Also the sending an agent to the Duke of Florence, to maintain a good correspondence and carry on merchants' affairs, was in contemplation (p. 477).

FLANDERS.—In Flanders the Archduke Ferdinand of Austria consented to put a stop to the sale there of goods taken from English merchants by the vessels that adhered to the King; and he allowed Peter Thelwall, formerly resident, to return to Flanders as agent for merchants' affairs (pp. 59, 135, 136, 172). The Archduke had no agent resident in England, but was represented when needful by the Spanish ambassador (p. 350).

SPAIN.—The Spanish ambassador long lingered in England, in hope of securing repayment of 50,000*l.*, taken by Parliament out of a Spanish ship, the Sta. Clara, on public faith for repayment; but though the business was perpetually brought before Council and Parliament (see Index, Ships' names, Santa Clara), nothing was finally resolved on the case, during the present volume (see p. 493). There were also several other cases of seizure of ships, especially of a Spanish vessel conveying troops from Ireland, who were supposed to be for the service of Charles II., and were consequently seized as rebels. These the government declined to surrender, though professing great anxiety to avoid misunderstanding, "and inviolably to preserve" a good correspondence between the nations (pp. 30, 78, 93, 97); but a ship with some soldiers going from Ostend to Spain, and taken by an English vessel, was freed and dismissed, on certificate that they were for the service of the King of Spain (pp. 103, 104). The seizures of English vessels by Spaniards were also causes of frequent discussion (pp. 78, 86). In January 1650, the Spanish ambassador was recalled, and dismissed with civilities, and with the expression of a hope that when gone, he would still do what he could to promote amity between the countries (pp. 475, 506). Before he left, humble apologies were made to him for the misconduct of a quartermaster, who, in ignorance of the privileges of his official position, had billeted 20 soldiers upon him (p. 480).

As early as July 1649, the question of sending an agent to Spain was under discussion (p. 258) ; it was referred to a committee in October (p. 329), and names were ordered to be submitted to Council for selection (pp. 362, 421, 426). The business was often considered, and at length in December, it was resolved to send an agent to Madrid and a consul to Andalusia, on merchants' affairs (p. 435), and the Spanish merchants were consulted on the subject (p. 437). The place of agent to Madrid was first offered to Mr. Methwold (p. 451), but unhesitatingly declined (p. 453), then to Mr. Nevill, who also refused (p. 465). Mr. Peters was appointed to the office of consul at Andalusia (p. 466), but the appointment was vacated two days later, probably on his refusal to accept it (p. 463).

The presence of Prince Rupert's fleet cruizing in the Mediterranean, and between there and the coasts of Ireland, seizing English merchant vessels, &c., so often alluded to in this volume, rendered more imperative the settlement of an agency for the commonwealth in Spain and Portugal, the rather as a powerful fleet was preparing to go southwards, to attack that of Prince Rupert, and the assistance, or at least the neutrality of the southern European ports was most important.

The instructions given to the generals of this fleet were firm and concise ; they were to protect trade, seize all pirates, search for and seize the "revolted ships," as Prince Rupert's fleet was termed, even if under the shelter of foreign ports, explaining to the Prince or State concerned that "those ships are part of the navy of England, and the "Parliament's own ships, treacherously carried away by "perfidious revoltors, who have no property in them, nor "power to sell them." No act of hostility against foreign ships was authorised, except in case of their joining the revoltors, or attacking the English fleet. The generals were also, if possible, to preserve the "ancient and indubitable dominion of the sea," by demanding the lowering of the flag, but not to "engage the fleet in any peril or " hazard for that particular;" and if it be strongly opposed, to "forbear the pressing thereof, and take notice " who they were that did it not, that at some better " opportunity, they may be brought hereafter thereunto" (pp. 483-485).

With this southward fleet, agents were sent both to Spain and Portugal. In a luckless hour for himself, Ascham, who had refused the agency to Hamburg, accepted that to Spain. He had a liberal allowance for outfit, and a salary of 800*l.* a year, and great pains were taken that the Spanish ambassador in England should be well informed of his advent (pp. 488, 489, 491, 496); but still so much doubt was felt as to his reception, that he received private instructions, in case of any unexpected affront, and in case of absolute refusal to grant him an audience, to come away forthwith. But before he had time to receive either audience or affront, he was slain by six Englishmen, against whom no vengeance could be obtained, as they fled for sanctuary to a church. This did not take place, however, till June 1650.

Charles Vane was appointed at the same time with Ascham, as envoy to Portugal, and at the same salary, but he was ill received, and returned to England on Ascham's murder.

Of the historic characters of the period few individual traces appear. Charles II. is represented only by commissions for the raising of troops, and appeals to his loyalist followers for help, and by a few letters to Montrose, an intercepted copy of which is endorsed as letters from "young Tarquin" (p. 325). There are two characteristic letters, also intercepted, from the Princess Sophia, daughter of Elizabeth, Queen of Bohemia, and mother of George I.—the connecting link between the Stuart and Hanoverian dynasties—to her brothers Rupert and Maurice (p. 85). Of Milton nothing appears beyond official allusions touching his duties as foreign secretary to the Council of State, except the employment of his pen to answer books and pamphlets in opposition to the Government (pp. 52, 57). The examination of papers was frequently referred to him; they were probably those written in foreign languages (pp. 100, 165, 179, 204, 474 (2), 493). He was also allowed unlimited access to the State Papers, then deposited at Whitehall (p. 233), and, as already observed, had himself lodgings, with furniture, hangings, &c., in Whitehall (p. 388).

John Taylor, the water poet, is once alluded to, as getting into trouble for his adherence to the cause of monarchy (p. 544).

Of Cromwell the notices are but scanty. He was, of course, on the Council of State, and on three occasions, was president pro tem. (p. 10) before the appointment of Bradshaw to that office; but on 27 February, the Earl of Denbigh signed as president, Cromwell coming in late, and on 7 March, Sir Wm. Masham was president, though Cromwell was present. He was placed on the following committees :

Feb. 27. To inquire into the state of the forces, and what will be left to keep the peace, when the forces are sent to Ireland (p. 22).

March 2. To consider what forces should be sent to Ireland, and how maintained (p. 26).

March 10. To receive from Col. Mervyn papers concerning Ireland (p. 33).

March 11. To consult the Navy Commissioners what ships may be soonest ready (p. 33).

March 29, 31. The Irish committees for the war in Ireland (pp. 58, 62).

April 17. To consider how affairs in England or Ireland stand in reference to Scotland (p. 99).

In March he was requested to accept the arduous post of commander-in-chief, lieutenant-general, and chief governor of Ireland, where the royalist forces under the Marquis of Ormond were so strong that the greatest military ability at command of Parliament was required to keep them in check (pp. 41, 49, 62, 198). Cromwell's significant reply was that he would go, if he were "sufficiently provided" (p. 60). He required, in addition to the ordinary salary of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 3,000*l.* for outfit, 10*l.* a day as long as he remained in England, and 8,000*l.* a year on his landing in Ireland (p. 229). Unfortunately Cromwell's patent does not state his salary as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, only that he should have the usual fees, stipends, and allowances; but, judging from analogy, it seems to have been at least 5,000*l.*¹

His total salary would therefore be 13,000*l.* a year, which multiplied by $3\frac{1}{2}$, to represent the comparative value of money at the period, amounts to 45,500*l.*; the salary of the present Lord Lieutenant being only 20,000*l.*

The demand was high, but it was granted, notwithstanding the deplorable state of the Exchequer; though so extreme was the difficulty of meeting the wants of the Government, that the very officers who were to go over with Cromwell were barely paid one fourth of the arrears due to them for former service (p. 225).

¹ The former provision for a Lord Deputy was double that assigned to a Lord Justice, when there was no Lord Lieutenant. This was, in Elizabeth's time, 1,300*l.*, and then 1,200*l.* a year, with wages for 50 horse and 50 foot. She reduced it in 1597 to 1,200 marks (Pat. 39 Eliz., 2 pl. dors.); in 1629 the Lords Justices had each 1,200*l.*, and in 1685, 2,500*l.* Taking the proportion for 1649, the salary of a Lord Deputy would probably be 1,700*l.* That the Lord Lieutenant's salary was considerably more appears from a patent of 1622, appointing Lord Falkland deputy, at the usual rate, abating 2,000*l.* a year till his arrival in Ireland. The salary therefore could not have been less than 4,000*l.*, and that of Lord Lieutenant being larger, must have been 5,000*l.* at least.

After remaining some time in England, partly occupied in making the needful preparations, and partly in quelling revolted troops (pp. 143, 236), on 14 August, Cromwell landed in Ireland, to enter upon his victorious but terrible campaign. His son-in-law, Commissary Ireton, was appointed second in command under him (pp. 183, 184), but of the proceedings in Ireland the Domestic Calendar takes no note.

Other historical characters have casual notices in this volume, which will appear sufficiently from the Index.

In reference to the Index, one point should be observed. Where the words Commonwealth or the State are used, as they frequently are, to represent not the kingdom in general, but the then governing power, they are indexed under "Government, the present." Where they occur in a broad general sense, they will be found under the head of Commonwealth.

In concluding these prefatory remarks, I must acknowledge the intelligent help, literary as well as official, that I have derived in the compilation of the present volume from G. J. Morris, Esq., B.A., clerk of the Public Record Office, who has been my assistant, and also the valuable services, in rough drafting and indexing, of my transcriber Mr. G. W. Thompson.

Feb. 1.

1. Order in Parliament, appointing a Committee, consisting of Lords Lisle, Grey, and Monson, and 28 others, three to be a quorum, to receive, and take note of the dissent of any member from the vote of 5 Dec.,* in order that such dissent may be reported, and entered on the books of the House. No person who has not entered his disapproval to sit in the House until he has entered it. Such as disapprove, and do not enter their disapproval before 1 March, to be suspended from sitting in the House, or any Committee of it, until they declare their dissent, and show cause for the delay. [1½ pages; also G. 1. p. 209.]

2. List of 64 judges of the High Court of Justice, for the trial of James, Earl of Cambridge, Henry, Earl of Holland, George Lord Goring, Arthur Lord Capel, and Sir John Owen; the judges are summoned for Monday 5 Feb., at the Painted Chamber, Westminster. [Printed, 1 page.]

Feb. 5.

3. Chr. Birtley and Rich. Robinson to Robt. Stevenson, of Dringhoe, collector. By an ordinance of 23 May 1647, the rate of 60,000*l.* a month was charged upon the kingdom for maintenance of the army under Sir Thomas, now Lord Fairfax, and the proportion of the county of York towards that sum was 2,111*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*, which, from 25 Sept. last to 25 Dec., is, for the East Riding 1,689*l.* 2*s.*, and for the wapentake of the North Bailiwick, 178*l.* 6*s.* The Commissioners having appointed you collector general for this sum, you are forthwith to issue your warrants to two substantial inhabitants of every township in the division, to assess the several inhabitants and occupiers of grounds, and to appoint the said assessors, or such others as you shall think fit, to be your sub-collectors and constables, and bring in the said sum within nine days, and pay it to Sir Edw. Rhodes of York, receiver-general of this county; if any person shall refuse to pay the assessment, you are to distrain upon his goods, and sell the same, returning the surplus after deducting all necessary charges. With an endorsement by Edw. Wingate and Jo. Poissons, that this warrant

Stephenson, upon Barmston and 25 other places named, in the north bailiwick of Holderness, county York, for maintenance of the army; total, 178l. 6s. Signed by Chr. Birtley and Ric. Robinson, 8 Feb. 1649. [1 page, with a similar endorsement.]*

4. Declaration and Protest of the Peers of this realm of England, against the late perfidious, traitorous, and tyrannical usurpations of some members of the House of Commons, who are trying to overturn the fundamental laws and kingly government of this country, and to make its subjects the slaves of this insolent tyranny.

Compelled to vindicate ourselves, and to assert the rights of Parliament, especially of the House of Peers, the prerogatives of our King, and the inviolability of his person, the fundamental laws of this kingdom, and the liberty of all freeborn in it, and our own honour, against this last unprecedented usurpation of some few insolent, ill-advised members of the House of Commons, after the expulsion and imprisonment of the soundest part thereof; after long patience, and in utter despair of their repentance, being bound by our oaths and our patriotism, and in virtue of that solemn compact, the Covenant:—

We declare and protest that, from time immemorial, the supreme judicial power of Parliament has resided in the single person of the King, and in the House of Peers; not in the House of Commons, which never claimed it, and which has not even authority to examine witnesses on oath, not being a court of justice, but has only the power of accusing delinquents before the House of Peers, before which its members ever appear with head uncovered, not even daring to sit down or tender advice; that without the consent of the House of Lords and of the King it has no power to pass Acts or publish ordinances of Parliament, nor to create a new chamber of justice for the trial even of the least subjects of the realm, much less their king or any peer, who, by the common laws and Magna Charta, ought only to be tried by their peers.

That to take his crown from the King and disinherit him, to alter the government and fundamental laws, and the great seal, yea, the ancient forms of justice and process of law in this kingdom; to enact that what is high treason is nothing of the kind, and that that is treason which is no treason; to create new officers, deposing others from the bench, to impose penalties, taxes, and oaths on the subjects of this realm, is not to be borne.

Therefore before God, angels, and men, we disavow all their acts and deliberations, and also the erection of that new high court of justice, to try, condemn, and put to death our King, or any peer or subject; and we declare it an act of the deepest treason in any one to take our place as judges or commissioners, and that a wilful murder has been by them committed in taking away the life of the King, and an unparalleled crime in disinheriting the Prince of Wales, and forbidding men to proclaim him king after the murder of his father; in seeking to alter the monarchical government, the laws and ancient legal procedure of this kingdom; in setting up any commissions, judges, or officers, such as those created to effect that sanguinary murder; in continuing to maintain the old bands of soldiers; in imposing new taxes or oaths on the subjects of this realm; in putting them to death, and depriving them of their liberty or their goods; all which is contrary to the fundamental laws of the realm, especially that insolent declaration of the House of Commons dated 6 Feb., that the House of Lords is useless and dangerous, and must be abolished.

We assert that this flagrant treason will end in the destruction of the rights of Parliament, the prerogatives and security of the Kings of England, and the life, liberty, and property of the people; in the utter annihilation of this flourishing State, by the substitution of anarchy and confusion, a result which we Peers, and all free Englishmen are bound, by every tie, at the peril of our lives, to prevent, lest we be regarded by posterity as consenting thereto, though for their preservation, we have already shed so much blood, and consumed so much treasure. [French, 2 pages.] Also,

[Feb. 8.] ——— to ———. It is certain that all of a company are never agreed, and if there are wicked men in a republic, good men too have been found, from the time of Elijah, who, under the reign of wicked Ahab,—complaining, “Zelo zelatus sum pro Deo meo,” but that he alone remained of all God’s prophets, and that impious Jezebel, who had slain the rest, sought his life,—received this answer from God, “Fear not, prophet, I have still more than 7,000 souls in Israel alone, who have not bent the knee before Belial” (sic). I can say as much of the English; for though some members of a House of Commons, with unparalleled audacity have laid hands on the Lord’s anointed, yet there are, not to say 7,000, but more than hundreds of thousands, who have had no hand nor voice in these execrable proceedings, and have undertaken to hazard their lives and their fortunes to avenge this outrage, and prove to the world that the present government in this island is a tyranny, enforced by the arms of a conqueror, who tramples all law and right under foot. I will communicate to you, in addition to the foregoing declaration of the peers, some pertinent reasons, sent me by a friend, why all their proceedings are absolutely null. To show you more clearly the impiety of those unnatural soldiers, I add a copy of the letter of the then Prince of Wales, now lawful King of England, written to them before sentence was pronounced on his father, capable of moving rocks, if rocks had any feeling, although not able to prevent their putting to death that good Prince and great monarch, for which their only reason was, sic volo, sic jubeo; sat (sic) pro ratione voluntas. The poet tells us nulla fides pietasque viris qui castra sequuntur, whence we may learn the poor state of this island, once so flourishing in consequence of union and good intelligence. [French, $\frac{2}{3}$ page.] Annexing,

4. I. Six incontestable propositions for consideration at the present juncture, by all faithful subjects of this kingdom and all Catholics.
- 1°. By the King's death, the present Parliament is ipso facto dissolved, he being its head, and it being called by his command, as his Parliament and his Council, to confer with him about matters of importance, relating to himself and the kingdom, as was resolved in the first assembled by Henry IV.
- 2°. Immediately on its dissolution, by his death, all commissions that have emanated from the King or one of the two Houses of Parliament, to the general of the army, and to its officers, to the Commissioners of the Great Seal of England, to all royal judges, justices of the peace, sheriffs, officers of excise and customs, &c. together with all commissions, and ordinances of both Houses, expire, and cannot continue in force by any authority whatsoever.
- 3°. Immediately on the King's death, the imperishable crown of England and its dependencies, by legitimate succession, actually belongs to Charles, Prince of Wales, as the nearest heir, and he is actually King before coronation, according to a Parliamentary resolution of James I. chap. 1., and the opinion of all the judges of that time (Cooke's Report, 7, fol. 10), and all subjects are bound to maintain his rights to the last drop of their blood.
- 4°. All peers of the realm, mayors, and other chief officers of the city and corporations of the kingdom are obliged, by their office, to proclaim Prince Charles veritable King of England, notwithstanding any opposition or threats, under penalty of rendering themselves guilty of high treason, and of forfeiting their towns, corporations, offices, and charters.
- 5°. Until King Charles is seated on the throne, or gives other order, the present Government, by law and custom, is in this event vested in the Peers of the realm; the King, or his great Council, being those who legitimately assume command over the other subjects of the realm.
- 6°. Any attempt to change the established monarchical government, and the fundamental laws of the kingdom, is an act not less culpable than high treason, as was declared by this last Parliament in the trial of Strafford and Canterbury, who were as powerful, and seemingly as far from attainder as these grand gentlemen who now have power in their hands. [French, $\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

4. II. The Prince of Wales to General Fairfax, and to his Council of War, in England.

We have no sources of information regarding the health and present condition of the King, our father, but the common gazettes which come into this country, our servant, Symons, whom we lately sent to present our humble respects to His Majesty, not having been able to obtain permission to do so, or to see him. We have reason to believe that, at the end of the time assigned for the treaty made with His Majesty in the Isle of Wight, His Majesty has been withdrawn from that island to Hurst Castle, and thence conducted to Windsor, with some intention of proceeding against him with more rigour, or of deposing him from the royal dignity given him by God alone, who invested his person with it by a succession undisputed, or even of taking his life; the mere thought of which seems so horrible and incredible that it has moved us to address these presents to you, who now have power, for the last time, either to testify your fidelity, by reinstating your lawful King, and to restore peace to the kingdom,—an honour never before given to so small a number as you—or to be the authors of misery unprecedented in this country, by contributing to an action which all Christians think repugnant to the principles of their religion, or any fashion of government whatever, and destructive of all security. I therefore conjure you to think seriously of the difference there is in the choice you make, and I doubt not you will choose what will be most honourable and most just, and preserve and defend the King, whereto you are by oath obliged. It is the only way in which any of you can promise himself peace of conscience, the favour and good will of His Majesty, the country, and all good men, and more particularly of your friend.

able and illegal late acts and proceedings of some few confederate members of that dead House, since their forcible exclusion.”/

Considering the proceedings of some members, not amounting to an eighth of the House, who have confederated with the officers and General Council of the army, and forcibly excluded us from sitting and voting with them, against the privilege of Parliament; and, contrary to their oaths of allegiance and supremacy to His late murdered Majesty, have usurped the title of the supreme authority of this kingdom, by colour of which title they have presumed, against our consent and the unanimous vote of the House of Peers, to erect a High Court of Justice, to arraign and condemn His Majesty, against the laws of God and the municipal laws of this realm; have refused to admit His Majesty's just exceptions against their usurped jurisdiction, and without proof or legal trial, have most traitorously and impiously condemned and murdered him; and since that, have tried some peers and others, free subjects of this realm, for their lives, contrary to Magna Charta, the Petition of Right, the laws of the land, and the liberty of the subject:—

Who have, moreover, made Acts of Parliament, so termed, without our consent, or the joint consent of the King and House of Peers, and disinherited the illustrious Charles Prince of Wales, actual King by right of descent, enacting it to be treason to proclaim him King; and likewise abolished our ancient monarchical government, and the House of Peers, making a new Great Seal of England without the King's portrait or style, and altering the regal and legal style of writs and proceedings in courts of justice; and have created new judges and commissioners of the Great Seal, and for the oaths of supremacy and allegiance, substituted new oaths, whereby they have altered the fundamental laws of the kingdom, and subverted the freedom of Parliament, for which treason Strafford and Canterbury, though less criminal, lost their heads this last Parliament:—

/ We, in discharge of our duty to God, to the King, to our own conscience, and to our bleeding and dying kingdom, solemnly protest that we disclaim and repudiate all their acts and votes, done under the army's power, and against our consent, as treasonable and pernicious to the freeborn people of this realm, which we are bound to disavow and resist, with our purses, arms, lives, to the last drop of our blood.

In case they shall not speedily retract and desist from their treasonable practices, we hereby declare them to be traitors and public enemies, and shall prosecute them, with all their adherents, as such, and bring them to speedy and condign punishment/ according to the solemn League and Covenant, wherein, we trust, all will aid and assist us, and all our brethren of Scotland and Ireland, joined with us in covenant to God and allegiance to Charles the Second; he will make good all his father's concessions which really concern our peace, and secure us against all force and tyranny of our fellow-subjects, who now use that sword which was raised for protecting our persons, to enslave us to their martial wills, which we can no longer bear.

7. Lord Fairfax to Wm. Lenthall, Speaker of the House of Commons. The House, having by their order of 28 Dec. last referred it to the Committee of the Army and myself to consider what is fit to be done for the relief of the petitioners, Wm. Harris, Thos. Churchman, and others, who had 1,025 firkins of butter seized by the enemy in Scarborough, I certify that, as soon as I had notice, I wrote to Col. Bethell, commander of those forces, as also to the committee of the county, that the butter might be restored to the owners, who are well affected to Parliament, they giving something in recompense to the soldiers; but this notwithstanding, the committee of the county have disposed of the butter for public use. Now, as it was the constant course of the army, in the taking of places where any goods were belonging to the friends of the Parliament, to restore the same to them, I request you to move the House on behalf of the petitioners, that they may receive satisfaction for their loss, being 1,128*l.* according to the propositions enclosed, and that the petitioners may have the public faith for 908 firkins of butter taken from them in June 1647, value 958*l.* [1 page.] Enclosing,

7. 1. *Statement that the Committee for the Army, according to an order of Parliament of 28 Dec. last, conferred with the General concerning the petition of Wm. Harris, Thos. Churchman, &c., cheesemongers, and propose that they have satisfaction for the 1,128*l.* mentioned in their petition, according to the following propositions:—*

1. To give warrant to the Treasurer of the Navy to pay the damage out of groats collected from seamen for the use of ministers, to whom the same is due if they had served, but as no minister did serve, it is reserved for the use of the State.
2. To order therefor moneys now remaining in the hands of the collectors for prize goods, as part of thirds of the seamen who are either dead, run away, or revolted to the Prince, and thereby were instrumental in the losses sustained.
3. *For the butter taken from them in 1647, amounting to 958*l., they may have the public faith of the kingdom.

Feb. 22? 10. Remonstrance and petition of the Governor and Levant Company to the Council of State, showing the many grievous discouragements they have lately met with, both abroad and at home.

1. By the injurious attempts of the French fleet within the Straits, who continue to seize their ships and estate to a great value (as per list annexed), not only to their great loss, but to the prejudice of the commonwealth, by the decay of shipping, diminution of customs, and total loss of this ample trade.

2. Amongst necessary provisions made against the employment of strangers' ships, all persons, as well English subjects as strangers have, for above 30 years, been prohibited from importing commodities of the Levant, except such as were free of this company, and in English ships only; since which prohibition, the trade into those parts has been greatly advanced, and many ships have been built and employed by the company, insomuch that within a few years afterwards, serviceable shipping was increased three-fourths; but of late, divers persons, both subjects and strangers, have invaded their privileges, and indirectly import Levant currants, &c., from the Netherlands, setting strangers' bottoms on work, or at best employing small barks and vessels of no force, tending to the destruction of the great shipping constantly employed by the company, and maintained by the freight of currants, cottons, and galls, goods of small value but great bulk: this tends to the overthrowing of the trade, and exposing it to the hands of the Hollanders, who frequent the Levant seas with a store of great ships at cheap freight and easier charge, and buy their commodities with ready money, which petitioners have in exchange for English manufactures, and are not so subject to hazards and surprisals from the French fleet and from the English revolted ships; and it will raise those commodities to very high rates.

3. The company are at a constant annual charge of 10,000*l.* for maintenance of the ambassador and consuls abroad, and officers at home, (without which this trade cannot be supported) and are frequently subject to extraordinary avarias in Turkey, whereby they have contracted a debt of 1,000*l.*, and for clearing thereof, have been forced to lay an extraordinary duty upon all their exports and imports, but for want of power to collect the said duty, and orders to the Commissioners of Customs, many, both of this company and others, defraud them of it.

For remedying of all this, they desire:

1. That some speedy course be taken to obtain reparation for injuries and losses already sustained by the French fleet, and to prevent such outrages for the future.

2. That some means be used for hindering the employment of strangers' ships, and particularly that currants, galls, cottons, &c., of the growth or manufacture of the Levant, may (as formerly) be prohibited to be imported from the Netherlands, or elsewhere, except direct from the places of their growth.

3. That the officers of the Custom House be ordered not to pass entries for goods, either sent into the parts of their privileges, or returned from thence, without a certificate thereof, under the company's seal, or the hand of such officer as shall be appointed by them, signifying their receipt of the dues upon the same. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. Your letter of the 22nd intimates the apprehension of some disaffected persons; thanks for your care. Take diligent examinations of such as you have or shall apprehend, and if you find anything fit for the Council to take notice of, transmit them hither, and also the persons, if you find any of them like to reveal anything of consequence. As to their being long kept in prison, there is a way under consideration for expeditious proceedings against them. [I. 94, p. 2.]

Feb. 23. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. Parliament having Derby House. committed the Navy affairs to the care of the Council of State, they,—for better understanding of the present condition of the fleet, and the places in which the ships already gone out are employed,—order you to send them a list of all the ships in the service, as well such as are gone out, as those which are to go; also an account in what readiness the latter are to set forth. You are to mention the station and employment to which those abroad are commanded. Some ships have been useless for many years; we desire a list of them, and an account of the whole state of the victualling of the navy. [I. 94, p. 3.]

Feb. 23. Council of State to Capt. Moulton. Parliament has passed an Derby House. Act for encouragement of officers and mariners, and impressing seamen. We transmit several copies thereof to you, and desire you to let every captain of your squadron have one, so that it may be published to the ships' companies. Parliament has also passed an Act repealing the ordinance constituting the Earl of Warwick Lord High Admiral, and put that power into the Council of State. We cannot dispatch new commissions to you and the rest of the captains at present, but will do so with all expedition; meantime you and they are to act by virtue of the old commissions. [I. 94, p. 4.]

Feb. 23. Council of State to the Officers of the Ordnance and Armoury. Derby House. Parliament has committed to the care of this Council the supplying and disposing of all the stores and magazines in the kingdom, both for land and sea service. The better to manage that trust, we must be informed of their present state. You are, therefore, to certify the condition of the magazines under your charge; particulars of the artillery, arms, and ammunition of every kind, and also what was the usual standing proportion for those stores. The Quartermasters-General, upon every remove of quarters, must signify the same, so that the Council may be always informed where the forces lie, in case of exigency. You are also to certify the state of the garrisons, with their strength, stores, and magazines; the state of the artillery and its stores belonging, and Council of State to the customer, comptroller, and searcher of the ports of Plymouth, Dartmouth, and Barnstaple. We hear that at Plymouth, Dartmouth, and other ports in the West, 400 seamen and others are taken up, under pretence of being transported to Newfoundland, in the ships going thither to fish for Sir David Kirke, and that by reason of the great wages, &c. which they offer, the navy cannot be furnished with men to go out to sea. As some dangerous designs may be carried on under that pretence, you are to order that no more sailors or others be shipped aboard the said ships, or any other bound for Newfoundland, than are for the service of that ship that shall transport them for the use of the fishing voyage; and that, not till after so much of the navy of the commonwealth as is in those ports be first furnished with men. You are to give special notice to all the officers of your port, &c. that similar care be taken in all the places within their jurisdiction. [I. 94, p. 7.]

Feb. 23.

12. [The Levant Company] to the Council of State. In pursuance of your order, and in relation to a petition presented by us, as merchants trading to Italy, and other parts within the Mediterranean, we now offer information received from friends, factors, &c. We have been disturbed in our trade by the French fleet, as by the taking of the Mercury of London, the proprietors whereof sought justice at the court of France, and sentence was given for her freedom, yet the admiral of France would not restore her; and there are several similar instances.

Of late we have been subject to many injuries by the French fleet, who have carried away two English ships, the Greyhound and the Thomas and George. The Greyhound was of 300 tons, with 24 pieces of ordnance, and being at Messina, taking in part of her lading for London, she was compelled by the Vice King of Sicily to take in a few passengers on her way home, and land them at Alicant, or some other part of Spain, and also a certain packet, which we conceive may be done without breach of the articles agreed upon between both kingdoms; the ship, by contrary winds putting into Cagliari Road in Sardinia, and lying there at anchor, out of command of the castles, one of the French fleet came and anchored by her, and being demanded what they were, from whence, and where bound, they answered they were of Rotterdam, from Naples, bound for Trapani, to lade salt. The English misdoubting nothing, the French in the night weighed anchor, and without any summons, came upon them in the midship, when there was only a watch guard, and took her without resistance; or, as some write they coming upon a sudden, the master, not knowing who they were, and endeavouring to defend the steerage and great cabin, was shot by them in the head with three bullets. The ship, being thus taken, was carried into Port Langon, belonging to the French King, and her goods there disposed of, without legal condemnation; and soon after, 40 bales of silk were brought from thence to Leghorn, by one of their ships of war, and there sold to some Florentines and Luccases.

The Thomas and George was of Bristol, 250 tons and 22 pieces of ordnance. She was taken in her voyage from Naples to Leghorn, and was also carried into the port of Langon, where they disposed of the goods, and sent them into France. These captures are against law and treaty, and they still continue. The Apollo, a large ship bound from Spain to Venice, was lately taken, and there is news of other captures. Feb. 24. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

3. The Levant and Turkey merchants, who have complained of losses through the French, to state precisely their complaints to the Court of the Admiralty, and so present them to this Council.

4. The judges of the Admiralty to publish notices when those examinations are to be made, that those concerned may know.

5. The said judges to send a respectful notice to the French Ambassador of the examinations, that a way may be made for further proceedings for redress.

6. The said judges to issue the process of that Court (for the style and name on which they are to go), according to directions in the Act of Parliament.

7. Sir Arthur Hesilrigge to see that no horses leave England by the northern parts, on account of the waste of horses in the late troubles, and the want likely to be of them in future.

Mildmay, and Mr. Robinson, to ask the Commissioners of the Navy the expense of preparing the St. George, James, Vanguard, Swiftsure, Rainbow, Henrietta Maria, Unicorn, and Lion, and how soon could they be ready. Also to summon the Commissioners to Derby House to-morrow.

12. The generals of the fleet to meet the Committee to-morrow, for settling the above-mentioned affair.

13. The Navy Commissioners to report what they have done in taking on merchants' ships for this summer's service.

14. The Navy Commissioners to obey the generals of the fleet in respect to getting out the fleet for the summer service.

12. To report to the House that the Council have taken into consideration the order of the 2nd of March about the forces, and find that they have, horse and foot, 44,373, beside 2,500 fit to be disbanded.

That it is necessary to have these kept up for service in England and Ireland.

That 12,000 horse and foot must be sent to Ireland.

That to maintain these 44,373 is required monthly 81,633*l.* ; for general offices, trains and incidences, 18,367*l.* ; in all, 100,000*l.* ; and for the relief of the forces already in Ireland, 20,000*l.* ; in all, 120,000*l.*

To suggest to the House that the 60,000*l.* a month tax be continued for the English army, and the 20,000*l.* for the Irish. That the other 40,000*l.* be raised by putting up the Crown revenues for sale, or otherwise disposing of the lands at the disposal of the Commissioners of the Star Chamber, which lands are now security for raising 50,000*l.* for Ireland.

The anticipations of the receipts at Goldsmiths' Hall to be charged on some other visible security, that the payments there may be used for the public service.

The House to set rules for Goldsmiths' Hall, for the composition with such delinquents as were in last year's war.

The interest of money to be brought to 6 per cent., for the more ready sale of lands for the commonwealth. [I. 62, pp. 51-55.]

March 5. Private instruction to Capt. Dolphin. If you find by your messenger that Mr. Rowe is detained in Scotland, then you are only to dismiss the Earl of Lothian and Mr. Glendoning, and keep Sir John Chieslie till Mr. Rowe be returned. [I. 62, p. 47.]

March 5. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. It is of very Derby House. great importance that our fleet for this summer's service were out at sea, especially that for the Irish squadron, where the enemy is like to be very strong and active. We therefore earnestly recommend that the ships designed for the summer's guard be set forth with expedition; and if there be any obstruction, signify it to us that we may remove it. [I. 94, p. 22.]

March 6. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. To report to the House that a contract was made by the late Derby House Committee with Col. Tothill, for a foot regiment for Ireland, which is now ready at Chester, and he was to receive for them 400*l.* from Goldsmiths' Hall, and the rest to be sent to Chester, to discharge their quarters, but the dissolution of the Derby House Committee makes their warrants useless; therefore the House is to be requested to give power for disposing of the money, so that a very good regiment, actually ready for service in Ireland, may be transported.

2. A warrant to be given to Sir Adam Loftus to pay Col. Tothill 400*l.* for raising a regiment for Ireland.

3. The rest of the money for transporting the regiment to Ireland to be forwarded to Chester to Mr. Whalley

4. To write to Capt. Moulton to send a proper convoy for the regiment, in their passage from Cheshire to Ireland.

7. The letters of Mr. Goodyear and Mr. Alsop recommended to the Navy Commissioners, to pay the sums of money mentioned in them.

8. Mr. Frost to tell Mr. English that the Council leave it to him to furnish the Earl of Lothian, Sir John Chieslie, and Mr. Glendoning with necessary money desired by them for their journey, if he so please.

9. The House to be requested to pass an Act for the making of saltpetre, the ordinances for its manufacture expiring on the 25th of this month. [I. 62, pp. 56-58.]

March 6. Order in Parliament,—upon the report of Mr. Scott from the Council of State, of a contract made by the late Irish Committee at Derby House with Col. of State, and if they find cause, to make a stop of the business meantime, and endeavour that a good correspondency and nearer union be preserved between the two States. [I. 87, p. 25.]

March 6. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. We are sorry those Derby House. ships are so unready for service. We desire you forthwith to put the carpenters' work in hand in all those eight ships, to forward such four as can be first ready, and to tell us what those four are, and when they will be ready. We have recommended to the Navy Committee that the stores may be furnished. [I. 94, p. 23.]

March 6. Council of State to Col. Jones. On Thursday week, an Irish frigate Derby House. put into Stidwell Road, commanded by Capt. John Bartlet, and having manned two long boats, sent a party of 20 to Castle March, and took Griffith Jones prisoner, and plundered the house of plate, money, apparel, and linen. Some of their company that came to glean after them were taken by some of the sheriff's troop, and are in hold in Carnarvon. They say the ship is under Sir John Mennes, Vice-Admiral to Prince Rupert. The gentleman is very sickly, and will be in great danger of his life if not exchanged; it is said he is carried to Wexford. Pray use means for his relief by some fit exchange if you can. 7. Additional instructions for Capt. Dolphin. As the Earl of Lothian, Chieslie, and Glendoning wish to bear their own charges, you are to be imprested 100*l.* instead of 200*l.* for the journey.

9. Order that the ship John of Kircaldie, in which the Scottish Commissioners were shipped for Scotland, and which was lately stayed in the Thames on suspicion of carrying provisions of war to Scotland, be cleared at the custom house, and allowed to proceed, the Council being satisfied with an inventory taken of her goods. [I. 62, pp. 59-61.]

March 7. 24. Thos. Smith to the Navy Commissioners. We send you such

March 8. Council of State to the Navy Committee. We find it necessary Derby House. to set out some more ships of the second rate, but the Navy Commissioners say that the stores are so unfurnished that they cannot prepare as many ships as we conceive requisite. Let the stores be furnished with all expedition, that there be no obstruction in the expeditious setting ships to sea upon emergencies. We are sorry at this unexpected return of the emptiness of the magazines, and desire you to certify the cause of that dangerous neglect. [I. 94, p. 24.]

March 8. Council of State to Captain Stone, Governor of Stafford. There

March 9. Council of State to the Lord General. The forces of Col. Ewer, Derby House. appointed to come to Sandwich, are already come, and those of Sir Mich. Livesey's forces into other quarters, in order to their transportation to Ireland. [I. 94, p. 27.]

March 9. Council of State to the Lord General. March 9. Council of State to the Lord Mayor of London. We have received Derby House. divers informations that there is great neglect in the paving and scavengery of this city, and parts adjacent, whereby the convenient passage of people is hindered, and the ground laid for contagious and dangerous diseases. We are sorry for neglect of that care whereby this city was wont to be exemplary, and as it concerns the commonwealth much that this city should be free from contagious diseases, we recommend it to your care that the streets and channels be carefully paved and cleansed. [I. 94, p. 28.]

March 9. Council of State to Col. Whichcot, Governor of Windsor Castle. Derby House. We are informed that there are no sermons in the castle for the garrison and prisoners, and desire care may be taken for a supply; meantime we desire you to speak to Mr. Symons and Mr. Batchelor to preach there in turns. 7. The paper this day reported from the committee appointed to confer with the Navy Commissioners, containing an estimate for the setting out of eight ships, to be put into prosecution.

9. To report to the House that the committee of merchants which regulate the navy be desired to have (leave?) the management of the navy to the Navy Commissioners, as formerly, and to pursue the regulating of the Customs.

10. The generals at sea to be empowered to put such suspended officers of the navy into office as they think fit, and the Navy Commissioners to have order accordingly.

8. The Commissioners for the assessments to have copies of the Exhibits given in by Dr. Dorislaus, giving reasons why the merchants of Intercourse should not pay the taxes laid upon them.

13. The Earl of Denbigh, Sir Hy. Mildmay, Col. Jones, Ald. Pennington, Mr. Whitelock, and Mr. Leslie, to be a committee to look over the proofs of the merchants of Intercourse, for their non-payment of taxes.

14. The commission and instructions to the generals at sea, which were formerly sealed with the Admiralty seal, to be now sealed with that of the Council of State.

15. Form of an oath to bring before the Council all petitions, rolls, papers, and writings, concerning any desire, engagements, promises, or undertakings for bringing the late King to London, or for a personal treaty with him, or any subscriptions to any of the said papers, without concealment, erasure, or diminution of any part thereof, and to discover to the Council in whose hands any such writings are.

March 12.
Derby House.

16. Council of State to the Merchant Adventurers, and other merchant companies. Parliament having entrusted to us the keeping a good correspondence with foreign states, and the preserving of trade, we think that those employed on merchants' affairs, as ambassadors, consuls, &c., should be persons of approved fidelity and sufficiency, and well affected to the present government. We therefore wish you not to dispatch any such persons without first presenting their names to us, and receiving our express approbation. [I. 62, pp. 77-81.]

March 12.

Council of State to Hen. Parker, secretary to the company of Merchant Adventurers at Hamburg. There is a Council of State appointed by Parliament, to whom your letter to Mr. Speaker, with the enclosed from Hamburg, have been communicated; in it you manifest your affection to the safety of this nation, for which we thank you, being very glad you are where, by reason of your employment for the company, you have an opportunity of informing yourself, without suspicion, of what is in design, to the prejudice of this commonwealth. We doubt not but all means will be in all places used by the party of the late King, to recover their tyranny, and to hinder the settlement of this commonwealth, yet we trust, through your assistance, and the blessing of God, that we shall be preserved, and that they will be discovered and prevented. We desire you still to continue your care of discovery and information, and direct the same to this Council, to whom you may freely inform what you know, with assurance that it shall be kept secret. [I. 94, p. 30.]

March 12. Council of State to the Commissioners of Customs. By reason of Derby House. the ill administration of the affairs of the customs in the port of Bridgewater, great quantities of corn are transported to the rebels in Ireland, enhancing the price of corn in the country, whereby the poor people,—who suffer too much by the present dearth, though it were not increased by those treasonable practices of relieving the rebels,—may be stirred up to some dangerous insurrections. We therefore wish faithful officers to be placed in that and all other ports, and you to order that no corn be exported without special licence of Parliament or the Council of State, who will allow no such transportation, except for support of the forces in Ireland.

As all this transportation of corn is made under pretence of exportation from port to port, you are to order, in all ports where corn is shipped, that sufficient bond be given for its delivery in England or Wales, and certificates of the said delivery returned, or the bonds certified. [I. 94, pp. 30, 31.]

March 12. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. Mr. Hatsell, Augustus Derby House. Nicholls, and others who, upon the first news of the revolt of the Isle of Scilly, went thither from Cornwall, to know the state of the place, and to see if there might be any hope of recovery of it, were there kept prisoners, and after sent to Jersey, where they yet remain. We are sorry that any gentlemen should so long suffer for their affection to the commonwealth. If you take any persons at sea by whom you may make their exchange, do it with all expedition. Divers of our men, being taken, are carried into foreign parts where they suffer much hardship. We desire that such prisoners as you take may be used for their redemption, and in the meantime kept safely, for the security and good usage of those of ours who are prisoners abroad. [I. 94, pp. 31, 32.]

March 12. Council of State to Solomon Smith, Marshal of the Admiralty. Derby House. There are certain prizes brought into the Thames; we have not yet appointed anyone to dispose of the goods when they are adjudged, the authority by which the former Commissioners were constituted being now in this Council. You are therefore to take care that none of the goods be disposed of, or embezzled, and to order the late Commissioners for prize goods to be here on Thursday. [I. 94, p. 32.]

Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. The Parliament has resolved, for more effectual carrying on the war in Ireland, to send thither 12,000 men, whereof there shall be a certain number of foot, horse, and dragoons; but for their transport, all the ports, from the mouth of the Severn to the north of England, do not afford sufficient shipping, and if shipping be not prepared, they will continue here, to the burden of the country, and that place will want their service. If they can be early there, it will be a great advantage to our affairs, by taking the field before the enemy. Consider how sufficient shipping may be taken up and sent to Chester and Liverpool, and certify us how many ships, and of what burden will suffice, and at what rates, and how they may be had. [I. 94, p. 34.]

March 13. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. A Committee of the Council to be appointed to consider the ordinances already made for the militia for the counties, to sit constantly until their report is ready for the Council.

2. Col. Hutchinson, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Jones, Sir Wm. Masham, Sir Hy. Mildmay, Mr. Heveningham, Mr. Whitelock, and Mr. Lisle, to be the committee.

4. 600 muskets now at Liverpool to be issued out for arming Col. Tothill's regiment.

5. A test to be prepared for Col. Tothill and all other commanders going to Ireland, before they go.

6. Mr. Webster to speak with the Council concerning 400 pikes for arming Col. Tothill's regiment.

7. The Navy Commissioners to take care that the vessel taken from some belonging to Sicily, and brought into Plymouth, be prepared for service of the commonwealth with speed.

9. Sir Wm. Constable, Sir Hy. Mildmay, and Mr. Whitelock, to be a committee to speak with a gentleman who has business to communicate.

12. Mr. Holland to be desired to hasten the report of an ordinance to the House, which concerns the island of Jersey.

13. Sir Gilbert Pickering, Mr. Holland, and Col. Hutchinson to be added to the committee for the business of Jersey.

14. The paper brought in by Sir Hy. Vane, concerning some propositions of Mr. Holland, Surveyor of the Navy, referred to the committee yesterday appointed to carry on the navy and admiralty business.

16. The business of quartering the soldiers in Kent referred to the Lord General.

17. Mr. Sexby's bill of 15*l.*, for the expenses of shipping the Scots' Commissioners, to be paid.

20. A warrant for the secretaryship to be issued to Mr. Coyt-mor, to be signed by the Lord President, and sealed by the seal of this Council.

21. Mr. Whitelock, Sir Hy. Vane, Lord Lisle, Earl of Denbigh Mr. Martin, and Mr. Lisle to be a committee to consider what alliances this crown had with foreign states, and whether to continue the same, and on what terms.

22. The same committee to ask Mr. Milton if he will be the secretary for foreign languages.

23. The Lord General to order the guards appointed for defence of the Parliament to keep to their duty diligently.

24. Sir Hy. Mildmay to report to the House that the Prince Elector intends travelling to his own country on Thursday, and to inquire whether persons should not be sent to offer the civilities usual on the departure of princes and their ambassadors.

25. To report to the House that the Lord General and his council of war have been consulted with about the modelling the forces for Ireland, in pursuance with the order of the 9th March, and that he thinks nothing can be done until the Commander-in-Chief is nominated; the Council wishes to know the pleasure of the House concerning his nomination, which being determined, the rest will proceed with more expedition. [I. 62, pp. 82-87.]

March 13. Council of State to the Mayor of Plymouth. We have written Derby House. to Capt. Moulton to dispose of the prisoners in the small prize brought in by the Elizabeth frigate, either by exchange, commitment, or otherwise, till there can be a proceeding against them. [I. 94, p. 35.]

March 13. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. Wanting a greater Derby House. strength of shipping, we ordered the carpenters' work in eight ships which were not formerly designed for this summer's fleet to be taken in hand. Hearing that it would be months before all these ships could be ready, we ordered the four that could be first ready to be equipped with speed. Since then we find it necessary to have a strong fleet at sea with all expedition, and upon conference with some of your number, we were told that the eight ships might be ready in six weeks. The safety of the nation is much concerned in the effectual putting on this service, and we shall not omit anything for procuring the money with speed. If however the present state of our treasure cannot afford it so soon as the business requires, we know that such is your credit with those by whom these things are to be furnished, that it may supply the defect, and we doubt not but, from your affection to the commonwealth, you will readily improve it. And you may with the greater cheerfulness proceed herein, as we are resolved to improve all our reputation for procuring the money to disengage you. We therefore again desire you with all possible expedition to proceed in preparing and equipping those ships, for prevention of that mischief of which we are otherwise in danger. [I. 94, pp. 35, 36.]

VOL. I.

March 13. Council of State to Col. Willoughby. There is no affair before us of greater concern than expediting our fleet to sea, for want whereof the shipping of this nation is daily taken, by those pirates and rebels which abound in this and the Irish seas; but the business is much retarded for want of your presence at Portsmouth, there being no master of attendance there. You are therefore to repair thither forthwith, and use your utmost endeavour to send out that part of the fleet that is to go out from thence, which is very much retarded. [I. 94, p. 37.]

March 13. Council of State to Vice-Admiral Moulton. The Mayor of Plymouth intimates that the captain of the Elizabeth frigate has brought in there a small prize, a Jersey man-of-war. If you think she may be of use for Ireland or elsewhere, we will order the Navy Commissioners to set her out, and we desire you to use the 22 prisoners taken in her, either by exchange for ours, or employing them for the State, or commit them to the gaol until they can be proceeded against according to law.

We have formerly written you about sending ships to lie about Dublin and from thence to Chester water, to convoy some forces now ready to pass into Ireland. We recommend speedy dispatch, that those forces may not miscarry for want of convoy. [I. 94, p. 38.]

March 13. Council of State to the Army Committee. The garrison of Derby House. Boston wants powder. We desire you to order that, out of such stores as belong to the garrisons, it may be supplied with 20 barrels. [I. 94, p. 39.]

March 13. Council of State to the Committee of Kent. Concerning your Derby House. forces that are to be disbanded, order is taken for marching them out of your country; as to their arms, for which you desire an allowance, we hope that, as you are now freed from men, you will be content they shall march away with their arms, the rather as they are again to be employed for the service of the State. Although your county suffered much in the last war, yet we conceive it has been in your power to put the charge of it upon the authors, and believe that the county of Kent has still such an affection to the public service, that they will be very willing that those arms which have served to settle their peace should be again employed for producing the like good effect in Ireland. [I. 94, p. 39.]

March 13. Council of State to the Army Committee. As there is great Derby House. want of pikes for the forces with Major-General Lambert in the north, we desire that 600 may be sent forthwith to the magazine at Hull for him. [I. 94, p. 40.]

March 13. Council of State to Lieut.-Col. Venables. There is a regiment of Derby House. foot under Col. Tothill ready for transportation, only wanting arms; we therefore desire you, out of the stores in your custody, to furnish Col. Tothill with 600 muskets, swords, and bandoleers, and 400 pikes and swords. If they be not in your custody, certify us. [I. 94, p. 40.]

They are also to consider the letter of John Holt, victualler of the navy at Portsmouth, touching the scarcity of pork, and desiring to furnish three pounds of beef and peas, in lieu of two pounds of pork, for one day a week.

Order that the secretary acquaint Dr. Walker with their Navy Commissioners' letter touching the master of the hoy, and desire his opinion as to the best way of bringing Wooley and others guilty therein to trial. With note that Dr. Walker thought the business should be examined in the Admiralty, and if Wooley should be guilty, that he should be proceeded against by a commission of oyer and terminer. fecting their compositions. Delinquents formerly excepted from pardon, but now admitted to composition, except such as have already compounded, to pay one full moiety of the value of their estates. [Printed with March 14, Nos. 26 and 27, supra.]

March 19. Order in the Admiralty Committee that Sir Hen. Vane, jun., report to the Council of State the reply of the Navy Commissioners, that they concur with the Admirals in their desire of not observing Lent, nor making any distribution of time or meats, as a custom savouring too much of the superstition of former times, and of much discontent to the mariners. They also concur in taking away the abatements on Friday nights, the practice of the latter abatement from the mariners being begotten by the covetous desires of the contractors for victuals, though coloured with specious pretence of abstinence and religion. [I. 123, pp. 18, 19.]

42. The petition of the masters and seamen, recommended to this Council from the Committee of Merchants, to be recommended to the generals of the fleet.

March 20. Derby House. 43. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. It is desired that there be no further observance of Lent among the mariners, and also that they have full allowance on Fridays. You are to sell to the best advantage the 24 casks of beef and pork returned as too short cut for the navy. Also there being want of pork for the ships to be victualled at Portsmouth, you shall order the victualler to give three pounds of beef for two of pork. [I. 62, pp. 92-99.]

March 20. Derby House. Council of State to the Admiralty Judges. By the enclosed you will see the care taken by Mr. Boreman and Major Rolph to preserve a ship in danger of wreck in the Isle of Wight, for the use of the proprietors, which we much commend in them, the contrary being too frequent, whereby the justice of this nation is blemished in foreign parts. We wish fit commissioners to be appointed for the examination of that business, that the proprietors may have speedy justice. [I. 94, p. 41.]

March 20. Derby House. Council of State to the Sequestration Committee in county Worcester. Col. Dingley's petition represents that he is in great arrear of pay for service in your county, and we hear that he has done good service during the late war, and got much in debt by raising forces last summer, when your county and the parts adjacent were in danger. Also that the sequestrations of your county are in your dispose, by ordinance of Parliament, for payment of the forces of your county. We commend Col. Dingley to you for retribution, that he and others may more cheerfully serve the commonwealth. [I. 94, pp. 41, 42.]

March 20. Council of State to the Generals at Sea or Capt. Moulton. By the Derby House. enclosed petition of Luke Lucy, merchant of London, you will see what is suggested concerning the ship Crower, of Reppon, in Holstein, taken by Capt. Rob. Hawkes, and now in his custody in Mount's Bay. The petitioner is a responsible merchant in London. Aberdovey, the port to which he was bound, is in great want of corn, having little but what is brought by sea. We have therefore ordered that the said ship and lading be discharged to go on her voyage. As the enemies' hands are very busy in those seas, we desire you to order a convoy for her, until she be out of their danger. We have ordered a certificate to be delivered in to us of his delivery of the cargo at Aberdovey. [I. 94, p. 42; 62, p. 95.]

March 20. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. There is now in the Derby House. Thames the ship Whiteboy, freighted by the contractors for Ireland with provisions for Dublin, and they are to have convoy for provision ships. We therefore desire you to appoint convoy for her, taking also the Charles now in the river, laden with corn for Dublin upon the account of particular men. [I. 94, p. 43.]

March 20. Council of State to the Sheriffs and Justices of Peace of counties
Derby House. Suffolk and Essex, and to the Mayor of Sudbury. There have been near Sudbury divers riotous meetings of disorderly persons who have cut down timber belonging to Thomas Windham, of Norfolk, which may be dangerous to the commonwealth, as being apt to give a beginning to insurrections. We desire you to use the power which the laws have put into your hand, to preserve the peace of the nation; and if disorderly persons still tumultuously meet, to apprehend and commit them to custody, and take order that they may be proceeded against according to law. [I. 94, pp. 43, 44.]

March 21. Order in Parliament that the information given to the House, as to the abuse in buying up the coals in the ships just come in, be referred to the Council of State, who are to punish the offenders, and prevent the mischiefs that may ensue.

March 21.

Order in Parliament,—on the report of Sir Hen. Vane, jun., from the Council of State, of a list of the fleet appointed for the summer expedition; an account where they now are, and when they will be ready to put to sea; an estimate of the charge of the whole fleet for the summer expedition, and the Council's resolutions (1) that four of the great ships mentioned in the estimate and formerly appointed for sea, manned with 1,000 men, shall not be set out, and shall only be ready to be employed on order; (2) that—whereas demand is made in the estimate for 23 merchant ships, manned with 1,650 men, in place whereof some of the State's ships are employed in this expedition;—so many of them as 1,000 men were intended to man shall be forborne to be set out, and only so many set to sea as shall bear 650 men; (3) that in consideration of the abatement of such 2,000 men, the whole fleet, which before was to be set out for six months, shall be continued for eight, which the estimate will bear, and that the four great ships forborne shall be proceeded with, and be in readiness to set to sea; also, on report of an estimate of the debts and credits of the navy;—

That the House approve of the setting of the summer's fleet as thus presented, and in settling moneys, will take effectual course for supplying the sums demanded in the estimate, for the year's service of the naval affairs, and at the times propounded.

That the Excise Commissioners pay to the use of the navy 10,000*l.*, in part of the moneys charged on the Excise for the 300*l.* a week on the arrears of the Isle of Ely and Croyland, and that the Navy Committee see this done.

That the treasurers at Goldsmiths' Hall pay to the use of the navy the 8,000*l.* residue of the 40,000*l.* formerly ordered for the navy out of the 50,000*l.* to the Scots; and if, upon the report of that business now in Mr. Allen's hands, it appear that such 8,000*l.* ought not to have been paid by that treasury, then the same shall be repaid to the said treasurer, out of the moneys belonging to the navy, and the Navy Committee is required to see it done.

That the personal estate of the late King, Queen, and Prince be inventoried, appraised, and sold, except such parcels as shall be thought fit to be preserved for the use of the State, and the Council of State to consider what parcels are fit to be so reserved. [I. 87, pp. 31–33.]

March 21.

Order in Parliament that all delinquents who have been members of either House, and all judges, officers, &c. in the common or civil law, and all serjeants, counsellors, attorneys, doctors, advocates, &c., and all bishops, clergymen, masters and fellows of colleges, hospitals, or schools, and also Humphrey Bennet, Esq., Sir Edw. Ford, Sir George Vaughan, and all other persons named in the fourth qualification of the propositions sent to Hampton Court, (except those included in any articles whereof they have the benefit,) pay one full third of the value of their estates, and other delinquents one sixth. Any person not yet sequestered, who conceives he is not liable to sequestration, and was not engaged in the latter war, to come in and declare his case to the commissioners for compositions before 1 July 1649, when he will be allowed to compound, unless impeached meantime.

No promissory oath shall be imposed upon compounders, as a condition without which they may not compound.

Persons who have compounded, and have concealed or undervalued any part of their estate, are to discover it before 1 June, or have it forfeited. All persons engaged in the latter war against the Parliament, and not in any former engagement, are to pay one sixth of the value of their estates, except those included in any qualification; those who have compounded are to pay the rest of their fines; and a sixth of their estates as well. Those who perfect their composition by the day limited are to be exempted from payment of the fifth and twentieth parts. [Printed, March 14, Nos. 27, 28.]

Derby House. There have been many letters to you from the late committee at Derby House, for promoting the assessing and collecting of the moneys for Ireland, upon the ordinance of 16 Feb. 1647-8, yet little progress is made; in divers wards no assessment at all, and in most, very little paid in. The condition of Ireland cannot bear these delays, and we are very sorry that this city should show so great a disaffection to a service of this nature, or that we should have to put forth power to compel what sense of duty should have effected. We therefore require you to call before you those who have not paid in their several sums, to fine the assessors and collectors, and to cause those fines to be forthwith levied, that the work may proceed with effect; otherwise we shall adopt such a course against you, as we desire you not to give us cause to practise. We enclose the names of the assessors in certain wards, against whom we require you to proceed. [I. 94, pp. 44, 45.]

March 22. Council of State to the Commissioners of cos. Hants, Devon, and Derby House. Cornwall. To similar effect. The affairs of Ireland require that money to be paid in by 1 May, and we have commanded the agent to return us the names of those who shall not have done their duty, if, at that time, the money be not paid. [I. 94, pp. 46, 47.]

March 22. Council of State to the Officers of the Customs and Excise at Derby House. Barnstaple. We are very sensible of your sad loss of many vessels, and of 11 in particular lately taken. We hope there is such care taken for the future that the seas shall be free for trade, there being a sufficient navy to go forth this summer to sea, and we doubt not but you will reap the benefit of their protection, and the revolvers and rebels be disabled from further mischief. We have sent your letters to the generals who are to go to sea, and recommended them to take special care for preserving the trade and navigation. [I. 94, p. 46.]

March 22. ADMIRALTY COMMITTEE. Day's Proceedings.

Order that Dr. Walter Walker, Admiralty advocate, prepare the draft of an Act empowering the Admiralty judges to try, by commission of oyer and terminer, such delinquents as have been actors and abettors in carrying away any part of the fleet to the enemy, the

He also reported an estimate of the debts and credits of the Navy. Also resolutions of the House of Commons, approving of the report for the summer's fleet, and promising to supply the sums demanded for this year's naval service at the times propounded, and their orders for payments by the Commissioners of Excise. [See the orders at full on p. 42.]

Order that the Navy Commissioners give warrants to enter upon the books, in the respective yards, all persons appointed by the generals as pursers, boatswains, gunners, carpenters, cooks, &c., in the expedition of the summer's fleet. [I. 123, pp. 20, 21.]

March 24. Order in Parliament that the Council of State give such rewards to the several officers, on their return home, as they shall think fit, but not exceeding the proportion mentioned in their report. [I. 87, p. 33; 123, p. 22.]

March 24. Order of the Admiralty Committee that Sir Hen. Vane report to the Council of State that John Sparrow, appointed by them to be joined with Thos. Smith, as collector for prize goods, complains that he is hindered in his office by John Hill's continuing to act therein, and asks for a peremptory order for Hill to desist. [I. 123, p. 22.]

Robert Tothill, to be faithful to the commonwealth, without King or House of Peers, to obey the orders of Parliament, Council of State, or his superiors appointed thereby, to do nothing to prejudice the commonwealth, and to discover any conspiracies against it. [I. 62, pp. 112-120.]

March 26. Council of State to Major-General Lambert. There is great want of guns at Berwick; for supply thereof, we desire that the guns at Pontefract Castle, except two and one mortar piece, belonging to the garrison of Hull, may be delivered to such person as Sir Arthur Hesilrigge shall appoint, for Berwick. [I. 94, p. 47.]

March 26. Council of State to the Navy Committee. A great part of the summer's fleet are ready to sail. The usual course is that money should be sent with them for paying of sick men, &c. We desire that 1,500*l.* be provided, 500*l.* forthwith advanced, and 200*l.* for each of the three generals, that they may not be forced to lay out their own money to fit themselves for their going to sea. As victuals for the fleet are ready to be put on board, and only money is wanting for them, we desire it to be provided, that all the ships may be dispatched, whereof there is so great a necessity, in regard of the piracies committed upon shipping. [I. 94, p. 47, 48.]

March 26. Council of State to the Lord General. Montgomery and Hawarden Castles in Flintshire may prove dangerous to the commonwealth if surprised by the enemy, in causing a diversion of our forces for their reducement, besides the expense of blood and treasure. We desire you to take care that they may be kept from surprise. Chirk Castle, the dwelling house of Sir Thos. Middleton, is also in danger; we therefore desire you to send for him, and order that it be also kept safe from surprise. [I. 94, p. 48.]

Franchise, upon 500 acres whereof are growing good and young timber trees, oak, ash, &c. very necessary for building ships, the place lying within 16 or 18 miles of several sea towns. The trees are returned to you in a survey much overvalued, and therefore not like to be suddenly sold; yet, as they may be of much more use to be preserved for shipping than sold, timber being everywhere so much decayed, we desire you to forbear the sale thereof until further orders, we having appointed a navy surveyor to view them, and report thereon. Certify us how far the preserving that timber will prejudice the sale of the lands. [I. 94, p. 49.]

March 26. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. That the generals
Derby House. at sea may be fitted with necessaries for prosecution of the enemies, we desire you to order four fire ships to be fitted at Plymouth, and also some chasing sails, for want whereof the enemy (being themselves so provided) go from our ships at pleasure, when they attempt to give them chase. Upon accidents happening to the masts of ships, they are often forced to come in far from their station for repair, to their great loss of time. We desire provision to be made of masts at Falmouth, Tenby, or Pembroke. You are to enter upon the check, for this summer's service, such officers as shall be recommended to you by the generals at sea. [I. 94, p. 50.]

March 26. Council of State to Capt. Nicholls, Governor of Chepstow Castle.
Derby House. The mayor and commonalty of Bristol write that there is great waste of timber in the Forest of Dean, the only place in those parts where there is any timber for shipping, which is much decayed in most places in England, and should be preserved with so much the greater care. We are also informed that where the wood is cut for iron works, there is no care taken to maintain the copses for a future supply. We have appointed Geo. Bromish, Col. Rob. Berry, Capt. Robt. Bishop, Rich. Aldworth, Luke Hodges, Joseph Jackson, and Hugh Browne, Esqs., and Rich. Jones, iron master of Bristol, to take care for its preservation, and you are to assist them if they meet with any refractory to their orders, and either compel them to obedience, or send them up to the Council in safe custody, with the cause and proofs, that they may be proceeded against. [I. 94, p. 52.]

March 26. Admiralty Committee to Sir Hardress Waller. We referred your

The vessel is to be secured according to the Admiral's report, which we enclose. [I. 123, p. 22.]

March 27. Order in Parliament,—the House being informed of a scandalous and seditious book, entitled, "The second part of England's new Chains discovered," which has been read to the House,—that, as it contains much false, scandalous, and reproachful matter, and is highly seditious, and destructive to the present Government, and tends to division and mutiny in the army, and the raising of a new war, and to hinder the present relief of Ireland, and the continuing of free quarter,—the authors, contrivers, and framers thereof are guilty of high treason, and shall be proceeded against as traitors, and all that join with them.

That this declaration be printed and published forthwith; that the Council of State take care for proclaiming and publishing such declaration; also find out the authors, printers, and publishers of the book, and proceed therein as they find necessary, for preventing tumults, and for preservation of the peace, and give a speedy account to the House.

Until the rest be transported, we desire you to take all care that the country may be no more burdened than can be avoided. [I. 94, p. 56.]

March 29. Council of State to Col. Duckenfield, Governor of Chester, Peter Derby House. Warburton, and Roger Wilbraham [and Col. Brooker]. We regret the disorderly carriage of some soldiers belonging to Col. Tothill's regiment, designed for Ireland, whereby the people of the country suffer much vexation. It is their unhappiness that they are in the way to Ireland, through which the soldiers are sent, and where they have to stay until they can be transported ; and though all they take be paid for, yet their passing through and staying for their passage is trouble enough ; for among so many, some will be disorderly, and their officers cannot be in all places with them. We have now dispatched the colonel, and given him special charge to keep good discipline, and he has promised to cashier all the disaffected or disorderly.

That they may be no charge to the country, we have ordered Mr. Whalley, for so long as they wait for wind and weather, or for shipping, to pay for each private soldier 6*d.* a day for quarters to the parties where they quarter, and not to the soldiers themselves. We have sent him money, and if that be not sufficient, upon their shipping away and the return of the account, we will provide more. You may object that formerly the State allowed 6*d.* a day, but the people had it not ; that was because the officers received the money for quarters, and did not always discharge it, so we have now put it into another course. [I. 94, p. 58 ; 62, p. 122.]

March 29. Council of State to Mr. Whalley. We are very sensible what Derby House. Cheshire must suffer were Col. Tothill's regiment only to pass through, much more when they make so long a stay, and are so disorderly. We shall now speedily dispatch them away, and meantime desire that the 6*d.* a day allowed for their quarter may be paid to the parties who quarter them. Tell all the officers to take care to keep good discipline among the soldiers, and make them content to receive convenient diet, and not to compel provision beyond the rate of their pay, more especially in this time of dearth. [I. 94, p. 59.]

Phip, of London, for payment of 520*l.* in June 1642; that the Marquis, having by his delinquency, forfeited his estate, and thereby become unable to pay, upon an address by Sir John to Parliament, an ordinance was passed, 25 May 1647, for payment of the debt out of the sequestration or sale of the Marquis's lands; that upon application by Sir John to the committee in whose power such estate lies for payment, he was desired to forbear for a while, in regard of some extraordinary occasions they then had for money; that in June last, he again sent to the committee, who showed him an ordinance of 5 June 1648, whereby the Marquis's estate, amongst others, was vested in trustees for raising 50,000*l.* for Ireland, and no provision made for this debt, although provision was made for other debts and engagements of the said lands. As their continuing there may produce some inconveniences between the country and them, we desire you to remove them to some place convenient for their transportation, if upon inquiry into the dispositions of the men, you judge them fit for service, which we much doubt; otherwise they may be disbanded. [I. 123, p. 28.]

March ? 34. Observations by ——— offered to the Committee of the Council of State, touching the causes of the present decay of the cloth trade of England, in Germany and the Netherlands, with expedients for removing obstructions in that trade. The chief cause of the decay arises from the great quantity of wool and fuller's earth which have lately been conveyed out of England, by which, and the emigration of such a number of clothworkers, weavers, &c. to those parts, the manufacture of cloth has very much advanced among the Dutch. They have set up in Hamburg, and Altona, a small town adjoining, above 500 weavers' looms, and Hamburg has lately raised a very great sum, as a stock for setting up all sorts of cloth manufacture amongst them.

Of late years, woollen manufacture of England has been sent over to the Dutch much falsified, which makes them more vigorous to set up clothing amongst themselves; and the new draperies, as bays, serges, Spanish cloth, kersies, northern dozens, &c., not being yet reduced to any rule for length and breadth, it is judged a great hindrance to the trade in general. The Dutch and other strangers have of late put the English arms upon the covers of their coarsest and falsest-made cloth, which they transport for Russia and other parts, thereby to lessen the esteem of the English cloth, and strive to fabric their own made cloth in all parts, after the English manner. This might be partly remedied by restraining the transport of wool and fuller's earth, calling home of such emigrants, and prohibiting their departing for the future, as without their skill and assistance, the Dutch can do but little.

If the committee would also recommend the Company of Merchant Adventurers to the Parliament, for an Act to settle their government it would help much to repair the decays in trade; for then the company would not only be able to suppress the unskilful merchant, who has given all advantage to the stranger by debasing the staple commodities of this land, but likewise silence the strangers, in their several residences, from further questioning their constitution and privileges, granted under another government and not yet fully confirmed by this. Council of State to the Sheriffs of Counties. By the enclosed declaration of the House, you will see their sense of the libel or pamphlet therein mentioned; that people may not be corrupted and drawn from their duty by it, but be preserved from guilt, rather than brought to punishment for it, you are to take care that the printed declarations sent herewith are publicly proclaimed in the market towns within your county, as well within the liberties as without, upon market day, and then affixed in the usual and most public places, so that none may pretend ignorance therein, it being a thing of great consequence to the peace and safety of the nation. Council of State to the Lord General. It is of great consequence to the commonwealth that Dover Castle should be safe against attempts of the enemy; upon conference with the Governor, we thought that three companies of foot should be appointed, for the garrison there, at Sandgate Castle, and Artcliffe Fort. Let the company of foot now under Capt. Swan, and lately marched out of Kent, return to Dover Castle, as one of the three, the foot formerly under command of Capt. Bethell, be put under Capt. April 3. Council of State to Col. Tothill. Several counties by which your Derby House. regiment marched complain of the great insolencies and disaffection of many of your soldiers, who openly profess to have served the enemy, and say they will do so again when there shall be occasion.
Take care that none so affected may be transported; and for the better discovery of them, offer the same test to the officers and soldiers of your regiment which was taken by yourself, disbanding such as refuse it. [I. 94, p. 65.]

April 3. Council of State to Col. Reynolds. Some horse are wanted with Derby House. expedition for Dublin, to strengthen the forces with Col. Jones, until the body of the forces be ready; a contract having been made by you with the Committee of Derby House, to transport a regiment of horse, we require you to march forthwith to Liverpool, to be transported to Ireland. As however many of that regiment have committed many insolencies, and manifested disaffection, we desire you to discharge all such; for their better discovery, offer them the test enclosed, and discharge such as shall not take it. [I. 94, p. 66.]

April 3. Council of State to the Committee of Kent. The regiment of Sir Derby House. Michael Livesey, raised in your county in the late troubles, have now marched to Sussex, being kept undissolved for that service of Ireland. To enable them to march to that service, we desire they may receive the same sum for their marching that you were to have given them for disbanding, and we have ordered them to return to your county to receive the money, so that thereupon they may either march away to the water side, or be disbanded. [I. 94, p. 67.]

April 3. Council of State to the Sheriffs of Counties. Although God has Derby House. so manifestly owned the cause, asserted and maintained by Parliament, of the people's just freedom, and has twice, in two several wars, broken all the enemies' forces, and determined the cause against them, and brought the principal authors of our troubles to just and public punishment; yet such is the malignity of many men's spirits, and so far are they degenerated from true Englishmen or good patriots, that they cease not to contrive how they may again interrupt our peace, and embroil this nation in a new war, the misery whereof cannot but be apprehended with a very quick sense, from the fresh remembrance of what is but lately past; and it will be a sufficient motive to all that love liberty and peace, to put forth their utmost endeavours to preserve the peace of the nation.

Many of these men, in divers places of the kingdom, have meetings for consultations at horse races, fairs, &c., under pretence of recreations, where their designs are laid, and their mischief prepared for a sudden breaking out. Knowing that last year's wars, and the insurrections in several counties had in great part their birth by such meetings, we recommend the case to you, and desire you to have a watchful eye upon such meetings, and take special care that nothing be there done to promote such designs. If your own force is not able to suppress such unlawful meetings, you are to call in any forces in pay of the Parliament that shall be in your county. [*I. 94,

Mason, and Thos. Mytton. To similar effect. Also we have written to all the sheriffs of England and Wales recommending the preservation of the peace of their several counties; but not knowing how far their power may suffice, we desire you also to have a watchful eye upon all such meetings and conflux of disaffected persons, and to take care to break them up, and let nothing be done that may tend to the prejudice of the commonwealth. If the sheriff desire forces from you, you are to give him assistance. [I. 94, p. 69.]
- Derby House. April 3. Council of State to the Ordnance Officers. Sir Hardress Waller tells us that there are near 100 guns at Pendennis Castle, but the carriages of most of them decayed, for supply whereof he wants timber out of the Forest of Dean; but there is there little or no elm, which is the most proper wood for that work, and besides the timber there ought to be preserved. We therefore desire you to consider how the said carriages may be best supplied. [I. 94, p. 73.]

A like order given in June last to Peter Needham failed of effect, because Needham was forced away by the revolt of the governor of Scarborough, embarked with his books and papers for London in a ship of Scarborough, which was cast away, and all were drowned; therefore the bills of exchange have not been returned, and Nesfield deposes that none of the money was paid. When the troop was raised by the said captain, the horses were said to be taken from the country, without authority. If you upon the place find it so, and see cause for it, order the horses to be restored to those from whom they were taken. There is also a troop of horse of Capt. Carter, who was lately in Lancashire, whither there was an order sent to disband them, but they have marched into Cheshire, where they now are; we have written to Col. Prize Office.

Report of Thos. Smith and John Sparrow, Collectors for Prize Goods to the Admiralty Committee, upon reference of Captain Peacock's petition, for thirds of the Mary and Joseph, Mary of Antrim, and the London, seized as prize. We find that the Mary and Joseph is condemned to him, and his company alone, and not to Capt. Willoughby, who was in consort with him; and though it may be true that Capt. Willoughby ought to have been interested in that prize, yet as the examinations upon which she was adjudged, did not say anything to that purpose, she was condemned to Capt. Peacock, for the judges cannot proceed otherwise than according to the evidence before them, and it is the Captains' fault the examinations are not more full. Till Monday we had not the list to set out the thirds; before we pay the same (which is a very small sum, the vessel being a man-of-war of little value), tell us whether to pay the thirds according to the sentence, to Capt. Peacock alone, or to Capt. Willoughby, who is interested with him, but who makes no pretence thereto.

The Mary Antrim was taken on 14 Feb. as Capt. Peacock gives in, and was wholly condemned to him, and has since been set out at Plymouth as a man-of-war, her appraisement being 318*l*. The mariners may complain of delay, but we, for their accommodation, sent to Plymouth for an account of the charges laid out there, so as to make up the account, and set out their thirds as soon as ordered.

As for the London, it is a mistake in Capt. Peacock to say she is condemned, though her goods are; but whether Capt. Peacock and the mariners are interested in her taking is not in us to determine, she being condemned wholly to Capt. Willoughby and his mariners, for the reasons before expressed concerning the Mary and Joseph. We think, however, that Capt. Peacock and his mariners ought to have equal shares with Capt. Willoughby. It only needed the giving timely advertisement upon oath of the parties that seized her, but the goods being condemned, the sentence cannot be altered unless the suit should begin anew. It is in your power, when it is made apparent by Capt. Peacock and some of his company that he was at the taking, to order whether he should have thirds; but we wonder he should demand thirds, when he knows it is impossible they can be set out, the goods being but newly landed, and not sold and the ship as yet not condemned. April 4. Council of State to the Ordnance Officers at the Tower. Over
Derby House. and above the arms formerly allowed, you are to deliver on board every first-rate ship going in the summer's fleet, 40 muskets or snaphances; to every second-rate 30; third-rate and the new frigates 25; frigates of the fourth-rate 15; and those of the fifth and sixth rate 10; with match, bullets, and bandoleers proportionable, the gunners indenting with you for the same as usual. [I. 123, p. 30.]

April 4. 43. Admirals Robt. Blake and Ri. Deane to the Navy Commissioners.
Westminster. Enclosed is Capt. Moulton's account of the victuals required for the Leopard; as you know the prejudice that will accrue if she should be forced to come into port for want thereof, we desire that order may be sent forthwith for supplying them at Plymouth or Falmouth. The supernumeraries borne on her all the winter made her number 200. Although order was given five weeks since for graving the Garland and Lyon, the work was only done last week, but Col. Willoughby has satisfied us respecting the delay. [I. 123, p. 30.]

April 5. Order in Parliament,—upon the report of Alderman Wilson from the Council of State on the paper of the Spanish Ambassador touching 50,000*l.* of the Spaniards, taken by the Parliament out of the ship Sta. Clara,—that the Council of State consider the whole business, and also the petition of Col. Manwaring and Huett Leute, and hear the adventurers to the Isle of Providence, and all other persons who make any claim to such money, and report. [I. 87, p. 40.]

April 5. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

2. Warrant to be issued to the Treasurer of Ireland to pay Sir Hen. Tichborne 200*l.*, as a reward for his services at Dunganhill; also another for 300*l.* on account of 1,500*l.* laid out by him for the service of the State; his accounts to be viewed and certified by Mr. Beeke. The test is also to be subscribed by him, and he dispatched away to his command.

3. Provision of wheat and cheese for Ireland to be made, and the Irish committee to dispatch some one to contract for them.

4. Mr. Bostock to stay any person at the post-house who shall call for letters directed to Edw. Browne.

5. The Irish committee to appoint some fit person to take up ships in Holland, for transportation of provisions and horses to Ireland.

6. The Surveyor of Forts to view those in the Isle of Wight, and certify thereon.

7. The account of things wanting in the several castles and forts in the Isle of Wight to be reported to the House.

8. The petition of Edw. Burrowes, gunmaker, for leave to transport some small bird pieces to Barbary, granted.

11. The petition of Mr. Harvey of Lyme referred to the Irish committee.

12. The general's letter concerning the employment of certain persons at sea to be reported to the House. [I. 62, pp. 152–154.]

April 5. Council of State to the Army Committee. It is of great consequence that the northern garrisons should be supplied with all things requisite for defence. The particulars contained in the enclosed are necessary, and we therefore desire you to cause those provisions to be made, and delivered forthwith to persons appointed by Sir Arthur Hesilrigge, to receive and convey them to the several places for which they are designed. [I. 94, p. 70.]
Derby House.

April 6. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. Dr. Utie to be committed to the Gatehouse, for holding correspondence with enemies of the commonwealth beyond sea.

2. Mr. Scott to report on the petition of Lady Carlisle to-morrow.

3. Sir Arthur Hesilrigge to attend to-morrow, with his report.

4. Also Messrs. Estwicke and Thomson, and the other contractors for Ireland.

5. The consideration of all loose troops of horse not regimented, referred to the Irish Committee and the Lord General.

6. To report to the House that there is a great want of money for the affairs of Ireland, and that some of their members ought to be sent into the city, to procure an advance upon the credits now prepared.

8. The fortifications of Plymouth to be demolished, the soldiers now there paid off, and the Lord General to put such forces into the fort and island as he shall judge fit.

9. Sir Arthur Hesilrigge to report to the House that 1,300*l.* is wanted for payment of the garrison at Plymouth. [I. 62, pp. 156-159.]

April 6. Council of State to Lord Chandos. Order was given to make Sudeley Castle untenable, but it still remains in condition dangerous to the commonwealth, if it should be surprised by any disaffected persons. We desire you forthwith to take care that it be put into such a condition that it may be neither a charge to the commonwealth to keep it, nor danger to have it kept against them. We have referred it to Sir Wm. Constable to see that it is sufficiently unfortified, and to appoint you a time in which it may be done. [I. 94, p. 71.]
Derby House.

April 6. Council of State to John Nowell, John Moore, and Hen. Hargrevey. Similar order for Clithero Castle. The powder, ammunition, and guns now there to be conveyed to Liverpool, and safely laid up. [I. 94, p. 70.]
Derby House.

April 6. ADMIRALTY COMMITTEE. Day's Proceedings.

Order that Dr. Walker consider the late Act and ordinances concerning men-of-war and other vessels trading with the enemy; and where they do not agree, draw up an Act; also any amendments necessary in the late Act for encouragement of merchants and seamen. [I. 123, p. 30.]

April 6. Westminster. 44. Admirals Ri. Deane and Robt. Blake to the Navy Commissioners. You having contracted for the Rebecca ketch to serve the fleet in this expedition, it is assigned by us to attend the Triumph and other ships coming into Tilbury Hope, as soon as they are fitted to go to sea; we desire order for her speedy victualling for 16 men for three months, the captain affirming that he cannot stow a greater proportion. For better enabling her to do service, we have added five supernumeraries, making her present number as before. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]
- April 6. Westminister. 45. Admirals Ri. Deane and Robt. Blake to the Navy Commissioners. The Council of State having ordered the fitting out of the Saint Cleer, Warspite frigate, and Galliot hoy, in lieu of merchant ships, we have appointed Samuel Howett to the St. Cleer, William Wheatley to the Warspite, and Rich. Pittocke to the Galliot hoy. As their being at sea is of importance, we warrant your desire forthwith to the master shipwright, for the carpenter's work to be done upon them; as also for the stores and victuals. We have authorised the officers to go on board, for the better hastening of them out. There is some mistake about the St. Cleer; you offer her as a vessel fit to carry 16 guns, when such is not the case. Pray certify what ship you mean. [1 page.]
- April 7. 46. Act for raising 90,000*l.* out of 120,000*l.* required a month for maintenance of forces raised by authority of Parliament for the service of England and Ireland, for six months from 25 Mar. to 29 Sept. 1649; ordering the levy of sums specified upon the several counties and towns, and appointing county and town commissioners therefor; the proportions for the last three months slightly differing from those for the first three. [Printed, 57 pages.]
- April 7. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.
1. Mr. Estwicke and the other Irish contractors to attend next Monday.
 2. The Navy Commissioners to provide a small man-of-war for defence of the coast about Rye, as they have suffered much prejudice about there for want of one. [Also Vol. I., No. 47.]
 3. Messrs. Martin, Scott, Walton, and Lord Grey to be a committee for providing saltpetre, without making it at home.
 4. The militia business to be considered next Monday.
 5. The petition of Lieut.-Col. Owen O'Connolly to be reported to the House.
 6. The case of the prisoners in the Tower to be considered next Monday.
 8. Lady Rutland to have time until next post to acquaint the Earl of Rutland with the Council's order concerning the demolition of Belvoir Castle. [I. 62, pp. 100, 101.] bound from Munster to Bristol, and belonging to Rich. Vickris, Hugh Browne, Joseph Jackson, and other merchants of Bristol; and upon security given by the owners to pay treble the value of the goods so appraised, in case of condemnation, to stand by the judgments of the Admiralty Court, and to pay what the goods and vessels are appraised at, or such salvage as the court shall set,—to order the collectors for prize goods at Bristol and Milford to deliver back such vessels and goods to the merchants aforesaid. [I. 123, p. 32.]

April 7. Order by the Council of State for Capt. Peacock and his Derby House. company to receive their thirds from the capture of the Mary Antrim, now called the Tiger's Whelp, employed in the service of the State, which was condemned as prize, appraised at 316*l.*, and reported upon by the collectors for prize goods to the Admiralty Committee. [I. 123, p. 33.]

April 7. Council of State to the Committee of Kent. You know how Derby House. much the interest of the commonwealth of your county is concerned that the castle of Dover, and the forts belonging to it, should be in a safe posture. We have taken care for a sufficient garrison to be placed there, of three companies, and we desire them to be paid out of the sequestrations of your county, until further order is taken; also that a minister, surgeon, commissary of the stores, and sufficient number of gunners be appointed for that garrison; both pay and provision of fire and candle to be made out of the same sequestrations. Also the governor of the castle, Col. Sydney, is to be paid the same entertainment formerly paid to the governors of the castle. [I. 94, p. 74.]

April 7. Council of State to Capt. Robert Bishop. Cornet Pinke and Derby House. other suspicious persons are lately come to Bristol, to be transported into Ireland, and have contracted with the master of a ship bound for New England, to be landed in Munster, for which they are to pay 10*l.* a man. Their ordinary discourse is nothing but bitter invectives against Parliament, and the manner of their living so extremely riotous that there is just ground of suspicion that they go thither to join a disaffected party, but fly from hence to avoid inquiry about a robbery lately committed in London, in which a great sum of money and many precious goods were taken from Mons. Le Mot. We therefore desire you to apprehend Pinke and his assistants, seize his and their horses and arms, and search them, and all trunks, boxes, &c. belonging to them, for money, rings, jewels, letters, and papers, and secure them and their persons until further orders. You are also to examine the master of the ship in which they were going, and if he refuses to give any account concerning them, to stay his ship until he does so. As they intend going away next week, you must use expedition. [I. 94, p. 75.]

8. Wm. Fry's letter to Mr. Hill to be sent to the generals.

Proposition to be made to the contractors for Ireland;—viz., to furnish for the corn already brought into the Thames to be sent to Ireland, 5,000*l.*, whereof 1,000*l.* to be paid to-morrow, another 1,000*l.* on Thursday, another 1,000*l.* on Saturday, and 2,000*l.* this day week; to be repaid out of the remainder of the 120,000*l.* after the former contract is satisfied, for repayment of which a warrant will be issued. The Council conceives this cannot prejudice them, as their whole sum for goods sent away is already reimbursed, and they are now receiving their money and interest. The service being of great concernment, it is desired that this proposition is complied with, otherwise Mr. Estwick will be expected to give his reasons for putting so much disreputation upon the ordinance for that 120,000*l.*, as to say that 1,000*l.* could not be had upon it. [I. 62, pp. 162–166.]

April 9.
Derby House.

49. Warrant by the Council of State to the Navy Commissioners, to keep Thos. Arkinstall on the ordinary as master of attendance, although he is chosen master of the ship Triumph going as admiral, it being the usual practice of the admiral, or commander-in-chief of the fleet, upon going to sea, to choose an experienced master to accompany him as master of his ship, and yet continue upon the ordinary. [Also I. 123, p. 34.]

1. Sir Wm. Armyne and Mr. Holland added to the committee for Plymouth; to sit to-morrow, and confer with Col. Welden.

3. The Navy Committee to consider the best way for better securing pirates taken at sea.

6. To write to Col. Monk to proceed with the trial of Lieut.-Col. Owen O'Connelly, upon the evidence already obtained, as the council cannot determine the matter without reporting it to the House, where it may be very long, and there is great need of his service.

7. Sir Hardress Waller to confer with Lieut.-Gen. Cromwell about sending a person to Munster to do service there.

8. Warrant to be issued to the Irish contractors to pay 100*l.* to Lieut. Valentine Wood and others on account of arrears, but not to publish it, lest it draw upon the State a greater payment than they can make good.

10. Capt. Thelwell to march with his troop to Chester for transportation, the time elapsed to be forgiven him, and he to go on now as he should have done if there had been no interruption.

11. Capt. Norwood to be entertained for a troop of horse, at the rate of a month's pay and 12*d.* a day while they stay at the water-side, and transportation at the charge of the State.

12. Major Mathias Westmoreland to have his quarters paid at the water side for such men as he shall bring thither, and transportation at the State's charge.

13. Not to add any more money than already paid to Capt. Cleyton for service done by him.

28. Order—on the petition of Wm. Cann, Hugh Browne, Joseph Jackson, and other merchants of Bristol, for restoration of their ship and goods taken at sea by one of the King of Spain's ships ;—that Sir Oliver Fleming, master of the ceremonies, attend the Spanish ambassador and represent the case, and desire him to write to the King for the speedy release of the ship and goods, and that our merchants may not be interrupted in their trade, or anything done that may beget a misunderstanding, or hinder a good correspondence between the nations, which the Council desire, by all ways of justice and mutual friendship, inviolably to preserve. Council of State to Mr. Whalley. The convoy for Col. Tothill's regiment having now come into those parts, we desire expedition in shipping the men for Dublin, that they may be there for safety of the place, if the enemy should draw towards it before the rest of our forces arrive. What arms are wanting shall be shipped from hence by the next ship of wheat, which will go in a few days. Tell us what numbers of ships and of what kinds are furnished there [at Chester]. The burden your country is under, by these unwelcome guests, is such that we need not say anything to quicken your care to dispatch them away. [I. 94, p. 76.]

Council of State to Major-General Lambert. Morris and Blackburne, lately in Pontefract, are now in Lancaster Castle, being taken prisoners thereabouts upon their flight. You are to send a strong convoy thither to bring them to Pontefract, and proceed to a speedy trial of them. [I. 94, p. 77.]

April 10.
Derby House.

Council of State to Col. Tothill. We take it well that you are careful to cashier all the disaffected in your regiment, and doubt not but you will be able to complete it without entertaining such debauched people. The convoy being now come, you are not to omit any opportunity of wind and weather for transportation. The rest of your arms not fully supplied we shall send in a few days to Dublin ; if there should be occasion of action meantime, Col. Jones will furnish you out of the stores there. On your arrival at Dublin, you are to obey the orders of Col. Michael Jones, the Commander-in-Chief of the forces of Leinster. [I. 94, pp. 77, 78.]

Council of State to ——— Alsop, Mayor of Plymouth. Many prisoners lately taken at sea, and brought into Plymouth, have been let go by you, though they might have been a means to procure the better usage of ours with them, while we had some of theirs subject to retaliation. As we conceive this a great disservice to the commonwealth, we desire to be informed from you upon what reasons it was done, that if there were just reasons, we may be satisfied ; otherwise we desire that such as shall be brought in for the future may be kept in safe custody, until delivered by a due course of proceedings, according to the laws of the sea, or by such other way as Parliament shall appoint. [I. 94, pp. 78, 79.]

April 10. Council of State to the Bailiffs and Justices of Ipswich. Thanks Derby House. for your letter of the 6th inst., concerning the dangerous and seditious words of Hen. Sherman, a surgeon of your town; insurrections and commotions usually begin, and are fermented by, seditious language. His language is of a very high nature, but whether spoken out of a habit of inveterate malice, or whether upon a surprise of passion and engagement in argument, as it seems by his answer, is a consideration which may much aggravate or extenuate his offence. You upon the place can better make inquiry into the general course of his conversation than we; therefore, we refer the whole matter to your consideration. [I. 94, pp. 79, 80.]

April 10. Council of State to Mr. Whalley. We have ordered Capt. Lum- Derby House. ley Thelwell to march with his troop to Chester, to be thence transported to Ireland; you are to muster the troop, and pay for their quarters 12*d.* each man and horse, until wind and weather be fit for their transportation. We enclose a copy of his articles of agreement, but we are content to remit that which concerns the time in which they should have gone, and they may now be sent away the first opportunity. [I. 94, p. 80.]

April 10. ADMIRALTY COMMITTEE. Day's Proceedings.

Order that Barnard Smith, deputy collector to Mr. Bullock for receiving the profits of the lights at Dungeness, peruse the enclosed petition of July Willis, and satisfy her for his disbursements for such lights, or certify why he cannot. [I. 123, p. 34.]

April 10. 50. Petition of Capt. Samuel Chappell to the Navy Committee. Was captain of the Providence, and at first, he and his 30 men were victualled and paid at the usual rate; but afterwards Admiral Rich. Swanley reduced his pay from 3*s.* 4*d.* to 2*s.* 6*d.* a day, to the loss of 5*l.* His men were four months unpaid in 1645, loss 14*l.* 8*s.*, and his victualling allowance reduced from 7*d.* to 6*d.* a day, loss 11*l.* 10*s.* 7*d.* Begg payment of the said sums.

April 10. 51. Admirals Robt. Blake and Rich. Deane to the Navy Commis- Westminster. sioners. The Triumph having come into the Hope, and we intending to repair on board next Saturday, we desire you to speed away the standards, jacks, grapnels and chains ordered for our ship and the rest of the fleet, and indent for them with our gunner, who will get the proper receipts. Col. Popham has added 10 men to the Hector, the master having found out a trim whereby she sails much better than heretofore, and we desire you to put victuals on board for them; also for the Nicodemus, which has but three weeks' victuals. That the committee concerning Irish affairs sitting in the Star Chamber be required to see the order performed, and Mr. Scott take special care thereof.

April 11. Order in Parliament that a sufficient number of ships be constantly employed upon the Irish coast, at the command of the General of the Land Forces in Ireland, and that the Council of State and the Admirals at Sea see it performed.

That the victualling the winter guard for Ireland be referred to the Council of State, and the disposing of prizes taken on the Irish coast be effected, by commissions or other ways, for advancing the service, subject to an account to the Admiralty of England.

That effectual provision be made for maimed soldiers during their lives, and for the widows and orphans of those slain in the service, and that one or more hospitals be prepared at Dublin or elsewhere, for sick and lame soldiers.

That the Council of State consider and present to the House the most effectual way how provision may be made, according to the last resolution.

That a competent train of artillery, with arms both for horse and foot, iron, ammunition, &c., be provided for that service. That they consider of the said train of artillery and the particulars of it.

That such backs, breasts, and pots as are wanting be provided for every troop who shall be employed in the service, and transported to such place as the Commander-in-Chief shall direct.

That they treat with the officers of the forces that are to go to Ireland, upon what terms the arms, horse, and furniture may be continued and maintained.

That they confer with the officers as to sending over recruits of horse and men, as occasion shall require. [I. 87, pp. 41, 42.]

April 11. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

2. The papers brought in by Mr. Scott to be sent to the Lord General, who is to be informed that the parties therein mentioned have been examined by Alderman Atkins, and are now confined in the Counter in London.

3. The committee which drew the Act for the militia to prepare names of commissioners for the several counties, not naming above 21 for the largest county, and not under five for the least.

4. The members of Council to give in to the militia committee such names of persons as they think fit.

5. The petition of Capt. Palmes and others, concerning the great sufferings of some English soldiers in the French service, recommended to the French Ambassador.

6. The pass for the French Ambassador's goods to be signed and delivered, and Sir Oliver Fleming to inform him that this Council

8. Mr. Holland to attend and take charge of the goods of the late King, to be brought in by Sir John Hipposley, and direct where they may be placed in the public wardrobes.

9. A declaration to be drawn and brought in against such as shall conceal any of the late King's goods.

10. Mr. Ryder, saddler, near St. Clement's church in the Strand, to attend to-morrow.

11. Mr. Scott, and the rest of the committee appointed to examine Lady Carlisle, to bring in their report next Friday. [I. 62, pp. 174-176.]

[I. 123, p. 34.]

April 11. Council of State to the sheriffs of cos. Cambridge and Huntingdon. There being 22 seamen marching towards London, as volunteers to serve for this summer's expedition in the Star frigate, one of them was murdered upon or near to Newmarket Heath, a pistol being fired upon him without provocation, by one on horseback, in the company of others, who said himself that he was an Irishman. Some of the said company repaired to you, to send hue and cry after him, that he might be taken and brought to justice, but found no great readiness in you to send forth the hue and cry, nor such fruit as we wish, in apprehending of the murderers. We require you to cause diligent search to be made in all places of your jurisdiction, for their apprehension, being much unsatisfied there should be any omission in such a case, or the least contribution to the escape of them who are guilty of murder, aggravated in the perpetrators with so much malice to the cause of the commonwealth. [I. 94, p. 81.]

April 11. Council of State to Sir John Hipposley. There are several things Derby House. of value in your hands that belonged to the late King ; you are to bring them to Derby House to-morrow, and deliver them to Mr. Frost, secretary to this Council, to be delivered over to such as the Committee of the Revenue shall appoint. [I. 94, p. 83.]

April 11. Council of State to Col. Horton and Philip Jones. Being Derby House. informed that there was 10,000*l.*, part of the fine of South Wales, ready, and that it would have been at Bristol before this, and there being a most pressing necessity of immediately putting the fleet to sea for this summer's service, and the ships being ready to go except for money to put their provisions on board ;—we recommended to the House to borrow this money from that service to which it was first appointed, to serve this present exigency, to be repaid by the moneys designed for this service, but not yet ready. In pursuance thereof, a wagon with convoy was sent to Bristol, by the treasurer of the army, to bring up the money ; but none of it has yet come to Bristol, nor will until the 10th May, which is a very great disappointment. We have appointed the wagon and convoy to continue at Bristol until the money arrives, the charge of which must be borne by those through whose fault the disappointment comes. We desire you to use all possible diligence to get that money forthwith to Bristol. [I. 94, p. 84.]

Reference of the petition of Capt. [I. 123, p. 35 ; Vol. I., No. 50.]

April 12. Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. The Council of Derby House. State, by their order of 29 March last, directed that five ships should be built frigate fashion, and referred to us the drawing up of an estimate of the charge, and the giving orders necessary. We have therefore decided that the first,—a third rate, to be admiral for the winter guard in the Irish sea, and to carry 44 pieces of ordnance,—be built at Deptford, by Mr. Pett, senior ; another of the same rate by Christopher Pett, at Woolwich ; other three of the rate of the new frigate lately built, one by Mr. Pett, senior, at Deptford, one at Portsmouth by Mr. Eastwood, and one at Woolwich, by Mr. Burrell. We desire your order to the builders to present models of such frigates, and to take care that provision for the building be made ; and you are to draw an estimate of the whole charge, and transmit it to us for presentation to the Council of State.

As it has also been referred to us to consider what order is fit to be given for the disposal of the prisoners taken at sea by the State's ships, and sent on shore by the generals of the fleet, we desire you to certify us what has been usual in like cases heretofore, with your opinion thereon. 15. Capt. Holden's dispatch concerning the taking of some ships upon the Irish seas referred to the Admiralty Committee.

16. To write to Mr. Strickland that Parliament will send Ambassadors to the States, with whom he may advise, they being fully instructed in the points of his letter.

17. The Committee appointed to bring in the instructions for the Ambassadors to the States of the United Provinces to make their report next Tuesday.

18. The letter from the Governor of Weymouth to be sent to the generals at sea, to take care to give convoy to the ships bound for Newfoundland. [Also I. 123, p. 37.]

19. To write to the governors of cos. Salop and Chester, as has been done to Bristol, to arrest Cornet Pike.

20. The Act prepared concerning prize goods to be reported to the House by Col. Wauton.

23. Notice to be sent to the Lord General to remove the soldiers from Whitehall, so that the House may be prepared for the Council of State, according to the order of Parliament. [I. 62, pp. 180-184.]

April 13. Council of State to the Deputy Governor of Dover Castle. The Derby House. generals at sea write that 13 prisoners, taken by Capt. Coppin of the Greyhound, were sent to you to be kept in safe custody, and that you refused to receive them, whereby they have been set at liberty without trial or other proceedings, which is a disservice to the commonwealth. You are therefore to receive and examine them, and certify their nature and quality, that order may be taken to transmit them to London, to be proceeded against according to justice. Meantime we shall take order that while they continue there, they shall be no charge to that garrison. [I. 94, p. 85.]

April 13. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. The French Ambassador is returning into France, and has asked the master of the Derby House. ceremonies for a ship. You are to order some fit ship to transport him, his retinue, &c., into France. [I. 94, p. 86.]

April 13. Council of State to the Mayor of Bristol. Captain Fearmes, of Derby House. the President frigate, informs us of a great abuse to the master and divers of the company of his ship, and therein an insufferable affront to the authority of Parliament, by John Knight, of Bristol, who calls them Parliament dogs, and Parliament rogues, &c., many others approving those virulent speeches. Also that you refused to take a bark into your custody, taken by Capt. Fearmes, and sent to Bristol. The commonwealth cannot be preserved in peace if these attempts upon its authority be suffered to pass unpunished. You are therefore to call Knight before you, and examine into the abuse, and see that he is punished as his offence deserves. You are also to take care of the bark, or any other prize brought in, until officers specially appointed shall take them in charge, and to preserve peace and maintain the authority of Parliament, by punishing malignity and disaffection. [I. 94, p. 87.]

April 13. Council of State to Col. Blunt. One Bird, formerly a commander Derby House. in the King's army, keeps an inn at Gravesend, where there is frequent resort of disaffected persons, particularly Cols. Washington and Legge, and much plotting, and many young men sent thence into Holland, to the eldest son of the late King. We are also informed that there is a bridge at the same house, by which men are sent abroad in a secret way, which may prejudice the State, and is against the order of the government of Gravesend. You are to inform yourself of the condition and affection of this person, and whether any bridges besides the common bridge of the town should be allowed to stand, whereby persons are secretly conveyed abroad without showing their passes. [I. 94, p. 88.]

April 13. Council of State to the Judges of the Admiralty. It has been Derby House. reported by the Admiralty Committee that Jno. Wilcox, merchant of Bristol, who lately had some grocery and mercery wares, amounting to 120*l.*, seized on the Angel ship riding in Bristol road, bound for Youghall or Dublin, by Cap. Fearmes, of the State's service, should, for his sufferings for and affection to the State, have the same relief as was lately ordered by the Council to the merchants of Bristol. We require you,—upon security given by Wilcox to pay treble the value of his goods so seized, in case of condemnation, and to abide by the judgment of that court in paying what shall be decreed for salvage or otherwise,—to order the collectors for prize goods at Bristol to deliver back such goods. [I. 123, p. 36.]

April 13. Admiralty Committee to Thos. Smith and Jno. Hill, late collectors of prize goods. We gave you order to attend us on Thursday next, but it being a day set apart for public humiliation, we require your attendance on Wednesday, to answer several petitions for shares in prize goods. My brother the Prince Elector is here, and cares no more for those cursed people in England, for he has done his duty to the King, which he might have avoided, as his affairs require him at Cleves. The Scotch Commissioners are here also, and bring every day some new proposal to the King, full of impertinency. They would not that he should keep any honest man about him; they are in great favour with the Princess of Orange, who declares much for the Presbyterians, and says Percy is the honestest man the King has about him. April 15. Levant Company to Sir Thos. Bendish, Ambassador at Constantinople. We have received all your letters except one, and are satisfied of your vigilancy in our affairs, amidst your continued troubles, as well by the uncivil contests of the factors, as by the opposition and encroachments of the ministers of the State, and the late alteration of Government, which you were not in a capacity to remedy, before the removal of Sir Sackville Crow (our adversary indeed, but more immediately yours), and before you had wrought out your establishment (which we looked upon as the first step to our own security and welfare). We are sensible how many disturbances have succeeded that, especially by the insolent demeanour of our own factors at Smyrna, which we have much cause to resent, and now more especially upon view of your care for their better regulation, by ordering their registry of bargains and money in Cancellaria, their more exact leviation of brokes, and their seasonable shipping and landing of goods ; all which being hitherto neglected by the consul, we pray you again to mind him of putting the same in execution, as we are no way satisfied with the arguments to the contrary. In cases of this nature, where you enjoin any consul to perform aught in the collection of brokes, punishment of offenders, &c., and advise us thereof, we look upon it as a sufficient discharge of your care, and shall lay the blame of non-execution upon the consul, of whom we must expect due performance, or else satisfaction from his security here. We write only as an answer to your query and not to diminish your necessary influence upon the other factories.

As for delinquencies at Constantinople, and the necessity of exemplary justice on such as John South (whose exorbitant deportment towards you we are sorry and even ashamed to hear), as it is in your power to see us righted, so it is left to you to do what conduces to your own honour, and our advantage in the support of the trade. We shall not countenance the least incivilities in him or any

April 15. other, but shall maintain your actions and not listen to contrary reports.

In the case of Mr. Lancelot, if you weigh with indifferency what we have done, you will acquit us of laying the least dishonour upon you. It is true that—the consul at Smyrna having intimated to us a report of your action about the ships,—we thanked you for it if true, not being confidently assured,—in respect of the uncertainty of Capt. Wild's relation, the want of information thereof from yourself or any other at Constantinople, and a seeming contradiction thereto from Mr. Lancelot,—whether it were true or false. We were so civil as to make yourself judge, by giving you a copy of what we had from Lancelot, which, although not usual, we did out of respect, and therefore no just collection can be made that we regarded more that accusation from him than your action, of which we had no sooner advice from you than full satisfaction.

What we have since done in relation to Mr. Lancelot is what we could not deny to any one, namely, to order that if any part of his estate were sequestered there for want of an account from him, the same might be restored now that we have that account. Yet we should be very glad that it and all former accounts of the treasurers at Smyrna were surveyed exactly, according to your former intention. Although we minded you of a particular view of their accounts from 5 August 1647, in regard of information we had of the short entries of sundry ships about the same time consigned to that house, yet we meant not to limit you to that only; and considering how great cause there is, we desire the same may be yet done. As the factories of Constantinople and Smyrna are jointly to bear their proportions of the public charge of both places, we desire that there may be perusal of the accounts of each place by the other.

Meantime we note progress in auditing of Mr. Gough's account, which we expected would have been finished long since; we hope the delay thereof will not produce any bad effect, which our late heavy sufferings by his predecessor make us fear, as accounts orderly kept may be easily drawn out and audited. We desire the treasurer's account to be sent home to us every six months, and new treasurers chosen every year at a general court; no factors there that are deeply engaged at interest should be held capable of that trust, but only persons of credit and estate. As great allowances are exacted by Mr. Gough for his pains, grounded upon a promise of Sir Sac. Crow, we shall give no answer till we see his accounts. Mr. Lancelot and others intimate the doubtful condition or insufficiency of some of those factors at Constantinople; you have since given other testimony, yet we much fear a reality in those complaints, as their principals here lament much their want of returns: have an especial eye to them, and if possible clear our doubts, for facilitating whereof we enclose a letter to the factory, to be opened at a general court, and the business so examined that we may see upon what ground we stand.

April 15.

And since the factors are apt to ruin themselves by their private trading, and taking up moneys at interest for that end, we entreat you to mind those remembrances we gave you before your departure hence, namely, to view the commissions of all private ships coming thither and give us advice thereof; to register in Cancellaria bargains and money taken up at interest, and advise us every six months.

As to the proportioning of the levations there and at Smyrna, we concur with you for raising levations according to the proportions of goods at each place, the condition of the trade at Constantinople, which was formerly much greater than that to Smyrna, being now much altered, through embargoes and other disturbances there. We approve your desiring the whole debt, which really concerns the company, to be cleared that way, and no running at interest permitted.

Thanks for your advice to Smyrna touching the Talent and Hunter's false entries. For the answer you gave the Venetians' pretences touching Sir Sac. Crow's debt of 40,000 dollars, we shall be ready to answer them when they make any claim thereof here; thanks also for your care concerning the abuses in silk at Smyrna, which you are to prosecute, it being of much consequence to our trade and to the poor of this kingdom.

We are sorry for the death of our old servant Signor Domenico, and note your appointment of your secretary to supply his charge in Cancellaria, for which service we conceive 400 or 500 dollars a year will be a competent allowance, although Domenico of late years received more, in regard of his long service and total dependence on the company, and of his great and general experience as interpreter, &c. We have had sundry solicitations from Libbe Chapman, both while he was in England, and since from Italy, for the employment of consul either at Aleppo or Smyrna, to which we have as often given a negative answer, and therefore wonder he should again trouble you or us.

We observe what you and that factory have done for supply of the consulate of the Morea upon the death of Mr. Gatward, but as Mr. Francis, who was designed for that employment, is under great engagements to sundry persons, we are now upon choice of some other, who must give security in 3,000*l.* for performance of his trust. On the vacancy of any consul, have a special eye to the credit and sufficiency of the person deputed, considering how greatly we may suffer by the contrary. An instance thereof we have by the late demeanour of Geo. Ivate; being, upon his own and friends' urgent importunity, engaged to go thither at 500 dollars' allowance for expenses of the journey, without putting us to any other charge, we wonder any further loan should be made him there. Better if he had been kept from thence, for the trade of Cyprus suffers more by his presence than otherwise it would have done, we having no advantage by his service, but very uncivil language.

As for Thos. Coleman, amongst other of his actions, we hear of one of very dangerous consequence, viz., the lading the George at the Morea in English names for Venice with oils, a commodity prohibited, and therefore exposing our whole estate and the lives of our factors at Turkey to hazard, if the same should be known at Constantinople. He has since laden the company's currants (?) there upon the Blossom for account of private men, to our damage. Pray prevent the mischiefs threatened us by him, either by sending him off the place or otherwise.

Late letters inform us that the Barnardistons at Smyrna have laden the Employment with fruit and cute at Scala Nova, to our like danger, both being contraband. Pray send down to Smyrna a strict prohibition of transgressing in that kind, with an express declaration that if any Avania happen, by reason of their lading fruit or cute, the same shall be borne by the person offending.

Our difference with Sir Sac. Crow still hangs in suspense, being so retarded by the alterations here that nothing has been done for months. We have ordered the consul at Smyrna to demand of Mr. Brent, &c. copies of their account of Strangers' consulage delivered to Sir Sac. Crow; also notice what they have received since, which, if they refuse to make good, you are to send down authority for enforcing the same. [*Copy, signed by Wm. Levant Company to the Treasurer and Factors at Constantinople. We need not tell you of the late great decay of our trade to that place, nor of our discouragements, which are many, but chiefly those extraordinary and excessive leviations made upon our estates, caused in great part by the fraudulent practices of some of that factory, in shifting the debts of particular men upon the company, in which the major part having been, we fear, involved, the rest hold themselves obliged to a compliancy. Now many of our company, your principals here, much lament a want of their expected returns from some of you, and so great a prejudice have they sustained thereby, that the company in general are disheartened from dealing at that place, especially whilst persons remain there, of whom they have so great a suspicion. Therefore we desire that the premises and the matter of our present doubts may be fairly communicated and examined by his lordship and a general court there, that we may have a discovery from you of such as are faulty, and advice in what way we may trade thither with more security in future. Our advice is, that you will punctually perform those conditions you receive from your principals, without freighting ships for private trade, of which so many have had ill experience.

The advantage of our trade much depends upon your strict observation of orders, of which we remind you; viz., that once every year a new treasurer be elected, and that his accounts be fairly audited every six months; that all bargains and all money taken up at interest be registered in Cancellaria; and that all necessary expenses of the company be raised by proportionable leviation upon the estate there and at Smyrna, and by no means run at interest; but we hope the large leviations which have been made have cleared that great burden which hitherto has been upon us.

Levant Company to Capt. Wild, consul at Smyrna. We have received Mr. Brent's account to 5 Oct. We approve your care in surveying the omissions and overcharges, and certifying abuses, which course we desire to be taken with the latter account, to 5 Aug. For the future, as both those factories are jointly to bear the proportion of the public expenses, there shall be an interchangeable perusal of the accounts. We are glad to be put in hopes of a period to our vast expenses, which have been cleared by an equal leviation upon the estate at both these ports; if any like occasion of an extraordinary public charge happen, the like course shall be taken for extinguishing it, and no running at interest permitted. Any money taken up at interest by particular men is to be registered in Cancellaria, which you are to see effected, and for which his Lordship has sent you express order, as also for due collection of brokes, which we conceive you might find out some way to reserve, and frustrate the practices used for defrauding us of them, although it is better to accept of consulage and leviations alone, than lose all. Try to obtain all our dues, and at least find out means that upon such goods as come thither indirectly, we may receive our imposts here as well as consulage there, which may be done by private intimation from you, or some mark upon the bills of exchange.

We notice the 500 dollars recovered of the Loyalty with thanks. Mr. Brandon and Mr. Poolsted shall have credit for their bills; as for Robt. Keble's 2,000 dollars, his uncle, Jos. Keble, late treasurer here, has received it in ready money, of whom or any other you need not be afraid, for we shall save you harmless in what you execute by our order. As to your complaint of glutting the market, &c., we cannot say anything, but only remind you of registering bargains in Cancellaria, which would prevent much injury many ways. Pray certify the abuses in raw silk, being a matter of great consequence to us and the whole kingdom.

We hoped the obstruction of trade, by the stop of our ships at Constantinople, would have been remedied by Sig. Amerigo Salvetti, resident there for the Duke of Florence (sic), who, some time past, giving, our company thanks, in the name of that State of Venice, for hindering our ships from serving the Turks against them, intimated that the State of Venice had strictly ordered their fleet not to give the least interruption to English ships in their passage to and from Constantinople; but not finding any effect of his message, but on the contrary, a necessity of transporting our goods overland to Constantinople, we have acquainted him therewith, and he has promised to represent our complaint to the Venetians. By ours of the 5th we signified our resolution concerning the lag of the Sampson's cloth, which coming on other ships, you were to expect a certificate thereof from us, or look upon them as unfree goods.

Also for your pains therein and advice, especially what you say touching the leviation on moneys, which we cannot as yet resolve should be omitted.

We hear that the Employment and Bendish are lading at Scala Nova, with fruits and cute freighted by you, which being both contraband, we wonder that you should entertain any such design as may possibly produce so great a hazard to us; if any Avania happen thereupon, yourself or others who lade the goods are to be liable. Levant Company to Geo. Iivate. You complain of too mean an allowance for your maintenance in that charge. As we made you consul upon your own and your friends' importunity, and covenanted with you for a certain allowance by the consulage of the place, and factorage of those who should employ you, we expect that you satisfy yourself with the same, or thank your own improvidence for accepting of it then, and afterwards falling into complaints. We did not imagine you should take up moneys at Constantinople, and after charge bills thither for more, of which we expect repayment by you, or satisfaction from your sureties here. If you do not receive that content you hoped for, we shall not (though we might), force your continuance, but we do not hold it reasonable to make any further allowance than what we contracted with you for. Council of State to Col. Reynolds. By yours from Banbury, we are informed of the seasonable arrival of our orders, when you were at your rendezvous, and are much satisfied with the general compliance of your regiment, and your care to maintain the authority of the commonwealth in your regiment, and your resolute and successful reduction of those who were contumacious and refractory. While this care is used to restore and keep discipline amongst our forces, we may expect such service from them as will preserve the safety of the commonwealth. Thanks for your diligence to prevent disaffection from the pressure upon the people, both by the charge of free quarter, and yet more by the insufferable insolencies and incivilities of many unruly soldiers. Take special care that quarter may be paid, and that in a time of so great dearth, the men be content with moderate provision, and abstain from insolence and incivility, which is the greatest difficulty for free people to bear; and while they lie under it, they will have little taste of their promised liberty. Council of State to the Lord Mayor of London. We have appointed some of our number to confer with the Committee of adventurers at Grocers' Hall for lands in Ireland, about something of special concern to them, and desire that you, on Thursday next, being the fast day, do cause warning to be given in the several churches to the said adventurers, to meet some of us the next day at 3 o'clock at Grocers' Hall. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. We find that the Scots in Ulster have revolted from their obedience, and besiege Londonderry. To prevent the growing of that mischief, and all intercourse between them and Scotland, we desire that three small vessels of the Irish squadron be ordered to ply up and down in the channel between Ireland and Scotland, obeying the commands of Col. Monk. Also that the whole of the Irish squadron be despatched to attend the service of Ireland, hinder their supplies from abroad, prevent their piracies and depredations at sea, and destroy their ships, wherever they shall take them. In this and all services conducive to the preservation of the English interest in Ireland, and to the reducing thereof to obedience, you shall command the utmost diligence. [I. 94, p. 92.]

Council of State to the Commanders of the Ships in and about Chester and Liverpool. We have ordered Col. Reynolds' regiment of horse to march to Anglesey for transportation to Ireland, and that they may be furnished with shipping, and not either continue here to the pressure of the country, or be absent thence where their service is so necessary, we desire that the ships which, under your convoy, transport Col. Tothill's foot, may be commanded back again to the ports in Anglesey fittest for the shipping of the said regiment of horse, when Mr. Whalley of Chester will see them despatched. [I. 94, p. 93.]

Derby House. There are 170 Irish taken at sea in a Holland ship, who pretended to be going from Galway to Middleburg, and are now at Milford. The common men should be sent to the plantations, and therefore we desire you to treat with such as trade thither, to transport them where use may be made of their service for the advancement of those plantations, and to return us a speedy answer, that in case they be not thus disposed of, some other course may be taken to ease the country of them. April 16. Council of State to the Lord General. There has been a dis-
Derby House. orderly assembly of people at St. George's Hill, near Oatlands, and although their avowed pretence for being there may seem very ridiculous, it may be a beginning of dangerous consequence. Take care that some force of horse be sent to Cobham in Surrey, to disperse those people so met, and to prevent the like for the future, that a disaffected party may not, under colour of such ridiculous people, rendezvous themselves in order to greater mischief. [I. 94, p. 93.]

April 16. Council of State to the Justices of the Peace near Cobham,

April 16. Council of State to Messrs. Holland, Smith, and Rob. Thomson, Derby House. Navy Commissioners. Your bargain for the tops and lops of trees which you had ordered to be cut down for the navy, and for the bark, shall be performed, and yet what appears to be due to the inhabitants of the forest shall be made good to them. You are therefore to inquire whether Livery wood used to be delivered to them, or was had casually, as there happened to be any fall of wood : if the former, they may be satisfied in the same way as before ; if by custom they claim it upon the fall, we wish it had been known before your bargain was made. However it is not our purpose to prejudice their right. [I. 94, p. 96 ; 62, p. 194 ; Vol. I., No. 57.]
- April 16. Council of State to Mr. Whalley. We hope Col. Tothill's regiment will soon be shipped. We have ordered Col. Reynolds' regiment to march to Anglesey to be transported from Beaumaris or Holyhead to Ireland. That they may not stay there to waste the country, or be retarded from going where their service is so necessary, order the ships that carry over Col. Tothill's foot to return forthwith to transport them. [I. 94, p. 97.]
- April 16. 58. Peter Pett to the Navy Committee. I have surveyed the Warspite and find her unserviceable, but the [Navy] Commissioners are willing to repair her, and Capt. Rich. Crandley to make her serviceable at his own charge, provided she is valued by two indifferent men after being repaired, which can be done in 10 days, and she be ready to take in provisions, if order is given for the same. Noted that a warrant for rigging her was sent by Wm. Wheatley, commander. [½ page.]
- April 16. 59. Admirals Ri. Deane and Robt. Blake to the Navy Commissioners. We hear from Capt. Moulton that Capt. Hall's frigate, the Adventure, being so foul that it was not fit to keep at sea, and his victuals being expended, he has sent her to clean and revictual at Plymouth, where Mr. Goodyear promises to supply her. As you know her usefulness at sea, and the smallness of Capt. Moulton's squadron until Col. Popham gets to him, we desire you to write Mr. Goodyear to furnish her and the Leopard. We sent you Capt. Moulton's paper last week, as to the proportion of victuals the Leopard was short of ; he presses for a supply, lest the service should be prejudiced by his coming into port. [1 page.]

That the 10,000*l.*, being the second payment of the composition of the delinquents in South Wales, shall be paid for the service of Ireland, and that the acquittances of such persons as shall be appointed by the Council of State for receiving thereof shall be a sufficient discharge to such as shall pay the same.
That the Council of State take course for raising money for the present service of Ireland, upon the credit of that 10,000*l.*, and

April 17. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

2. Mr. Frost to give notice to Mr. Coytmor of all orders passed by Council relating to the Generals or their ships.

3. The Irish Committee to state how many flat-bottomed ships will be necessary for transporting forces into Ireland, and when.

4. Also whether the ships coming out of Holland to transport forces into Ireland may not bring over the provision of corn to be made in those parts for Ireland.

5. Also that Committee to be informed that though Lord Lisle reported that the bargain with Mr. Davies and company, for 5,000*l.* worth of provisions in Ireland, was not performed, Col. Monk certifies that near 3,000*l.* worth is already delivered.

7. Capt. Joyce's complaint against a storekeeper at Portsmouth referred to the Admiralty Committee.

8. Sixpence a day to be paid by Mr. Whalley for quartering such men as Colonel Moore shall bring to the waterside for Ireland, during their stay for wind and weather, but no pay to be made until they are brought together by sixties, and mustered by Whalley.

9. Major Rigby's offer to bring a regiment to the waterside for service in Ireland referred to the Irish Committee.

10. The Irish Committee to prepare resolutions to be offered as security to the Committee of Adventurers for raising money for Ireland, and Messrs. Maurice Thomson, Pennoyer, Estwicke, and Hawkins to attend the Committee to-morrow.

11. The Irish Committee to confer with the Adventurers' Committee on Friday as to raising money for Ireland.

12. Sir Hen. Vane, Lieut.-Gen. Cromwell, Sir Wm. Armyne, and Lord Lisle to be a committee to consider in what condition we stand in reference to Scotland, either in regard to England or Ireland, and whether any addresses shall be made to them, and how.

13. Dr. Dorislaus to attend to-morrow.

14. Dr. Walker to be counsel to the Spanish ambassador, if it will stand with the duty of his place; if otherwise, he is to direct him to some others, and if they cannot be instructed in time, a further day to be granted.

15. Instructions for Sir Oliver Fleming in his address to the Spanish Ambassador. To signify that the Admiralty judges say the taking of the ship was not contrary to any articles of alliance, the Irish nation having no power to treat with foreign states for transport of men; and being declared rebels, the English can deal with them as they think fit. Oliver French, their conductor, is a native of Galway, and has committed treason; therefore the Council has given order for disposal of the men, and will leave the ship and goods to the Admiralty. The Council cannot permit these nor the rest of the men to be transported, it being a private transaction of a rebel against the sovereignty of the Commonwealth. [I. 62, pp. 198-203.]

April 17. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. We have given order

You are to send some convoy to be upon those coasts, and order fit ships sufficient for transportation of the regiment of 600 men, besides officers. Do this with speed, to avoid pressure to the country, and because the affairs of Ireland require their presence. [I. 94, p. 98.]

April 17. Council of State to Col. Reynolds. To similar effect. Your Derby House. regiment is to march to Anglesey to be shipped, and as the country is everywhere poor, take care your quarters be paid, that the people may not be further impoverished or disaffected to the present Government. [I. 94, p. 99.]

April 17. Council of State to Major-General Ashton. Though we have Derby House. written to Major-General Lambert to disband the troop of Capt. Bamber, he not only continues his troop, but increases it by the addition of disorderly men, who take free quarter and oppress the country. We therefore desire you to disband that troop by force, if they will not otherwise lay down their arms; and as he has by his disobedience been a great burden to the country, secure him and the rest of the officers, to be proceeded with according to their merit; the horses and arms in their possession are to be restored to those from whom they have been taken, if that may be known; if not, they are to be reserved to the use of the Commonwealth. [I. 94, pp. 99, 100.]

April 17. Council of State to Col. Horton. There are in those parts 170

We have ordered the disposing of the common men; for Oliver French, and other officers and men of quality, we desire you to have them sent up to London in safe custody, and specially to keep safely French, who is the conductor of these, and the undertaker for 700 more, that are to be shipped at Galway, for Flanders, as they pretend, but more likely for Holland, for the service of Charles Stuart. French has been for months past very active in treasonable designs against England, in parts beyond the seas. [I. 94, pp. 100, 101.]

April 18. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. Order that Dr. Dorislaus be sent over to the States General, as Resident from England, to be conjoined with Mr. Strickland, for carrying on the public affairs, and bring his credentials, letters, &c. that the Council may give him speedy despatch.

2. Mr. Frost to confer with Dr. Dorislaus, concerning the state of his arrears.

3. Lady Carlisle's business to be considered next Friday.

6. Order to be given for 6*d.* a day to Colonels Hungerford and Venables' men.

7. Lieut.-Col. Napier's desires referred to the Irish committee.

8. Mr. Witherings to prosecute Wilkes for the seditious speeches mentioned by him, and to confer with the Council thereon, so that he may be proceeded against this term in the superior bench.

9. The money assigned to Sir Henry Tichborne for going to Ireland, and formerly ordered to be paid in course, to be now paid out of the 2,000*l.* laid aside for incidental charges, and a warrant issued to Sir Adam Loftus for that purpose. [I. 62, pp. 204, 205.]

Having lately obtained public recommendations to the senate here, with credentials to qualify our deputy for our protection, we are most sensible that a favour is intended to us and all merchants; this, amidst all the incumbrances of a consuming trade, in these hard times, is no small encouragement, and therefore duty necessitates us to return our acknowledgments. But the honour conferred upon our deputy is not conceived by him to be consistent with his other employments, upon which the subsistence of his

April 20. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. The character for the coin of England chosen by Council to be fairly drawn and presented to the House.

2. The letter read for a credential to Dr. Dorislaus to be delivered to the 18 sovereignties in Holland, to be reported to the House.

3. To request the House that he may have the same credentials as given to Mr. Strickland.

4. Mr. Frost to prepare instructions for Dr. Dorislaus, according to orders of Council.

5. The House to be moved that power be given to the Speaker to sign his credentials.

6. 200*l.* to be advanced to him.

7. Also the 100*l.* due to him on a former account.

9. Commission to be given to two certain persons to give constant intelligence to the generals of the fleet, as also thanks for their great affection to the commonwealth.

63. Isaac Lee to the Council of State. Together with a letter to the senate here in favour of our company, I have received credentials from Parliament, and am instructed to appear and act as a public minister here. The senate's letter touching our company's present affairs is delivered; but the credentials,—although I esteem myself honoured by them, and acknowledge the favour, as intended for some stay and assurance to us, and our languishing trade in these sad times,—are not yet presented; not out of any disaffection, but rather my devotion to your service, that I choose to attend further commands in a matter of such importance. I am conscious of my own imperfections, being now in years; and having never from my youth moved in any other sphere but commerce, dare not undertake such a charge, in matters wherein I have never been versed. And if I were qualified, yet I am the father of divers children; I can only support my family by my trade, and cannot longer continue trade if I engage in higher business. It is too well known here that when I undertook the place of deputy, on the importunity of the company, and with a resolution to prefer their good before that of my family, I much prejudiced myself in trade; and if I should now undertake any further state employment, none would be content to be a partner with me, nor could I deal as a merchant any longer. I beg that I may not be misinterpreted for not delivering the State's credentials, and that I may be dismissed of this public charge, and the same conferred upon some fitter person. In case there are more goods or merchandise than mentioned in the paper, you are to detain the same until further order, except it belongs to the master or mariners. [Copy, $\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

7. Letters to be written to assure Cols. Jones and Monk and Sir Chas. Coote of relief to be sent with the first fair wind.

8. The Irish committee to consider as to sending Colonel Mervyn and Sir Jas. Montgomery to Ireland.

April 21. Council of State to the Treasurers at Goldsmiths' Hall. There

April 21. ADMIRALTY COMMITTEE. Day's Proceedings.

Note that letters were sent to Captains Saltonstall, Wheeler, and another in one from the secretary to Mr. Whalley at Chester, enclosing one from the Council, concerning his speedy shipping away to Ireland all the forces coming to the water side. For the beer you desired to be returned, eight tuns of it were intended for our ship, but we cannot stow more than she has already, which fills her hold to the deck, although there is no more ballast than covers the riders; we cannot at present examine why the Andrew did not take in what was assigned to her, she being yet in the Hope, but ordered to fall down hither speedily. Touching the flags, &c., it seems strange you refer the proportions to be ascertained by us, yourselves knowing best the former allowances, which we suppose are alike in number in every expedition; we think that you should make up what you have already sent for ourselves, to three standards; our Vice and Rear-Admiral, with the Admiral, Vice-Admiral, and Rear-Admiral of Ireland, three flags apiece; and two jacks for every ship in the fleet. For the ensigns and pendants, you best know how many are wanting.

Council of State to the Lord General. By the enclosed letters and petitions, presented by Alexander Rigby, a member of the House, you will see the miserable condition of Lancashire, both by those who live upon and waste the country without commission, and those who take free quarter. We recommend the whole matter to you, and desire you to give effectual order for disbanding those men that are there without commission, seizing their horses and arms, and securing their pretended officers, to answer for their misdemeanors and oppression of the country. Also see that those who are commissioned for service, either in England or Ireland, do not take free quarter, which is a great pressure to the country, and in this great and unusual dearth, tends to the famishing of many poor people. 73. Sir Oliver Fleming, Master of the Ceremonies, to the Council of State. I want instructions in the place the commonwealth is pleased to trust to me. I desire to know what titles I am to give the Commonwealth and Council of State, in conversing with foreign ministers and strangers of quality that come about business. It is to be expected that we must wrestle with many difficulties incidental to a new government, now established in a more just and equal way; and that princes, looking upon their common interest, will apprehend the prosperity of the commonwealth may prove an allure-ment to their people to shake off the yoke, (whereof there are some symptoms in several parts) and to imitate so laudable an example. It is also to be feared that other commonwealths will at first make difficulty in giving those titles that this is obliged, in all justice and honour, to hold forth to the world as its undoubted right, it being well known that the kings of England had not these high and great titles given them as particular men, but in relation to the greatness and potency of the commonwealth, from whence all their titles were derived ; so that I conceive the title of “most excellent, most high, most mighty,” and such others as hold forth the supreme authority of this nation, should be insisted upon, and no diminution allowed of honour due either to the commonwealth or to the persons they dignify with public employments abroad, who should have instructions given to them in these matters, as was formerly done.

I shall not give reasons, but simply relate something of the customs of foreign nations in these matters. I begin with the Republic of Venice, as being for so many ages constant in the observation of public civilities and customs, whereas other states and courts have acted according to the pleasure of those that had the government in their hands. The commonwealth of Venice, assumes the title of Serenissimo Dominio, or Repubblica, and the title given to their Doge is Serenita. To their great Council, which consists of all the gentry (by them called Nobili) of the aristocratical families that are of age, they give the title of Eccellentissimi or most excellent, and the same to the Pregadi, which is called the Senate, as also to those senators that sit with the Duke, whom they call Il Collegio, and this is the representative seignior, where all ambassadors, and other public ministers make their addresses, have their audiences, and negotiate their affairs. The Consiglio di Dieci has likewise the same title given it, and is the supreme council in all criminal affairs, and might be well called the Grand Inquisition of State, having in a manner an unlimited power.

The manner of receiving ambassadors is thus : they usually come incognito, stay a few days to rest, and then give notice of their arrival, going to some adjacent island, three or four miles off, whence a number of senators, proportionable to the greatness of the State and quality of the ambassador, fetch him with gondolas to his own house, if an ordinary ambassador ; but if an extraordinary, to a palace prepared by the State, where officers, servants, and gondolas wait upon him, at a cost of 700 or 800 ducats a day. The next morning he is taken in state to his audience at the college, seated on the Doge's right hand, and taken back in state. After that, he has always audiences the day after he asks for them, but is attended only by his own servants. Any Nobili or secretaries of state are punished with death and confiscation if they have the least correspondence with foreign ambassadors, but their houses are sanctuaries for criminals, except for state matters or crimes of great atrocity. They may have bread and wine without excise, and have other commodities. On departing, the extraordinaries have a gold chain worth 2,000 ducats, and the ordinaries one worth 1,000 ; their secretaries chains of less value ; and a piece of plate is given for any special service. If they request the pardon of some banished person, they are seldom refused, unless his crime be matter of state ; and some ambassadors have thus got large sums from a wealthy banished person: At their departure, they are defrayed and complimented by the governors of all towns under the dominions.

The second commonwealth of Italy is Genoa, which likewise gives the titles of Serenissimo and Serenita to the duke, and Eccellentissimi governatori della repubblica di Genova to their council; and the little republic of Lucca has the title of Illustrissima given to it by other states and princes. I shall not say anything of our neighbours of the United Provinces, their titles, and the rank and titles their ambassadors take being equal with the greatest princes and states, and their reception and audiences, solemn and ordinary, being sufficiently known.

As concerning the States of the Empire in their several classes, as the Prince Electors, and other Princes, the titles given to them are to be found in the Paper Office, Whitehall, and with those who had formerly the writing of credential letters, which titles vary according to the language. With regard to the great and potent commonwealth of Switzerland, the 13 cantons are so many distinct little commonwealths incorporated into one, commonly called the Helvetian body, or as they term it Eidtgenossen, which signifies confederates. These have their ordinary and extraordinary meetings at their diets, where all matters of state, peace and war, are transacted, and all ambassadors and residents appear to negotiate their master's affairs, as the Emperor's commissioner, the French ambassador, (very often, ordinary and extraordinary at once, and the latter is commonly one of the most eminent men of France, who are attended on by six or seven interpreters, kept constantly in that country at great cost, and are the ambassadors' emissaries from canton to canton, to insinuate with the leading men for the advantage of the French King's affairs); the Spanish ambassador, (whose master is only a confederate to the five Romish, commonly called the Little Cantons) the Pope's Nuncio, the Savoy ambassador, the Swedish, Venetian, and German Princes' residents. The titles that these princes afford this commonwealth somewhat differ, the French King has a particular title, which is, "A Haut et Magnifiques sieurs, nos bons Amis et Alliez," which is given to every canton apart. The Nuncios, Spanish, Venetian, Savoy, and other Italian ministers, give them "Illustrissimi e Potenti Signori," the Emperor and other German princes, Sweden and Denmark, use the German title of "noble, strenuous, right wise, and provident." Their own people speak of or to them as gracious lords and superiors. They differ from all other nations in intercourse with public ministers of state and princes, tying themselves to no constant custom or rule, but vary their public civilities, as their present affections and public interest seem to require, holding it base to dissemble with any for reason of state; and when they conceive themselves wronged, they resent it with manly language, and require satisfaction, wherewith the emperors and kings of France and Spain are well acquainted.

When an ambassador arrives, if they are pleased with him, and the State he represents, he is met by seven or eight chief senators, with gold chains, on horseback, with 200 or 300 horsemen, many officers and trumpeters, &c., in livery, a mile from the town. On meeting the ambassador, they alight and shake hands all round. The eldest senator then makes a long oration in his own language (they holding it dishonourable to use any other) which being interpreted, the ambassador makes another, "full of insinuating expressions." They then march to the city, where 2,000 or 3,000 men meet them, and he is taken to his house or inn; all the cannon on the walls are fired, the musketeers fire three volleys of shot before his house, and the senators then take leave, but are invited to sup with him, "which causes aching heads next morning to those that are not used to such cup skirmishes." Next day, some of their officers in livery present the ambassador with a tun of wine, a cart load of oats, great tubs full of live fish, and sometimes venison. During residence the ambassadors have to keep a great table, entertaining those whom they invite, or who come of good will; and on affairs of great business, as raising men, making up differences, renewing leagues, &c., there are great feasts, which, "with secret bribes, render the amity of that people very dispensious."

The Romish cantons permit their people to take pensions of princes and states, but amongst the Protestant cantons, it is death for any man to be known to take a pension from any state or prince. The cantons in general receive annuities from several princes and states, as from the French King, which they call Friedgelt or peace money, although the French ordinarily call it a pension.

The House of Austria is obliged to send a purse of gold on Midsummer day in every year, to the general diet of the cantons, in recognition of the hereditary alliance they hold with the Swiss; and the King of Spain does the like for the protection of Burgundy. The state of Venice pays to the cantons of Zurich and Berne eight million ducats yearly, and in time of war, so much a month; that state having a particular confederacy with the two greatest cantons. When ambassadors leave, they have the same military civilities as at their coming, but no presents are given to any; and although they are more frequented with public ministers than any other nation or state, they never send any from them to reside anywhere, but upon some important occasion; and their ambassadors return as soon as their business is done, and are magnificently defrayed by those they are sent to, who therefore use all diligence in dispatching their business. The manner used in the German emperor, Christian King, and other lesser princes' courts, is the same that was used here during the regal government.

I beg leave to suggest here, as concerning my place:—

That you should think of the manner in which extraordinary and ordinary ambassadors, and other inferior public ministers shall be received; how far the master of the ceremonies is to meet an extraordinary ambassador on his arrival, and what ceremonies and civilities are to be used when they are brought to the House, for their first and last audiences; whether the ambassador's chair shall be set in the same place it was during the late troubles, when they looked upon the Parliament as subject to another power.

That when audience is granted, the hour be punctually observed, according to constant custom, and some withdrawing-rooms be furnished for him to repose in, until the House or Council of State thinks fit for him to be introduced.

Whether the commonwealth will not think it necessary for him to give in his propositions both in English and in the same language they were uttered, and the like in all negotiations with the Council of State.

That a fit house may be appointed for lodging extraordinary ambassadors, and directions given as to their daily allowance, and for how long; what presents are to be given, and whether they are to sit or stand, and be covered or uncovered, on their first and last audiences.

That before the wardrobe stuff be put up for sale, a sufficient proportion of hangings and other furniture be kept for this use, and that there be a rich coach of state, with the arms of the commonwealth, to bring ambassadors to their state audiences, and another coach of less value to attend them while entertained, and to bring lesser public ministers to their first audiences; the coachmen and postillions to be in the commonwealth's livery.

That two barges may be had, one of state and rich, with arms and other ornaments, and a second, for more ordinary occasions, the bargemasters and watermen also to wear livery.

What persons or officers of state may be visited by ambassadors and other lesser public ministers, and return visits, and whether, in these reciprocal visits, they shall propound any matters of state to be communicated to the House or Council of State.

Whether disaffected persons are to be permitted to frequent their houses.

Whether any officers are to be permitted to offer their service and stipulate capitulations with foreign ministers, before they acquaint the state therewith, and obtain license so to do; and whether it will be safe to transact any important business with those public ministers who now reside here, in regard they negotiate as yet upon their former credentials, which do not assert the supreme authority to be in the Parliament; lest upon advantage, their masters may pretend such negotiations to be invalid. Council of State to Sir William Constable. We have heard your letter to Mr. Frost, representing that few of the people of Hereford are well affected to the present government, and that the place is of concernment, and might prove very dangerous if it should declare against the commonwealth, and give a beginning to new troubles. We desire you to have a watchful eye upon them, to keep that town and castle from being surprised or kept by any malignant party. [I. 94, p. 125.]

Council of State to Col. Edw. Popham. We have received your letter from aboard the Charles, with your journal, and the relation of the good success God has given to you in delivering into your hands the Guinea frigate and two other ships, one a man-of-war and the other a prize from Rochelle. We doubt not but God will so bless your endeavours to reduce the revolted ships, and free the seas from pirates. Concerning the employing of the ship in the State's service, we have asked the opinion of the House, and also their direction for the disposal of the prisoners, as by some ordinances of Parliament, those Irish prisoners and their adherents cannot be ex-

Alleyne has been long a noted and dangerous pirate, we desire you to take special care to send him up in safe custody to London, to be proceeded against according to his demerits. We have sent a copy of your letters to the generals aboard the Triumph in the Downs. [I. 94, pp. 126, 127.]

May 1. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. The generals of Derby House. the fleet say that the Hercules, a considerable ship, has been a good while in victuals and wages at the State's charge, and yet is not gone out to sea. What is the cause of the delay? The State's service is not done by her lying in the river. If she has all things ready, command her out; if aught be wanting, inform us by whose fault it is so. Also that the Phoenix and Tiger frigates lie still in the Hope, and the latter wants her full provision of beef, pork, and peas, and also her boats, without which she cannot go to sea. The generals likewise desire that the Concord and the Cleer galliot at Deptford, and the Dragon at Chatham may be hastened forth, which we recommend to your care, that the commonwealth may have service proportionably to their charge, our condition requiring that we carry on our marine affairs with effect and reputation. May 1. Council of State to Charles Walley. We find that the money Derby House. in your hands is nearly disbursed, and that you cannot provide for and pay your quarters, and dispatch away the forces that yet remain in those parts. We know the country cannot bear them without pay, and with it they are a great pressure. We therefore desire you to take up moneys there not exceeding 2,000*l.*, and draw bills for the same upon Thomas Andrews, lord mayor, and Sir John Wollaston, alderman of London, and the rest of the Army treasurers, payable in 21 days, which we shall order the said treasurers to have accepted and paid. 22. Lieut.-Col. Venables' letter referred to the Irish committee.

 Derby House. the condition of divers prisoners at Scilly, whose case is solicited by Mr. Cooke, one of them now here upon his parole, and desire you to make their exchange with speed, the rather as Cooke's parole is now out, and he must return if his exchange is not made. [I. 94, p. 146.]
- May 7. Council of State to the Army Committee. The House has voted Derby House. 1,300*l.* for the garrison of Plymouth. You are to give warrant to the Treasurers at War to pay it to Col. Ralph Weldon, with expedition, as the business is of consequence to the safety of that important place. [I. 94, p. 146.]
- May 7. Council of State to Charles Walley. Letters from Ireland repre-
 Derby House. sent the state of our affairs in Ulster to be somewhat doubtful, and until we hear further, we have thought fit to suspend the sending thither any money or provisions. If the 1,752*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.* sent you by Sir Adam Loftus to be transmitted to Col. Monk has not been sent away, stay it until further orders; and if it has been put on board of Capt. Clarke, let it be again taken on shore until you hear further from us. Conceal what we write concerning the cause of keeping back the money. [I. 94, p. 147.]
- May 7. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. Prince Rupert intends Derby House. to send some of his revolted ships to Newfoundland, to disturb the fishing there, which would be a very great loss to the fishermen and merchants, and tend to the overthrow and ruin of that trade, and would furnish the enemy with much money for the maintenance of their ships and men by the sale of the fish, which they may easily take and carry thence, the ships fishing there being of no force, nor having any means to defend themselves. We therefore desire you, if consistent with the present state and affairs of the fleet, to send two ships to Newfoundland, with order to defend the fishing ships, and see them safely away when their fishing shall be ended. [I. 94, p. 148.]
- May 7. Council of State to Charles Walley. There are three companies Derby House. of Major Westmorland's appointed to be transported for the defence of Derry. You are, out of the moneys lately appointed you to take up and charge here upon the Treasurers at War, to provide victuals and to take order for their transportation, and use all possible expedition, that place being much pressed by the revolted British, and of great consequence to the commonwealth. You will speedily receive order for the shipping of Capt. Croxton's men, and meantime you are to pay them 6*d.* a day. [I. 94, p. 149.]

those seas, we desire that the Dragon frigate, the Concord, and the Cleer galliot be furnished with what they want, and despatched away to the Downs to attend the service; certify us when they are gone, that we may know in what condition the guard of those seas is, and what service to expect from them. [I. 94, p. 149; Vol. I., No. 86.]

May 7. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. By the enclosed order of the House, you see the power given to this Council to dispose of prisoners, notwithstanding any former ordinances; the executive thereof must be in you, as being upon the place where they are taken. You are to dispose of them as you see to be most for the public service, taking care that such of ours as are prisoners with the enemy may be exchanged with speed. As persons of quality, being aboard ships that are taken, conceal themselves in the habits of common seamen, in particular Sir Hugh Windham, who was aboard the Guinea when she was taken, we desire you to order a strict examination of all the seamen taken, so as to discover such disguise; those found to be but common men we leave it to you to set on shore somewhere in the enemies' quarters, to avoid further charge, or otherwise to dispose of them as you shall see cause. [I. 94, p. 150.]

May 7. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. Eighty tons of timber felled in Eltham park by Mr. Bentley for wharfing being proper for shipping, we desire you to have it brought to the stores at Deptford, and order shall be given for felling as much instead that is not fit for ships. [I. 94, p. 151; Vol. I., No. 87.]

May 7. Council of State to the Bailiffs of Ipswich. Thanks for your care of the prisoners sent into your town by Capt. Peacock. The common men we leave to you, consulting with Capt. Peacock, if he is in those parts, to dispose of as you judge best for disburdening the country of them, by sending them over whence their ship was taken, or otherwise. [I. 94, p. 151.]

May 8. Order in Parliament that the Council of State take order for demolishing Belvoir Castle, and giving satisfaction to the Earl of Rutland for the same, not exceeding 1,500*l.* [I. 87, p. 50.]

3. To write to thank the Mayor of Plymouth for his advertisement of the seamen spending their time in harbour, and to desire him to advertise the generals of it.

15. The Earl of Denbigh, Lord Grey, Sir Hen. Vane, and Mr. Holland to be a committee consider the condition of the relations of Dr. Dorislaus, he being taken from them while in the service of the commonwealth, as also his interment.

16. To recommend to the Navy Committee that the 100*l.* due to the late Dr. Dorislaus, upon account of his former service, be forthwith paid.

17. The Irish Committee to consider the state of the receipts at Goldsmiths' Hall, and take order that such Acts may be provided as will enable the treasurer at the said receipts to pay the money to the use of the army.

18. The Admiralty Committee to state the receipts growing due out of the Excise, and prepare the necessary orders for the Council to pass, and Acts for the House, to enable the treasurers to pay the money to the use of the Navy.

19. Order to be given to the treasurers for the sale of Dean and Chapters' lands, to observe this proportion in their payments, viz., one third for the navy, another for the forces for Ireland, and another as Council shall give order.

21. Col. Pride to relieve the guards in the Tower, as he thinks fit.

23. Col. Venables to complete his regiment, he and Walley to make ready victuals and transport for them to Dublin, and Venables to send 500*l.* with a field officer.

25. The 1,000*l.* formerly ordered for Mr. Hazard to be now consigned to Mr. Powell, and Hazard to arrange with Powell for ships and victuals, as he shall be directed hence.

27. Col. Hungerford to have leave to go to the Bath for recovery of his health, and to be excused from his regiment until the end of July, and have 100*l.* in part of his arrears.

30. Col. Phaire and Col. Stubber to expedite their full force and march for Dublin.

31. Mr. Smith to be authorised to take advantage of the best markets for making provision of corn for Ireland.

32. The money to be paid at Chester for Ireland to be laid out for 1,000 quarters of wheat, which is to be sent to Cheshire and Lancashire to be re-sold, whereby the country will be furnished with bread, and the money will be ready for pay of the soldiers when needed.

33. The Lord President having informed the Council that Sir Wm. Parsons, late one of the Lords Justices of Ireland, has prepared some discourses asserting the English interest in Ireland, and discovering the ingratitude and unworthy dealing of the Irish and their adherents, in partaking in that horrid rebellion there,—particularly one tract called Examen Hiberniæ, and another discourse containing questions, objections, and objection concerning the war in Ireland,—which, if printed and published, may be of public use, the Council order Sir Wm. Parsons to review his tracts and discourses, and cause them to be printed and published.

Also, the Council—being informed that Thomas Waring, formerly clerk of a commission under the Great Seal of Ireland for taking examinations concerning the losses and sufferings of the Protestants, has such examinations, and that they would much tend to the vindication of the Protestant cause and perpetuating infamy upon the Irish Papists; and good testimony being given by Sir Wm. Parsons, Sir Gerard Lowther, and others, of Waring's labors and pains,—refer the preparing and publishing of such examinations to Sir Wm. Parsons and Sir Gerard Lowther, who are to speed the perfecting thereof; the rather as many here, by their cavils and queries,—not knowing the true state of the affairs of that other nation,—turn obstructers of their intended relief, weaken the hands of the well-affected in both nations, and in effect second the designs of the rebels there. Council of State to the Lord General. There was 10,000*l.* brought from Bristol, to be paid for the use of the navy, which is now stayed by some of the army and carried to Windsor; this money being that of particular men who had assignments upon it, its failure, making a breach of the public credit, is of so great prejudice to our affairs that, if it be diverted, no man will ever think himself sure of any public assignments, nor shall we have any further credit for carrying on our affairs without present money. We therefore desire you to order this money to be presently delivered to such as Mr. Allen, or the Treasurer of the Army shall appoint, that it may be brought hither, and paid according to former assignments. We have received our letter returned from you, concerning an increase of 2*d.* a day to the ropemakers at Woolwich, as also your order of 7 May, and have cause to resent that we are so misunderstood as to be inhibited by you to do our duty. We never intended to contract any odium upon you, much less to innovate any increase of charge to the State, unless of great necessity, as this is. We do not urge you to adventure that concession by any primitive power in yourselves; but this we know; that if you have no such ability,—which does not become us to dispute,—you may move the Parliament, whose tender regard to poor men well deserving of the commonwealth we are fully assured is such that they will not suffer them to want sustenance in these necessitous times; especially seeing that in the sweat of those men's brow consists not only their particular living but also that of the republic; and the charge is not particular, but common also, wherein we bear a share with the rest. What interpretation soever may be made of our actions by those that have the supervision of them, we shall not fail to represent the grievances of those under our charge when they represent them to us, and doubt not but they will receive a candid acceptance from you. He is to act as he thinks fit, if he has fears for his own security.

Council of State to Mr. Walley. We appointed you to take up money for sending forces into Ireland, which at this time of the year you will be easily able to do. You are to take care that the arms still wanting for Col. We would have you ship them away as they are ready, and not let all stay till all be ready, lest it be too great a burden to the owners of shipping to wait so long for their freight, or the State be put to the charge of demurrage. We also desire that 300 or 400 of Col. More's men may be sent to Derry, if they be ready before those of Major Westmorland, and in that case, Major Westmorland's are to go to Dundalk; but the first that are ready are to be dispatched to Derry. If Col. More's men be not sent to Derry, but Major Westmoreland's, we would have you dispatch Col. More's and Col. Hungerford's forthwith to Drogheda. Use expedition for completing your regiment, and meantime send away such as are ready to Dublin, that they may not stay until all are ready, so that the country may be eased of their burden, and the ships not too long in expectation of them, which must needs oppress the owners and masters of those vessels, or draw charge upon the State for demurrage. could surprise and keep it, would be of very great prejudice to the peace of this nation, and interrupt trade and commerce. We have ordered a view to be taken of all the castles and forts in the isle, and a return made of their condition. We desire you to prepare an establishment for the said forts and castles, and see them furnished with such stores of ammunition of all kinds as shall be necessary for their transportation (sic). [I. 94, p. 161.]

May 12. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. We are informed by Derby House. several petitions that divers seamen of this nation have been taken prisoners and carried to Scilly and to Kinsale, and other ports of Ireland. We recommend their condition to you, and desire you to cause exchanges to be made of them all by prisoners in your hands, or such as you shall take, as it will tend much to the satisfaction of the seamen, when they see that care is had of them. 22. Mr. Bradshaw to have leave to send a small vessel to Munster to redeem his ship and goods made prize, and to have a convoy thither. [I. 62, p. 305.]

May 14.
Derby House. Council of State to Col. Ashton. We wrote you some time since to disband Capt. Bamber's troop, and pretences are made that obedience was given by him; but we hear to the contrary, and desire you to certify us whether Capt. Bamber did disband upon orders or not. [I. 94, p. 163.]

May 14.
Derby House. Council of State to the Army Committee. Col. Whalley's regiment of horse was appointed to quarter near this town; their quarters should be duly paid, that they may be kept together upon their duty. We therefore desire 1,300*l.* to be paid to that regiment upon account, to be repaid out of its assignations, so that they may be the better enabled to perform the duty required of them for the safety of the Parliament. Derby House. Council of State to the Army Committee. Col. Sanders' regiment is left here at the Mews, for the guard and safety of the Parliament; within five or six days, they will have no money left to pay their quarters, which must necessarily be provided, so that no discontent may grow among the soldiers in this conjuncture of affairs, when so many wait to take all opportunities to fill them with discontent, and to work diversions among them. Let money be provided for them, and they paid, either out of the

You are to appoint some to watch such persons as shall resort thither, and such of them as you know to come from Charles Stuart, eldest son to the late King, or to be going to him, you shall cause to be apprehended and examined, and both the persons and their examinations sent up hither, and also certify us what other persons usually resort thither. May 14. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. The enclosed petition

If they should send thither shipping able to take or destroy those fishermen, it would be a very great prejudice to the commonwealth; and in case of taking any of them, it would be a means to make provision of victuals to the enemy. We recommend you to do what you judge necessary for their preservation. [I. 94, p. 167.]

May 16. Council of State to Lieut.-Gen. Cromwell. By the Lord General's Derby House. letter to the House communicated to us, we are informed of your good success against the revolted troops, whereby we hope there will be a speedy end of those distempers, and the peace of the commonwealth will be happily settled, and the relief of Ireland hastened. May 6. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. Mr. Bradshaw, of Chester, Derby House. is about to freight some ships from the south and west of England and London, with corn for Chester, those parts being in great want thereof, and has desired a convoy for their protection, for want whereof former vessels sent by him and others have miscarried, and thereby corn has risen to a very great price; when such convoy shall be required, take care that it be given. May 16. Council of State to the Doctors of Law at Doctors' Commons. Derby House. There are lodgings in Doctors' Commons in which the late Dr. Dorislaus had an interest, and in which his children, goods, and library remain; endeavours are made to remove them, which, if now done, would be a very great prejudice to the sale of the library, which is of considerable value, and be an unseasonable disturbance to the children, in this time of their grief for so barbarous a murder committed upon their father, whose body is yet uninterred. We therefore desire that neither the children, goods, nor library be removed until after the funeral, and until further orders. [I. 94, p. 171.]

Having been an apprentice and journeyman woollen draper for 10 years, had a commission for viewing, receiving, and sending clothes to Ireland for the soldiers, which trust he faithfully performed, and accounted for to the committee of Accounts, and had his discharge; but 181*l.* 4*s.* 5*d.*, besides his arrears of pay, are yet due, and have not been audited since 31 Jan. 1642-3; and for want thereof, he has suffered much through imprisonment, merely for such monies as he became engaged for at the request of the Irish Committee, for the account of Ireland. Since Davis became contractor for the provisions for Ireland, petitioner has been obstructed, and William Dobbins put into his employment, because petitioner long since discovered the indirect practices of Clotworthy, Davis, and Somers, in embezzling clothes, victuals, and arms designed for Ireland. Parliament declares that they take in very good part the affections testified by the Provincial States of Holland and West Friesland, in their just and tender sense of the horrid murder of Dr. Dorislaus, and their care of future security to Mr. Strickland, the resident, and doubt not but they shall find the same tender sense and care from the States General.

That they also take in good part the affections expressed by the Lord Ambassador, and desire his endeavour still to continue the good correspondence between the two nations.

That for further answer, Parliament refers the Ambassador to the Council of State.

That the Council of State communicate this sense of the Parliament to the Ambassador, as the answer of Parliament, with such further enlargement as they think fit.

Also that they consider what further address may be made to such Ambassador, for settling a nearer and more firm union between the two nations. [I. 87, pp. 55, 56.]

8. Mr. Stapley, Col. Wauton, Sir Hen. Mildmay, Col. Purefoy, and Sir Arthur Hesilrigge to be a committee concerning the imposition upon salt, coals, and grindstones at Newcastle.

9. Order—upon the petition of Robert Hammond and other merchants of London, claiming certain goods in the possession of Mr. Coney, which were taken from them by a pirate and carried to Ostend, and thence consigned to Coney in London,—that, inasmuch as the correspondency with the pirate, which was the ground upon which the warrant from the Council of State was issued, is not proved, the first proprietors, who were the first and true owners, shall have all the liberty which the rules of justice afford for their relief, and be permitted to view the goods, so as to enable them to attach them, either at law or in the Admiralty; and such view being had, that the order of this Council be taken off, and both parties left at liberty to prosecute their rights where they please.

10. Daniel Bradford, agent for collecting the money upon the ordinance of 16 Feb. 1647–8, in county Norfolk, for the service of Ireland, to have the same allowance as the agent for Essex.

11. The answer to the Dutch Ambassador now read to be copied and sent by Sir Oliver Fleming.

12. The packet formerly ordered for Mr. Strickland to be sent express, and also a copy of the above letter to the Dutch Ambassador.

13. The business of Col. Rokesby's horse regiment to be considered next Tuesday.

14. 6,000*l.* to be advanced out of the 100,000*l.* from the receipts from dean and chapters' lands assigned for the army, for disbanding Major-Gen. Lambert.

16. Mr. Waterton's petition and account of losses to be sent to Mr. Augier, and he requested to certify his knowledge of the fact. [I. 62, pp. 328–331.]

May 19. Council of State to Capt. Nixon. By yours of the 8th inst. we Derby House. find you are in the Hope, having brought thither a fleet of merchant ships. You are to repair into the Downs to Capt. Badiley, and receive his orders, he being left to manage the affairs in those parts by the Generals, who are gone westward. The Navy Commissioners will order supply of the clothes you mention. [I. 94, p. 155.]

May 19. Council of State to Major Mathias Westmorland. We desire Derby House. that no time be lost in your embarking, lest the place you are sent to preserve should be lost by delay. Use all possible expedition, and as for your articles by which you were designed to another place, and your bond upon them, you shall be indemnified of them, being sent by us to another place. We have written for a convoy for you, and given full order to Mr. Walley for all things. [I. 94, p. 179.]

May 19. Council of State to Capt. Geo. Bishop [of Bristol]. We have yours Derby House. from Bristol concerning the release of some ships bound for Malaga and Newfoundland, taken up for transport of soldiers into Ireland; through the late distemper in some regiments designed for that service, the forces are not ready; and being unwilling to stay the ships to their prejudice, we have ordered the Generals at sea to discharge them; but lest that order should not be come from the Generals to that port, we hereby discharge all ships taken up for the said service, until further order. As to the barks for Ireland carrying news of discouragement, the providence of God has so ordered affairs as that if, when they come there, they report truth, they can speak nothing but to the advantage of the commonwealth. To prevent anything that they might feign to the public prejudice, if you will write by them what you cannot but have heard of the breaking of the mutinied and distempered troops, they will carry their own contradiction with them; that will carry more weight than all the reports of calumny and disaffection. [I. 94, pp. 180, 181; 62, p. 323.]

May 19. Council of State to Mr. Walley. We understand that Major Derby House. Westmorland's men are now ready, and we know there is need of them at Derry. Give them the most speedy dispatch you can, and as there are no arms at Derry, let them be armed at Chester, if you can procure pikes; if they cannot be bought, if you could procure them out of any stores there, we will re-supply them by the same ship that brings the 80 barrels of powder that is to come speedily to Chester; what other arms they want let them be furnished there, and if some small sum is needed to get them on board, do what is necessary, only use frugality, but dispatch them with what speed you can.

There is shipping returned from Dublin that carried Tothill's regiment; let these men be shipped therein, and also Col. Venables' men, as they shall be ready. Pikes and swords, and bandoleers shall be sent from hence to the magazine at Dublin. Muskets must be provided at Chester, but so that they do not exceed the price here, and be as good. There being sufficient convoy upon those coasts, we again desire that men may be transported as they are ready, and not lie a burden to the country and a loss to the poor seamen that must transport them, while they wait so long for their freight; Capt. Croxton's company and Col. Hungerford's regiment should be forthwith dispatched. As for the money you speak of as drawing towards an end, effectual means should be used for your further supply. As there may be difficulty to get in the forces at Derry, we desire they may have victuals with them to bring them back to Dundalk, if they cannot get in. [I. 94, pp. 181, 182.]

May 19. Council of State to the Lord General. The sheriffs of Lincoln
Derby House. complain that some troops under Major-General Lambert much oppress that country by taking free quarter, notwithstanding that the country have paid all their assessments due to the army, and a particular assessment that they might be freed from free quartering. If those troops be within the establishment of the army, let them be commanded to forbear the taking of free quarter, Parliament having provided for them otherwise; if not within the establishment, but to be disbanded, we offer it to you whether it will not be for the service of the commonwealth, and the speedy ease of the country where they are quartered, for them to be taken on for the recruiting of such troops as have, in this late revolt, been broken and dispersed. If otherwise, the Council will provide money for their disbanding. [I. 94, p. 184.]

May 19. Council of State to Cap. Abraham Wheeler. We have ordered
Derby House. Mr. Walley to dispatch Major Westmorland's forces to Derry, and the rest of the forces now ready to Ireland. You are to give convoy to the ships carrying them, and if by reason of the siege of Derry they cannot get in, they are to have a convoy back to Dundalk. [I. 94, p. 185.]

May 19. Council of State to Capt. Badiley. The enclosed dispatch to Derby House. Mr. Strickland, resident with the States General at the Hague, is of great consequence. You are to order some fit vessel to transport it to Holland, and by such a person as you shall think fit to entrust it with, to be delivered into Mr. Strickland's own hands. The charges of the party shall be paid, but we desire all possible speed may be used in delivery of the letter. [I. 94, p. 185.]

May 19. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. We are of your opinion
Derby House. that it is of great concern to look to the breaking of Rupert's fleet, for though you keep the seas open for trade this summer, while we have so great a fleet out, yet if his fleet be not broken, our merchants will suffer most when they are here wind-bound in winter, besides our loss of reputation, and their increase of it, that they have been able to subsist against all the endeavours of so great and powerful a fleet as we have not had at sea during all these troubles. We recommend that work to your special care.

Upon the first notice of your taking the Guinea frigate and the Thomas, we gave order for setting them out in the service, but the ——— of Waterford, we never heard of until now. If they be not done, we desire they may be all forthwith set out; and this order to you we shall communicate to the Navy Commissioners, who are to attend Council on Tuesday about your victuals; meantime, for the two months' victuals which makes the six into eight months, there is 11,000*l.* appointed, for which credit is given in the ports, and you can anywhere take up moneys not exceeding that proportion, and draw your bill within a reasonable time after sight, and give us letters of advice, and we shall take care that credit shall be given to them. We hope that the order for dismissal of the ships stayed by our order for transportation of forces to Ireland has come to your hand, and that they are discharged. We hope, through the blessing of God, the distemper among the forces designed for that service is at an end, those mutinied forces being broken, and when we have forces ready, we shall give you timely notice for preparation of shipping. For the ships that lie in harbour, if there be any such thing, you will have particulars in Plymouth, whence we had the information.

There has been some discouragement put upon the Customs' officers at Plymouth, about the goods of the Guinea frigate. The customs are the revenue by which the navy is maintained, and therefore those employed at sea in the service should give them all furtherance. You are to inquire into this business, and see that right be done to the officers, and give special charge to all in command under you to assist and encourage the Customs' officers. [I. 94, pp. 187, 188.]

May 21. Order in Parliament that the Council of State, Lord Mayor of London, Major-General Skippon, and all other justices of the peace within London and Westminster and the liberties thereof, and the several committees of the several militias of London, Westminster, and the hamlets respectively, and all other officers be required to use their utmost endeavours for apprehending all such persons as were in the late rebellion, and are fled from the General, so that they may be brought to justice, except such as have been dismissed by the General, and have a pass under his hand.

May 21. Order in Parliament that the Council of State consider a former order as to demolishing Gooderich Castle, and as to satisfaction to the Countess of Kent in respect thereof. [I. 87, p. 56.]

2. Col. Wauton and Alderman Pennington to speak with the present and former collectors of prize goods, about the matter in difference concerning the receipt of prize goods.

3. The business of the prisoners in Dover Castle to be considered to-morrow, and the collectors for prize goods to furnish money for their charges until their discharge.

6. Mr. Scott to report to the House the paper given in by the trustees for dean and chapters' lands, concerning allowances for the surveyors to be employed.

7. To report to the House that application ought to be made from the Parliament of England to that of Scotland.

8. To present to the House the letter now read, to be sent to the Parliament there, if the House shall judge fit. [I. 62, pp. 336, 337.]

May 21. Council of State to the Collectors for Prize Goods. A difference
Derby House. having arisen between the late collectors for prize goods and those now established, touching the receiving of moneys for prize goods sold since 22 Feb. last, you are to bring in an account of all the prize goods and ships sold since that date, although taken before, and of all ships and goods in your hands unsold. Harwich.* 94. Capt. Jas. Peacock to John Holland, Navy Surveyor. The winds have blown so extremely that they have beaten me up to ride between the sands against Harwich, where there are now 100 ships and small vessels bound northward; Capt. Wilshire is there still, and cannot put to sea in regard of the extremity of the easterly winds. The Star frigate is in Yarmouth Roads, or gone for the Brill, with the Yarmouth fleet, but I cannot hear of the rest of the squadron, and have not seen any of them since I came to this coast. Our ship has grown very foul, and cannot do that service she will do when clean; send me an order for her tallowing, and a bill to receive money out of the Custom House at Ipswich or some other place, and I will give an account how it is disbursed. The hoy that brought the provisions down to Chatham has a leak, and 35 bushels of peas have been damaged by salt water; pray order a supply in lieu of them. [1 page.] Enclosing,

- May 22. Order in Parliament.—Sir Hen. Vane, junior, having reported the draft of a letter from the Council of State, to be signed by the Speaker, and sent to the President of the Parliament in Scotland, and it being approved—that it be signed by the Speaker, and that the Council of State see it sent away by a messenger forthwith [I. 87, p. 57.]

10. Mr. Frost to speak with Lady Brooke about the money due to Dr. Dorislaus, to represent to her his service to the State, his death in it, and the sense the Council has of his dying in that manner, and to desire that the money may be speedily paid to his children.

May 22. Council of State to Wm. Rowe. The Parliament has written Derby House. letters to the Parliament of Scotland, and referred it to this Council to see them sent away. From their experience of you in the like service, they desire you to repair to this Council, where you shall find your dispatch ready. As the Parliament of Scotland sits on Tuesday next, and does not usually sit long, we would have no time lost, and therefore require you either to come presently hither, or, if you cannot go, send word by the bearer, that we may think upon some other. [I. 94, p. 189.]

May 22. Council of State to the Lord General. We wrote to Major-Gen.
Derby House. Lambert to send for Morris, who was in Pontefract Castle, and try him by a council of war; but we are informed by some gentlemen of Lancashire, that he and some other prisoners remain still there, and that it is doubted he will be able to make an escape. We therefore desire you to dispatch a commission to such officers as you shall judge fit to try him, and to such others as are there, with all expedition. [I. 94, p. 190.]

Also that the 1,000*l.* be charged upon the public revenue, to be paid before Midsummer out of the portion formerly appointed to the Queen of Bohemia. [I. 87, p. 52.]

29. To report to the House that the Council, being informed that some persons were to arrive at Dover from Holland likely to bring letters of concernment, sent Capt. Sexby to apprehend such as he suspected, and amongst others he apprehended Walter Breame, a Kentish gentleman who had been in the last rebellion, and whose composition had been made for him in his absence. That several letters were found upon him from enemies of the commonwealth, referring to the death of Dr. Dorislaus, and by some contradictions in his examination, the Council suspected him to be privy to, if not a party in the death of Dr. Dorislaus, and therefore first committed him to Peterhouse, and have now sent him to the Tower, to be kept close prisoner, and they are of opinion that he deserves to be sequestered. Council of State to Col. James Temple [governor of Tilbury]. We have recommended the furnishing the fortifications at Tilbury to the Committee of Essex. The riding of vessels in the river before the fort, we have recommended to the Admiralty Committee; but those now in the river are all appointed their stations, and come in only to victual, being so small in hold that they cannot contain victuals for any length of time. Council of State to the Essex Committee. The Governors of the West Tilbury Fort write that the place has begun to be so fortified by you that, if it were finished, it would be of very great consequence both to the safety of the shipping in the river, and also to the county, to prevent the landing there of any foreign forces. You know how much you are concerned to keep an enemy from among you, by the sad experience of some parts of your county in the last year's rebellion. Let this good work, which you have prudently begun, be finished, and such care taken for the garrisoning and defence of it, that it may answer the end; otherwise to have proceeded thus far, and then to leave it imperfect is to leave it capable of surprise, and yet prepared to be kept by those who may take it, if they presently finish it. As Parliament has lately granted you the compositions of your delinquents, for those parts of their estates also that lie out of your county, we conceive you will be very ready to carry on and finish that business. [A copy of this to be sent to Col. Jas. Temple.] [I. 94, pp. 191, 192; 62, p. 353.]

Council of State to the Lord General. Practices are still continued to corrupt the discipline of the regiments and debauch them from their obedience, and nothing has given more advantage thereto than the too frequent absence of the officers, whereby emissaries sent among the men have had the greater freedom to infect them with those destructive principles, and the soldiers have taken the greater liberty to live at discretion, to the grievance of the people, raising in them, by sense of their present burdens, a greater disaffection to the present government. You are to give strict order to all the officers of all the regiments, troops, and companies whatsoever, to repair forthwith to their several charges, and to be there resident, and to have a careful eye over them, and keep them exactly to the rules and discipline of the army, and to apprehend emissaries sent to corrupt them with principles of mutiny and disobedience. This we the rather recommend to you, from intimations we have had that, besides those sent from Lieut.-Col. Lilburne and his party, there are some also sent from the seminaries beyond seas, mingled with or listed in the regiments, which you must charge the officers to enquire after. We hope this course will be an effectual means to prevent the further spreading, and in a short time wholly to cure the army of the dangerous distempers with which several parts thereof have been infected. 1. Col. Temple's propositions for money for fortifying Tilbury Fort to be reported to the House by Sir Wm. Masham, as also the opinion of the Council that, upon discovery of the money, Col. Temple ought to have one half upon account towards fortifying the Fort.

5. The money in the hands of the treasurers for the sale of Dean and Chapters' lands to be paid out, one third part to the use of the navy, another third to the Irish forces, and the other third as the Council thinks fit.

6. The commanders of the several garrisons of North Wales now in town to attend Council for orders, so that they may return to their respective charges.

8. Warrant to be issued to the Treasurer for Dean and Chapters lands to pay 500*l.* per week for one month, to enable the surveyors to proceed to their several surveys.

9. Messrs. Purefoy and Heveningham to be a committee to examine—Chizeman, and witnesses against him, as to his being in a late mutiny in one of the regiments.

11–13. The Irish Committee to consider what use may be made of Col. Rokesby's horse regiment, either for the Irish or English service, as also how a foot regiment of 16 companies may be framed in the North for service in Ireland. Also how much of the 6,000*l.* ordered for disbanding Major-Gen. Lambert's horse and foot may be spared by putting them under an establishment for England or Ireland. Also the paper given in by the contractors for Ireland.

15. To report to the House that—whereas they appointed 6,000*l.* for repair of the fortifications of Hull, and charged it upon the Excise, upon which credit the work was begun; but the 6,000*l.* being removed from the Excise and not charged any where else, the work has been stopped;—the place being of great importance, the amount ought to be re-charged on the Excise or elsewhere.

17. The Earl of Denbigh, Sir Hen. Vane, Col. Martin, Col. Purefoy, and Mr. Scott to be a committee to consider the time and manner of the funeral of Dr. Dorislaus.

18. The Irish prisoners in Plymouth to be sent to prisons in that county, and the generals at sea to use them for the redemption of our prisoners or otherwise.

20. Col. Ludlow, Mr. Holland, and Col. Hutchinson to be a committee upon the petition of the workmen of sword blades.

21. Order,—upon the petition of Peter Bowden Courteene, Peter Michaels,¹ and Giles Tyson and Co., merchants of Middleburg, recommended to the Council by the States' Ambassador, that the ship mentioned, being now out in the service, cannot be delivered as desired without prejudice; but when she comes in, they shall have what in reason shall be fit for her freight. Council of State to Colonel Blount and Mr. Woodcot. A quantity of money has lately been taken in a Dutch vessel, now in the Thames, that was to have been transported. You are to take a strict examination of its master and officers, to ascertain by whom the money was shipped, to whom consigned, and for what purpose it was to be employed. [I. 94, p. 195.]

Council of State to the Lord General. Notwithstanding all the pretences made of the pretended King of Scotland's going to Scotland or Ireland, if their designs take effect in making any considerable party, or surprising any port of consequence, their intention is to come for England, and there have been practices to insure Plymouth, Dover, and Hull, in which, if they should prevail, it would much inflame the present distempers, and cause them to break out into a new war. We therefore recommend those places to your special care.

VOL. I.

Some garrisons are in the hands of those who have also command in the army, and some commanders have more garrisons than one, and are necessitated to be absent from their charge, either in the army or garrisons, whereby an opportunity is given for debauching soldiers from their duty, or betraying garrisons to the enemy. You are therefore to take order that the garrisons be not in charge of those who have other commands, but be put into the hands of others of approved fidelity, that commanders in the army may be resident with their regiments, troops, and companies, whereby both the garrisons may be safe from surprise, and the soldiers kept in discipline and to their duty. We hear from a hand that has given us much good intelligence, that Col. Overton in Hull is not so sure to us as is supposed; we therefore desire that a commission may be given to Lieut.-Col. Salmon to be Lieut.-Colonel to Col. Overton, and be resident in Hull. [I. 94, p. 197.]

May 28.
Whitehall.

Council of State to the Treasurers-at-War. We have ordered Mr. Walley, at Chester, to draw bills upon you for 2,000*l.* for the service of Ireland. He says that because of the long waiting to get the bills accepted and paid, he cannot take up money there as formerly. We have written to him to charge 2,000*l.* more, and desire that his bill, if he can obtain any money, may be accepted and paid, with reputation to the State and content to those who are to receive it, it being a very great disservice to weaken the public credit by making delays, when there is money ready wherewith to discharge. [I. 94, p. 197.]

May 28.

Council of State to Capt. Saml. Howett of the Concord. As the generals of the fleet have appointed you to give convoy, you are to sail to Capt. Rich. Badiley of the Happy Entrance in the Downs, who is acting there as commander-in-chief of the convoy squadron, and observe his orders, unless you receive others from the Council or Generals of the fleet. When not in service, you are to ply out at 'sea, for clearing the coast of pirates and rovers. With note of a like order to Capt. Anth. Young of the Dragon. [I. 123, p. 51.]

May 28.
Whitehall.

Council of State to Capt. Owen Cox of the Recovery. By your instructions from the Generals of the Fleet, of 3 March last, you were ordered to ply between the Thames' mouth and Newcastle, for the defence of colliers and other merchant ships, and to have special regard to the trade of York and Hull, convoy ships to Hamburg and the East country, and English ships from thence for any of the ports of England. You are to continue your employment, but not to convoy any vessel going over for Hamburg or the Eastland country until you have a number of vessels to go together; and you are to keep in port as little as may be, plying constantly at sea for clearing of those parts from pirates and sea rovers. In case you meet with Capt. Peacock, to whom the generals have given the command in chief of the northern squadron, you are to observe his further instructions. [I. 123, p. 52.]

Council of State to Capt. Reynolds of the Crescent frigate. As you are lately come to Portsmouth to be re-victualled, and expect our orders, we wish you to pursue your former instructions given by the Generals of the Fleet for the safe guarding of Guernsey. We hear that you and the rest of the vessels appointed for that island spend most of your time in riding at anchor there, which we conceive not the best service for the State; we desire that guard to ply to and fro on the sea, to clear those parts of pirates and sea rovers, and especially you, having a nimble sailing vessel, are to ply constantly at sea, and look into the island once in 24 hours or two days. Council of State to Capt. Rich. Badiley. As several vessels laden with corn &c., bound for London, have lain 7 weeks in Newhaven, Brighthelmstone, &c., in Sussex, attending a convoy, we require you to send some considerable vessel to these ports to convoy them into the Thames. [I. 123, p. 53.]

COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

2. Col. Temple's proposition referred to the Admiralty Committee.

3. The warrant to the treasurers for Dean and Chapters' lands for the payment of 100,000*l.* to the Navy to be amended by repeating the Act, and putting in the date of 12 May, and the clause that Sir Hen. Vane's receipt shall be a sufficient discharge; to be then signed by the Lord President, and a duplicate given to the Treasurers.

5. To write to tell the Lord General the intelligence received concerning Sir Bernard Gascoigne, and what has been done therein.

6. The Lord General and Lieut.-General to consider of forces to secure Guernsey and reduce Jersey.

7. To write to the Generals of the Fleet that Council has resolved on the reduction of Jersey, and consult them how it is to be done, and request them to correspond with the Lord General thereon.

9. Mr. Martin to report to the House that there are two inns at Gravesend to which disaffected persons resort, by means of two bridges on the Thames, and that much prejudice is done to the commonwealth by shipping gold and silver, and receiving and sending letters; that the justices for Kent have suppressed the houses by taking away their licenses, but they have obtained new ones, either by the aid of the wine office, or some other hand, and that therefore it would be an advantage to take down the bridges and the wine office.

12. The business of the Mint officers to-morrow.

13. Capt. Chapman, of Col. Reynolds' regiment, to attend to-morrow, if in town.

16. The business of having a man-of-war to lie in the Thames to be considered next Thursday.

18. Sir Hen. Mildmay, Sir Wm. Masham, Sir Jas. Harrington, and Mr. Stapley to be a committee on Capt. Fearmes' proposition concerning fishing.

19. The Ipswich letter, complaining of their being overburdened with prisoners from sea, referred to the Admiralty Committee.

20. To add to the report to the House, on behalf of the Earl of Rutland, that the 507*l.* 14*s.* 9½*d.* in his hands should be retained by him, in part payment of a greater sum for demolishing Belvoir Castle.

21. Sir Jno. Borlace's petition for the recruit of his regiment referred to the Irish Committee.

Council of State to the Committee of Devon. Many prisoners are sent into Plymouth by the generals at sea, and cannot be kept there conveniently, neither can we give order for their discharge until the return of the generals from Ireland, so that we may then see what use may be made of them by exchange or otherwise; you are meantime to cause them to be divided into the rest of the prisons in your county to be kept in safety. Council of State to the Governor of Lancaster Castle. Thanks for your care in preventing Lancaster Castle from being surprised; you are to examine all whom you think fit for further discovery of that design, and certify us, that order may be taken for their trial; such as you have already in custody, or shall find just cause to apprehend, should be kept in safe custody in Lancaster gaol until brought to trial. Council of State to Col. Stubber. We heard of the miscarriages of your soldiers while in Kent, and since their going thence, we have had complaints of them from many places where they passed. How people of meaner condition were oppressed by the common sort of them will easily be judged by the carriage of some of their officers to Sir Jas. Harrington, M.P., at whose house, near Uxbridge, four soldiers quartered last Saturday night; the behaviour of two of them named Monday and Hack, serjeants in Capt. Sydenham's company was most insufferable, threatening to press into his lady's chamber, now lying-in, because they could not be satisfied in what they pleased to ask, and would not take quarter money under 1*s.* 4*d.* a day. As to the Act of Parliament, they said they esteemed it not so much as a straw under their feet, and generally threatened to ruin and spoil things, when they could not have what they asked. Sir James is forced to continue at home to preserve his house from their spoil, and can neither attend the House nor this Council. What other people suffer from them that have not the heart or way to make their grievances known you may well judge.

The alienating of men's minds from the present Government by the barbarous carriage of these men (whose deportment is as if they had conquered the nation) will be greater disservice to the commonwealth than they will be able to make good by all the service they are like to do in Ireland. You are to send Monday and Hack up hither in custody, to be proceeded against as such disorderly people deserve, who, instead of being instrumental to keep discipline in the army, are themselves the chiefest among those that break it. You are also to repair forthwith to your regiment, and command all your officers to do the like, and to march constantly with them, and remain with them in their quarters, and see that exact discipline be observed and quarters duly paid, and that they march peaceably, so that the country may not be oppressed, nor the Parliament and Council troubled with complaints, and compelled to use force to keep the country in peace. Council of State to Major-Gen. Lambert. We have referred to a committee to consider how the best advantage may be made of the forces of horse and foot which you mention, whether by new modelling or disbanding, and will transmit you the result in a day or two, and answer you satisfactorily as to the money for disbanding, so that the men shall neither be necessitated to disobey the Act about free quarters, nor the country have cause to complain of neglect or breach of promise. We have put Capt. Bamber's business into a way of examination. [I. 94, p. 202.]

May 29.

Council of State to Mr. Walley. Capt. Hunt has already 20 horses to be transported to Ireland, and has provided very good ones, though he had but a small sum for it; he desires 12*d.* a day for each horse and man, until they are transported, which we wish you to pay; as also 6*l.* due to him since his former going to Ireland. You say you have no order for dispatch of Capt. Croxton's men, but as order was given under the notion they were Col. Hungerford's, you are to dispatch them immediately. [I. 94, p. 203.]

Council of State to Hen. Tiddiman, of Dover. You will see by the enclosed petition, together with the testimony from the Admiralty of Bruges, what is informed against you. If you had just cause and authority for detention of the ship, you ought to have informed this Council, or proceeded in law against her; if the thing prove true, as is suggested, you have done an act of dangerous consequence, and tending to the breach of treaty between this nation and the house of Burgundy. You are therefore to repair to us without fail to answer this accusation. [I. 94, p. 207.]

Council of State to the Generals at Sea. The present state of Jersey is such that if attempted with a convenient force, it would not be difficult to reduce it; we have consulted the Lord-General what may be necessary as to land forces, but as the service is for the most part by sea, you are to consider how it may be best attempted, and with what force; that when your affairs where you now are permit your return, or the return of any one of your number, with a proportion of your fleet fit for this service, all other things may be ready for the prosecution thereof. Council of State to the Lord Mayor of London. There are two new landing bridges erected at Gravesend, of very great prejudice, by the conveying away of gold and silver, and the going out and coming in of persons disaffected. As those bridges are an encroachment to the river Thames, they fall under your power as conservators of the river, and can be taken order against in your sessions of sewers. We therefore refer it to your special care to proceed against them in your next session, and remove them with expedition. [Vol. 115, pp. 206, 207.]

Council of State to Capt. Coppin of the Greyhound. You have lately received orders for conveying several ships to Hamburg, since which the generals of the fleet have designed you for other service. We have reformed religion, brought the church near to what it was in primitive times, done extreme justice on the late tyrant, and transformed the kingdom into a commonwealth. We also voted down the House of Lords when it would serve our turn no longer. It is true we had sworn to maintain it, but we did not swear solemnly by kissing the book, or else we had been bound in conscience to uphold it longer*

 I have smelt out many plots and designs against the State. When a piece of plaster fell from the roof, some cried treason and fled, but I crept under the bench, and would not forsake my duty.

When this Parliament began, two members who sat by me took offence at something I said, and in zeal to the crown, ran off to Oxford, and their estates are now to be sold. I think I have deserved one. I have kept a clear conscience, and I forgive my back-biters. What others have said displeasing to the House has often been laid to my charge. A committee should be formed for the cleansing of the houses of office belonging to the Parliament House, &c., &c. [7 pages.]

101. Note that Paulus Grebnerus was in England with Queen Eliz. in 1582, and presented her with a fair MS. in Latin, describing the future history of Europe, here and there limning in water-colours some principal passages. Dr. Nevil, one of Her Majesty's chaplains, obtained this book, and bestowed it on the library of Trinity College, Cambridge, where it has been published to the view of all persons, until, about five or six years ago, by much perusing and ill-handling, it was much slurred and defaced. In his predictions, he describes the troubles of Russia, and the election of a Swedish King, Sigismund by name, to be King of Polonia, by which he shall irrecoverably lose his own inheritance.

That of the Swedish race there should be one Gustavus Adolphus, who should take heart from the distraction of Germany to invade the Empire with a small army, fight many battles prosperously, but should at last perish in a pitched field.

That about that time a northern King shall reign, Charles by name, who shall take to wife Mary of the Popish religion, from which time he shall be a most unfortunate prince. Then the people of his dominion shall choose to themselves another commander or governor, viz., an Earl, whose government shall last three years or thereabouts; and afterwards the same people shall choose another commander or governor, viz., a knight, not of the same family nor dignity, who shall trample all things under his feet; he shall endure somewhat longer time, and after him they shall choose none. After him shall appear one Charles, descending from Charles, with a mighty navy, on the shores of his father's kingdom, and with aid from Denmark, Sweden, Holland, and France, shall overthrow his adversaries, and shall govern his kingdom wonderfully and happily, and shall bear rule far and near, and shall be greater than Charles the Great. foreigners,—French, English, Danes, and Swedes,—a horrible, bloody, and cruel war shall arise, with which all Europe shall be amazed, and being diversely rent, shall be subject to notable alterations. At this time shall the King of Sweden, invited by letters from some sorrowful lieutenant pertaining to the Roman state, enter upon war, and make an inroad into Pomerland, and other Danish provinces; which letters, if he shall yield unto and join with them in that war, it will in fine succeed ill. Wherefore I persuade Sweden to leave it in the same state he found it, that so himself and his posterity may be preserved in peace; but if he shall resolve with himself to move, and persuade his people to that war, the Lord will take away his life. Afterwards Charles the Great, the son of Charles, who with great success and fortune shall rule over a northern nation, shall oppose the Spanish navy and Armada, and join his forces with the Christian princes, and shall fight valiantly with them; and afterwards God shall call the King's wife, being a Papist, out of this life, and shall cause much fear in the Bishop of Rome, which fear shall wax much greater when King Charles shall oppose Antichrist, and shall join his strength to the German powers, and other neighbouring nations, and oppose the Spanish diadem; and then the Swede with happy success shall use his navy and soldiers by sea and land, against the enemy. Council of State to Col. Rich. Yours of the 3rd instant has been read at the Council, the Lord General and Lieut.-General being present. The Lord General has taken notice of what concerns the soldiers of the army, and will give order about the soldiers of Capt. Swan who have committed those outrages. You are to order examinations to be taken, and some to be bound to prosecute them next assizes, that they may receive according to their deserts, and the people see that the laws are their protection, if they will seek it.

The engagement made by your soldiers finds good acceptance here; you are still to keep a watchful eye over them, and observe if any emissaries are sent among them, to delude and withdraw them from their obedience. You mention some absent hence, and present there, whose correspondence with your soldiers and their own countrymen rather promotes than allays distempers. We know not whom you mean; when you declare more particularly, we will use all fit means to prevent inconveniences thereby. Col. Sydney will be spoken to to repair to his charge, and you must appoint some to prosecute those of Capt. Swan's company that are secured, and apprehend any more of them guilty of those murders and other foul acts. [I. 94, pp. 212, 213.]

Council of State to the Lord General. We wrote you to order all officers of the army to repair to their charge to prevent disorders, but we have still complaint of their absence, and disorder of the soldiers thereby, and in particular that a company of dragoons is now at St. Neot's without officers, and a great trouble to the place. You are to command all officers to their charge, and in particular those of the said company, that those inconveniences, whereby the people are much discontented and alienated from the Parliament, may be avoided. [I. 94, p. 213.]

Council of State to the Generals at Sea. We have consulted with Col. Popham about disposing of the fleet, and think the Charles should be sent away from Kinsale to the Downs, there being none of great burthen in that place but the Happy Entrance, and there being ships sufficient besides for blocking up Kinsale, and for the rest of the service in those parts. [I. 94, p. 214.]

Council of State to Sir Geo. Ayscue. You intimate your being at Beaumaris, and desire direction. When the forces are ready to be transported, we will send you word, and for that purpose desire you to leave some small vessel about Beaumaris or Holyhead, that may give you advertisements; meantime we leave it to you to ply up and down on those seas, and do such service as you judge best. Council of State to Col. Kelsey, Governor of Oxford. You mention your stay of two horses that passed by your garrison, pretending to go for Plymouth, to be shipped for Barbadoes, for Mr. Percy. We find those horses are a part of 50 that this Council, for the better promoting that plantation (the care whereof, as of all other plantations, is committed to it) gave warrant to Maurice Thomson and Wm. Piennoyer to transport thither. We thank you for your care to prevent mischief, but desire you to deliver the horses to the bearer, that he may proceed to Plymouth, where the ship is ready for them, as, if he misses the opportunity of transporting them, it will be a very great prejudice to his plantation. [I. 94, p. 215.]

June 5.

Council of State to Christopher Worgan, Andrew Horne, Thomas Berow, and Arth. Rowls, preservators of the Forest of Dean. You certify the Committee of Revenue of waste and spoil made upon the timber and wood in the forest, notwithstanding orders for its preservation. Council of State to Robert Rich, Robert Wood, Robt. Paynell, &c. You complain of misdemeanors of certain persons in your county, on pretence of some deputation from Major Tovey and Capt. Gooch. We find that at the time of the fleet's setting forth, some commission was given by the generals at sea to the said captain and major, to discover such seamen and others as, having put themselves into the service, might after prove false to the interest of the commonwealth, and endanger distemper again in the fleet. By virtue of that commission, they have, since the going out of the fleet, made other discoveries, whereupon they were allowed by the Council to proceed in that business; but it was not known to us that they made any deputies abroad, or that any such exorbitancies were committed by them. Thanks for your information and care to secure the offenders. We have sent to the generals at sea to recall their commissions (the extent of which we know not), and have signified to

June 9. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. You complain of Whitehall. the refractoriness of the Dutch masters of ships that were taken up to transport horses for Ireland. We meant that they should have reasonable freight, and know not why they should refuse it; the necessity of the public service required that we should use them, being no more than is usually done on the like occasion, and neither against the law of nations, nor any treaty between us, which we have also signified to the Dutch Ambassador, and he rests satisfied. We thereupon desire you to proceed to contract with them, and let them have the like freight by the month that they could have from any private person, and they shall have convoy until they return to the Downs. That the arrears of the fee-farm rents payable by the Earl to the State be allowed in part of the said 1,500*l.*; that the remainder be paid out of the growing rent, and that the Revenue Committee make allowance and defalcation accordingly.

That the Council of State ascertain whether the said castle be demolished, and take care that the same is effectually done according to agreement.

June 11. Order in Parliament that, in order that the House may declare a time when they will adjourn, the Council of State prepare and present to the House with all speed such things as are necessary to be considered and passed in the House before an adjournment. [I. 87, pp. 63–66.]

June 11. Council of State to the Judges. A very foul riot being committed at Leicester on the 3rd inst., we recommend to you that the authors and actors therein be proceeded against according to law. We have written to the justices of peace of the county, and to the justices and mayor of Leicester, that examinations may be taken, and all things put in readiness for your proceeding. [I. 94, p. 222.]

June 11. Council of State to the Mayor and Justices of Peace for the county of Leicester. We are informed of a seditious riot, and great insolency and violence used towards Dr. Harding, appointed to preach a probation sermon by the Committee of the County, in order to his being entertained as a preacher at Knighton, upon a call of sundry of the inhabitants. The thing seems of a very heinous nature, much against the laws, and full of contempt of the present Government, and ought to be strictly prosecuted, and the authors severely punished. You are to make diligent inquiry after them, take examinations upon oath, and prepare all things necessary for presentation at the next assizes, we having recommended to the judges to take special cognizance thereof, and to proceed effectually against the offenders. June 11. Council of State to Sir Thomas Honywood and Col. Cooke. The Whitehall. walls and strengths of Colchester remain still in a condition which may again prove dangerous if it should be surprised by the enemy, and of how great prejudice and mischief it was to the State, and especially to the parts adjacent, you must be specially sensible. Let the walls and strengths thereof be so dismantled as to render it incapable of being kept by an enemy, and do it with all expedition, that it may take away all ground of encouragement to interrupt the peace of the commonwealth. - June 11. Council of State to the Master and Fellows of Trinity Hall, Whitehall. Cambridge. You have heard of the cruel assassination and murder of Dr. Dorislaus, at the Hague, of which the Parliament and Council are very sensible, and have also a tender consideration of the condition of his fatherless children, for whom they hold themselves obliged to do what they may reasonably. Being informed that Dr. Dorislaus took lodgings in Doctors' Commons from your college, in March last, and paid 25*l.* for a fine, and has been at 35*l.* charge in reparations, which lodgings he was to enjoy during life, paying 5*l.* a year, and his life being lost in the service of the commonwealth, and thereby both his fine and charges lost to his children, who are ill able to bear the loss, we, at request of the children, recommend to you that the children may enjoy the said lodgings for some convenient number of years, in respect of his fine and charges, they paying the rent agreed upon. 6. "Sir R. Browne's paper concerning Augier's being now made agent for the rebels, and his offer to corrupt Sir Ri. Browne." By the post from England who brought letters of 17 May, Monsr. Augier received a letter from the Commonwealth, sealed with their new seal, in an oval form, as broad as the palm of the hand, and signed Bradshaw, accompanied with another letter from G. Frost, secretary to the Council of State, containing great boasts and great confidences in their present power and strength, with large promises of speedy payment of his arrears, &c. Monsr. Augier lately employed an Englishman in Paris to come and acquaint me that he had something of importance to communicate concerning some friends of mine; and acquainting Lord Hatton of this message, he advised me to meet him in Luxembourg garden; Augier, after many compliments, drew out a piece of paper written in his own hand, and said it was the extract of a letter he had lately received from his superiors in England, commanding him to acquaint me that if I would serve their new state, and discover to them what came to my knowledge of the Louvre Councils, and other things within my competence, and accommodate myself to their interests, I should be honourably rewarded; using for argument that the Prince of Wales (not the King) neither was nor ever would be in a condition to repair my ruined fortune; that I was neglected and unkindly dealt with at the Louvre, and that I must inevitably perish if I did not embrace this proposition. I replied that "I took it very ill that he or any should dare to make any such overture to me, who did not despair of the King's power any more than of his gracious intentions to requite my services, and that I held his masters the most execrable villains that were ever upon the face of the earth, and doubted not but that God's vengeance would overtake and confound them and their diabolical designs; and lastly, that, if His Majesty,—now that I had spent my whole estate in this my last eight years' service, and had no home of my own to go to,—were neither able nor willing to use me, I should retire into some remote, cheap corner of the world, where, feeding only upon bread and water, I and mine would hourly pray for His Majesty's speedy re-establishment, rather than receive the greatest rewards of wealth or power that those arch rebels, traitors, and parricides could confer upon me." Council of State to the Mayor and Justices of Peace of St. Albans. There was lately a riot in your town upon the house and person of Dr. King, Justice of Peace, and while he was in execution of that office, which, if it should pass without due prosecution, would be a great scandal to the Government, and an encouragement to disaffected persons to stir up distempers among the people. Besides the loss to the workmen, in the breaking of their tools and instruments, the State has been prejudiced by the hindrance, and will be until they are made good; we have ordered restitution of the instruments, and left the workmen to the law for their further remedy, as their tools ought not to have been distrained while any other distress was to be found, and there was sufficient upon the ground to which the mill, in the petition mentioned, belongs. Council of State to Col. Venables. We are glad that most of your regiment is ready for transportation, our affairs requiring their presence in Ireland, and we must needs notice and thank you for your care and diligence in proceeding so effectually and expeditiously in your levies. Show like diligence in transporting men to Dublin. We have written to Mr. Walley to dispatch and to furnish them with necessaries, and whatever shall be done to other regiments that pass over, the same yours shall have, and what they have not here shall be sent after them. So long as any of them shall stay in this nation, in expectancy of wind and weather, require them to give all respect and assistance to any ministers of the Parliament, for some officers of Excise in Flintshire have been violated by some of your regiment, which is of much prejudice to the service, and danger to the lives of those persons employed therein. [I. 94, p. 240.]

Council of State to Mr. Walley (Chester). To prevent the oppression of that country by the transporting thence such numbers of men sent to Ireland, and the increase of the price of corn, while those forces attend for wind and weather, we have caused two ships to be freighted thither, one with 670 quarters of wheat and 80 deal boards, the other with 660 quarters and 52 deal boards; total value with cost, freight, &c. here, 4,237*l.* 4*s.* 11*d.*, which will be about 3*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* the quarter there. When you see what your petty charges will be in taking it up, sell it as it shall then cost, without making any gain, whereby the price of the market will be kept down; and the money you receive employ as you shall have direction from us, for the service of Ireland. Council of State to the Lord General. The collection of the money upon the ordinance of 16 Feb. 1647-8, has been much delayed in many places, and so the supply for Ireland has been retarded, and such as pay willingly have been discouraged by seeing that those that will not pay save their money by refusing. The places mentioned in the enclosed list are more or less in arrears, and in some of them the assessment is not even made. You are to appoint some parties of horse in each of those counties to assist the agents and collectors for bringing in the said moneys. [I. 94, p. 247.]

Council of State to the Governor of Lancaster Castle. We have ordered that the castle be demolished, except some parts necessary for the sittings of the courts of justice, and for the keep of the common gaol of the country, and we have given commission to some gentlemen of the country to see it effected. There are some guns

Council of State to the Earl of Salisbury. There can be no better way to repress such disorders as the late riots in Enfield Chase than to proceed against them by common law. The chiefest persons are known, and if they be indicted and deeply fined, and the fine duly and speedily levied, they will not perhaps hereafter, nor others by their example, desire venison at so dear a rate. You are to order as many of the offenders as are or can be known to be proceeded against at the next sessions or assizes, all examinations of witnesses, &c. to be ready against the said sessions. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. We approve your agreement with the Rebecca and the other ship for transporting forces into Ireland, and have ordered money to be immediately paid them according to agreement. For the other ships that have been stayed, and have not yet finished their contract, you are to let them have the same terms, respect being had to the proportion of their vessel, which, if they shall not accept, you are to let them know that the commonwealth has occasion to use their ships, and has provided pay for them, and that the public service must not be hindered by their disaffection; and you shall make stay of their ships until you certify us whether they will accept such terms as you judge reasonable, that thereupon we may give you further order; for as we shall not oppress them in making use of their ships in the public service to their loss, so we shall not leave it in their power to determine whether the affairs of the commonwealth shall be carried on or not. Council of State to Charles Walley. Col. Venables has most of his men ready for transport, and as they are a burden to the country, and their arrival in Ireland would be of great reputation, you are to expedite their dispatch, and furnish them with necessaries for their transportation; as they are a regiment taken into the same conditions with the rest of the army, with none of which we have yet fully settled the terms, you may assure them, in our names, that their transportation shall be no prejudice to them, but that whatever is done to any of the other regiments shall be made good to them and sent after them, and we doubt not that they will then be content to be embarked. Council of State to Jno. Sparrow, Rich. Blackwall, and Humph. Blake, collectors for prize goods. The Gift of Cork, with goods in her belonging to Mr. Cuff, valued at 1,000*l.*, was condemned in the Admiralty Court as prize, upon the information of Fras. Harvey. Cuff, as agent to Lord Inchiquin, sequestered Harvey's estate in Munster, valued at 500*l.*, and he suffered this great loss through his employment with Col. Temple, by order from Derby House, for reducing Munster into obedience. Harvey also disbursed 300*l.* for provisions at the siege of Lyme, and had an order for re-

Colonel Edw. Popham to John Stoaks, commander of the Hector, at Guernsey. There are several ships from the East Indies, &c. expected; some ships of the enemy are looking after them, and their surprisal would be a very great loss to this commonwealth, and advantage to the enemy. You are therefore to stand out for the Land's End or Scilly, with the ship under your command, and join with the Phoenix and Constant Warwick, appointed to guard that coast; and in your way, to look out for those ships, and if you meet with them accompany them into the Downs. If you meet first with Capt. Harrison, of the Phoenix, you are to follow his directions until you either meet with those ships, or are informed for certain that they have passed by; then you are to repair to the Downs, or where else you hear I am. Levant Company to Sir Thos. Bendish. You know with what patience and care we have expected the account of Mr. Gough, the treasurer, but not having received it, and having little hope of satisfaction by it,—considering the strange delay and the informations we have how near that whole factory and our estates there are to utter ruin,—we must express our sense thereof with that freedom which a matter of so high importance requires; especially since, instead of the account, we have received a list of 61 objections made thereto, by those who had the examination of it, all of which we have a sufficient cause to disallow.

First, we remind you that, upon your first arrival at Constantinople, care was taken for defraying the charge of your establishment, and of the removal of Sir Sac. Crow, by a leviation of 3 dollars per cloth, &c.; so there rested only an old debt of 30,000 dollars due to Jews, at interest, for satisfaction whereof another leviation of 4 dollars per cloth, and pro rata in other goods, was raised by way of loan, and by divers willingly paid; why the rest did not comply we know not, nor why one should not be compelled to pay as well as another, unless it were out of a partial forbearance, by which the company have not only lost the opportunity of clearing their whole debt, but those who complied in paying their proportion have been constrained with violence to renew the bill standing out to the Jews, which is a grievance of that high nature that we desire no such things to be done hereafter, upon any terms whatever.

Although our factors were careful to clear the company's debts, and free them from Turkish interest, yet Mr. Gough presently after pretends to the nation that they were indebted 50,000 dollars, the next day 60,000, and augmented the sum to 80,000, which argues an intention of gross fraud; if not, why should he be suffered to detain the company's estate in his hands, whilst they run at high interest for money taken up? as for instance, 5,000 dollars of strangers' consulage received in Mr. Lancelot's time, and formerly appropriated to our credit, but lately withdrawn. But for this we shall expect credit from the time it was received, with the same interest as we meantime pay to Turks and Jews; the like satisfaction we shall require for 7,000 dollars paid him by Mr. Berkley in his lifetime, for consulage, levations, &c., but lately returned to some of his creditors, which sums being once placed to our account, we refer to you with what reason they can be transferred to any other. Therefore we expect this 7,000 dollars to be also brought to our credit with interest; such part as has been paid for levations or bills of exchange to be sent to those principals on whose account the money was paid.

June 18.

The strangers' consulage brought by him to our account is a very small sum, considering how many ships have come thither, and been laden there for strangers, and we are the more certain of abuse therein as he only charges his cash with so much received in gross sums, and gives no particular account.

As for presents, we shall not allow of more than he procures order of Court for, nor do we hold it just to pay such exorbitant rates for them as he puts to our account, nor more than they cost, nor shall we make further allowance of interest than those who have been appointed to audit that account have approved.

Touching the 23,000 dollars lately charged on Aleppo and Smyrna, for clearing us of interest, we are astonished that you should suffer such large sums to be drawn on our factories, if no part has been employed in the company's occasions, but appropriated to Mr. Gough's use, because none of our debts are thereupon satisfied, nor any bills taken in.

As for the provisions exacted by him for collection of the consulage, &c., amounting to 20,000 dollars, we disclaim the allowance, nor did we expect there should have been more charged to our account than what we resolved on before your departure, being 200 dollars a year; yet as the trouble of that employment has been these late years more than ordinary, we are content to allow the treasurer for the time past 400 a year, being 100 more than has ever been allowed.

Mr. Gough has made a party amongst the factory, by his connivance at their nonpayment of consulage and levations, by which means they the more easily pass his unjust accounts; have an eye to this, and do not suffer them so near you to evade the payment of our dues. We have received against yourself also a complaint that, notwithstanding all these abuses in the treasurer, and many complaints thereof, and desire of a speedy change of that office, yet you have given a denial, on pretence of a prerogative to elect whom and when you please, which is contrary to our interest, and to the tenor of your instructions.

Another complaint is that you listen too much to the counsels of persons whose credit is suspected, and in whose counsels we can expect little safety, since they are generally lamented of for want of compliance with their principals, some of whom are interested in goods and money of great value, sent from Leghorn and London

June 18. to their factors at Constantinople, and have been long unjustly kept from their returns and accounts. Pray take some speedy course whereby the said factors may be compelled to give satisfaction, and let none of them be admitted into any employment of trust, until they produce testimony that they have cleared with their principals here, and freed themselves from all engagements of interest of that country.

We also notice what slight and unjustifiable accounts Paul Hagget gives of those large sums he received for his journeys to Smyrna; for the future, on any like occasion of sending to Smyrna, do not employ any of your own servants, but make use of the consul, only giving him power requisite for what he is to do. For further notice of our desires, we refer you to ours of the 15th April. We disapprove of Mr. Barnardiston's license for lading fruit, and cute, and desire none may attempt it in future.

You may ere this have appointed a new treasurer; however we have now appointed John Abney, at the allowance of 800 dollars a year, and received good security for his faithful performance; you are therefore to establish him at a general Court, and see that the moneys due to us, on the balance of Gough's account, be made over to Abney, and that all moneys due for consulage or raised by leviation be paid to him, and he enjoined to keep an exact account, to be audited every six months, and not to permit Gough to deal further in receiving moneys. We understand from Smyrna that you have taken a fine of 1,000 dollars from Geo. Hanger, which most of that factory advise us was done on a wrong information; therefore revise that business, and upon his submission, be favourable to him, he being young, and perhaps wanting his stock.

We judge you have been abused by mis-information, and are very tender to entertain any suspicion of your integrity; so our whole aim is, by discovery of our present distempers, to press you to a vigorous endeavour to remedy them. With the advice of a general Court, let things be so ordered as to tend to the security of our trade, and let nothing of public concernment be transacted without assent in Court, nor any unnecessary charge be laid on us. Yet if our ordinary duties will not defray our expense, let an indifferent leviation be continued upon the goods and moneys there and at Smyrna; if that leviation should prove too unreasonable to be laid upon the estate at present there and next coming, let a further sum be advanced by present loan, equally to be levied upon every man according to the estate in his hand, or consigned to him, and continue a moderate leviation till those moneys are made good. If any refuse to submit to this course, whereby you may be forced to use the assistance of Turkish ministers, either there or at Smyrna, let such refractory person not only pay his proportion of the leviation and loan, but also the charge of the officer employed. there, we have resolved not to continue him ; and having testimony of your abilities, and security from your friends here, we have pitched upon you for managing the business, at the allowance of 800 dollars a year. We are confident of your care in the collection of our duties, and in keeping particular accounts with every person and ship, and having them audited every six months. We desire you to procure, from the master or purser of each ship, both in and out, an exact manifesto of her lading, and to whom consigned, and in case of denial, to procure authority from his lordship for enforcing it. We especially forbid you to engage yourself at interest for any former business, or upon future occasion, either for the General Company or particular persons ; but if the ordinary duty will not defray our expense, let it be supplied by leviation. Levant Company to Capt. Wild, Consul at Smyrna. Concerning the commands procured for Mr. Barnardiston's lading of fruit and cute, we signify our dislike to his lordship, and are sorry the ill effects begin already to appear ; but we doubt not your care to prevent inconvenience to the company, who have not the least hand in it ; and therefore we approve your resolution not to oblige the general by receiving of consulage on it, and pray you signify to the nation, at a general Court, how ill this business of dealing in prohibited commodities is resented, and by all means to hinder such hazardous designs. We have received the treasurer's accounts to 5 Oct., by the Sampson, and desire that his next be in like manner audited and sent to us, and that all possible means be used for a punctual collection of our dues, whether by consulage, brokes, or leviations, the rather in respect of what you write touching men's endeavours to conceal what they can, because of the three dollars per cloth ; we are sorry to continue these excessive leviations, yet know not how to avoid compliance therein, according to what is resolved by the ambassadors and nation at Constantinople, until we become clear of engagements.

We approve of your thrift in forbearing payment for guns discharged for salutes, as also of your observance of our two commands concerning the customs, and giving tescars for the custom of goods carried thence to Constantinople, and for regulating the abuses in silk.

Touching the three bales of silk delivered by order from his lordship at Constantinople to Messrs. Davy and Fairwell, but afterwards sequestered upon the suit of Daniel Edwards, it is a business we do not fully understand, and only hear that what was resolved on therein at Constantinople was on good advice ; therefore we blame you for intermeddling in a business which had passed his lordship's justice before. The troubles here have hindered us appointing you a successor as you desire, but the longer you continue in the employment the better you will be qualified for it, and since the sending of another will occasion a large expense, which we cannot at present bear, we forbear any change, hoping that, now the weight of those great burdens is ended, and yourself in fair cor-response with the ambassador, you will be willing to abide one or two years longer, a service we shall not be backward in acknowledging. Meantime we allow the 350 dollars which you have placed to our account for your charges to Constantinople. We have special occasion to charge you with some more bills of exchange, which we desire may be made good. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., pp. 115-117.]

Council of State to the Generals at Sea. By the enclosed you see our information concerning the growing strength of the pirates at sea, and what great danger the fishermen are in to be deprived of the fruit of their labours. This will very much discourage our men in that trade of fishing, which is the very nursery and means of breeding our mariners and seamen, and without which we could not supply our naval forces. We therefore recommend the matter to you, who best know how the whole fleet is employed, to provide for this as you best can, that the fishermen, both in the North Seas and off the coast, may be protected in their fishing, and both they and those of Iceland and Newfoundland have defence. We shall forward the fitting out of the two great ships with all speed. [I. 94, p. 254.]

Council of State to the Generals at Sea. Upon serious consideration of the general state of the affairs of this commonwealth, we have taken that of the sea into our thoughts, both in regard of our own forces, and those of our enemies, which latter greatly increase, and much infest these seas, to the great prejudice of trade. Our own forces are such at sea as our enemies looked not for, and ourselves could scarce have hoped, consisting of so many good ships and faithful and able commanders as have not formerly been set out in any one year. But that it was difficult to have so many set out and furnished you very well know, and how this commonwealth will be able to continue the same in successive years is not easy to evidence; therefore some extraordinary improvement should be made of this extraordinary preparation, this summer, for breaking the head, and pulling up the root of the enemies' marine strength in the fleet with Rupert; also for lopping off the loose branches, and gathering up those pickeroons that infest the seas. If Rupert continue whole until winter, when the chief of our strength will be come in, the return of our ships home from France, Spain, and the Straits will be of very great danger, besides the reputation he will gain, to have been able to subsist against so powerful a fleet. And how far such a fleet may contribute towards the invading us by a foreign enemy, if there be any in a posture for it, is not to be contemned.

We know those considerations are not strange to you, and we are confident you will not be wanting in expressing your zeal to the service, yet we hold it necessary to represent the same to you, that you may, with the more vigour, stir up and provoke all that are under you, as well commanders and officers as private mariners, to endeavour to do some extraordinary action, that may signalize their affection to their country, and may answer that encouragement which this commonwealth has really given unto them, more than in any former time has been, or in any other place at this time is given, to any employed by any State at sea. And indeed so good a character is given of all our marine forces in this summer expedition, as we hope that, from a principle of duty, they would have stoutly served the commonwealth, though there had not been those additions of honour and profit. We shall not at a distance prescribe any particular way of proceeding, but leave that to your own prudence, and only offer you what has fallen upon our consideration in general. Council of State to Sir Geo. Ayseue. Your letter to Col. Popham has been communicated to the Council, and both it and the enclosed from Col. Jones to you have been reported to the House. Thanks for your care in preserving the passage open to Dublin, for the supplies of forces and provisions, shortly to arrive; when they are come, they will keep open the way for more, not for the relief of Dublin only. Do what is in your power for this particular, and keep a correspondence with Col. Jones, and assist him all you can for the preservation of this important place. There are several forces ready to come over, and provisions also, and we trust the place will be kept until their arrival and entry. The whole body of our forces are in a manner ready, and ships are taken up in the Thames for their transportation, which have fallen down to Gravesend, with orders to take the first wind to come to Milford Haven, and there receive the orders of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Council of State to James Powell, at Bristol. There are many forces now ready for transport to Ireland, and the exigency of affairs there requires their presence. To expedite them you are to stay all ships in the ports of Bristol, Minehead, Barnstaple, and Appledore, fit for transportation of horse and foot for Dublin, agree with them either by the month or freight, and order them to Milford Haven, where the horse and men are to be shipped. Use all expedition, and make a return of what you do to this Council, or the Committee for Irish Affairs, and meantime signify what shipping can be had in those ports, that if there be grounds to fear a defect, care may be taken for a supply. Council of State to Mr. Walley. Sir George Ayscue and Col. Jones signify that Dublin is besieged by Ormond. We hope there will be none among the forces in those parts who, in this exigency, when Dublin, which is of so much concernment to this commonwealth is in danger, will not be ready with all cheerfulness to embark, even though something should be wanting which they might desire. In that case, you are to signify to them that special care shall be had to make it good and send it after them. As there will be a want of bread if there be not a present supply, we desire that those two ships of wheat assigned to Chester and Liverpool may be sent away to Col. Jones at Dublin. We are very unwilling to make this diversion of the wheat intended for your relief there, but the preservation of Dublin is of so great concern that we are obliged to it. Let such as know of the consigning of it thither have a right representation of the cause of the diversion; there shall be a care had of those parts, if the necessity continues. We have seen your letter to Mr. Frost, concerning your disposing of those two ships of wheat, and not only pardon the action, but thank you for your care of the public, and denying of particular interest.

Capt. Norwood's troop is to consist of 80 besides officers, and upon his repair to you, you are to muster them and give him a fortnight's pay; from that day he is to pay his quarters, and provide for his men on shipboard, and take immediate care for shipping of them: upon his doing so, you are to advance every

The troop of Major Elliot is to consist of 80 soldiers, besides officers, and you are to pay him 168*l.* to discharge his quarters for the last month, during which they have been at his charge. You are also to muster the troop and pay them 14 days' pay, after which he is also to pay his quarters, and provide for his men on shipboard; and upon their shipping, you are to give the Major a month's pay in advance for as many as he puts on board. Admiralty Committee to Rich. Jenvey, Jno. Smith, and ten others. The Council of State have received information of the great decay of the jetty works by the ravages of the sea at Margate; we find that the matter was often debated at the Admiralty Committee then sitting at Sir Abraham Williams' house, and that several orders made for repairs, but nothing as yet done, so that the greatest part of the works are like to be carried away by the violence of the sea, and the town is likewise in danger of being swallowed up. As the enclosed order is the last made by that Committee, and was consented to by counsel on both sides, we confirm it, unless you, who are concerned therein, attend and show cause to the contrary. You are therefore either to attend here, or authorise some able man to inform us of the whole matter by Thursday next, at the Admiralty Committee Chamber at Whitehall. [I. 123, p. 76.]

Campbell for payment of 8,394*l.* supplied by him for the public by order from the Parliament of St. Andrews, by an Act of 12 March last, confirmed this Session, ordered payment out of the fines to be obtained from the Laird of Pluscarden and his adherents, and subsequently seeing that Lairds Rae, Redcastle, Mr. McKenzie, of Searbearne, McKenzie, junior, of Kinnock, McKenzie, of Ord, and others who were in the late rebellion were in the Estates' power, and liable to fines and impositions, they assigned the petitioner as many of them as would satisfy his debt, and ordained that the last named persons should not be released until petitioner was

They also appointed the committee for moneys to fine the said persons and to retain sufficient thereof for a month's pay to the soldiers of the three troops formerly commanded by Col. Kee, as also 1,000*l.* for the wounded of those troops, but without prejudice to the rights of Thomas Nicholson, King's Advocate, or of the creditors of Lord Rae, in seeking their just debts out of his estate. Goods to lay up the tenths of the prizes that come to their hands, until they amount to 1,000*l.*, to be disposed of in medals or otherwise, by way of reward to captains, commanders, and seamen who have been forward in the service at sea. [I. 123, p. 77.]

Whitehall. Christopher Harris, found in the Antelope when she was surprised, own affairs from London in May last. [I. 123, p. 77.]

- June 29. 28. Petition of Sir John Smith, of Grottall, to the Parliament Edinburgh. [of Scotland], to take some speedy course for satisfying his just debts, otherwise he will be ruined. In Dec. 1641, upon a contract with the King's commissioners he lent 10,000*l.* for the Irish expedition, of which 8,400*l.* and interest is yet due. He also paid, by warrant from the Commissioners of Parliament, to Mr. Robt. Farquhar at London 1,399*l.* 15*s.* on account making in Scottish money 16,787*l.*, which sum makes the total due to him 43,497*l.* For payment whereof he had commission to receive so much of the Brotherly assistance payable at Lammas 1642, as would have satisfied him, and by great pains and expenses in London he purchased payment, and having borne the hazard of the sea and brought the money to Leith, the Commissioners for Common burdens applied it towards the relief of those who had lent money when the army was at a stand, at Hirsellan, and for supply of Sir Wm. Dick, &c.
While the army was at Newcastle, in 1640 and 1641, petitioner received, held account of, and sent in bills and specie above 400,000*l.*; for this he never received any commission, which, if paid as usual, would have amounted to 6,000*l.* Being deprived of his money for so many years, he is much reduced in his estate; nevertheless, out of affection for the public, and finding the difficulties thereof to increase, he has been silent all these years, until now he is forced to lay open his hard condition, being confident of redress.

course therein. 22nd and 29th June 1649. [$\frac{3}{4}$ sheet.]

sunday last, 46,863*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* was due to Sir J. Smith, which is to be declared a public debt, payable by the Estates, with interest. That in consideration of his long patience, the Committee are of opinion that the additional excise of 8*d.* impost upon the pint of French wine, and 16*d.* impost upon the pint of sack ought to be assigned to him, from Nov. 1649 to 1 Nov. 1651; that he accept the

That these two months' pay shall be issued according to the respective proportions allowed upon the establishment for the new model. That for those officers and soldiers of the old regiments now designed for Ireland who refuse to engage and desire to disband there shall be allowed upon their discharge for such as were in those regiments in Jan. 1647–8, and have continued so ever since, to the private soldiers and non-commissioned officers, two months' arrears, if so much is due to them, and to commissioned officers one month's arrears, according to the rates allowed upon the new model. But those refusing the Irish service who, having been formerly disbanded, were entertained into the said regiments since 15 Jan. 1647–8 shall be discharged without further allowance for arrears.

That to the general officers and staff officers for the army and officers of the train now going for Ireland, a month's pay shall be issued in advance for their better furnishing themselves for the service. [I. 62, pp. 493–495.]

Hasten over what cheese you can, and order all the shipping that you have there in the harbour for transportation to obey the orders of Sir Geo. Council of State to the Lord Mayor of London. We refer the enclosed petition of Cornelius Cooke to you as conservator of the Thames, and you should consider both the usefulness of the place and the merit of the person, and let him have all just favour. Those stairs and that gallery have stood there time out of mind, and are of special use to the public, for the services specified, and also for private persons to escape the fear or danger of going through the bridge when the tide and their occasions suit not, by which means there is more trouble and inconvenience put upon his house than that gallery and those stairs can put upon the river. If they were removed, means must be found to erect others for public convenience and at the public charge, although there is no place so convenient for it as that, in regard of its being so near the bridge. We commend him to you as a man who has laid out himself in the service of the commonwealth. The thing seeming necessary to be continued, it will not perhaps be so fit that a punishment should be imposed as an annual rent to officers who rather seek their own gain than are able to judge what is fit to be reformed. for your affection and duty to this commonwealth, and the present government thereof, we wrote to the city of Hamburg for redress of injuries, and for your protection there against your and this commonwealth's enemies; and for your better countenance and more general and lasting security, we gave credentials to your deputy to be agent from this commonwealth, with the city of Hamburg. Since then, having received the excuse of the deputy, and his desire to be released of that public charge, and holding it necessary that a public agent should be employed there from this commonwealth, both for the better protection of trade and of the persons of our merchants, now like to receive prejudice and opposition from others there that will pretend to such qualifications, and as the pirates begin to infest the Elbe and find a place of retreat at Gluckstadt, we think it necessary that some other should be qualified with that character; and being informed that it is now about the time when your annual government useth to be settled, we earnestly recommend it to your care that all places of authority and trust among you may be supplied with able persons, and such as are well affected to the present government of this commonwealth, especially the places of deputy and secretary, that they or either of them may be persons fit, both for their affections and ability, to sustain the place of public minister of this commonwealth.

If your election be past, and you have not put in men that are fit for that service, you are to recommend such as may be fit to receive a public character, whereby the honour of the commonwealth as well as the flourishing of your trade and safety of your persons may be maintained; and who may have authority to redress the virulencies of those of this nation whose malignancy and disaffection does not cease to vent itself in all manner of obloquies, slanders, and false imputations, whereby they render the so misrepresented actions odious to as many as they can so disguise and divulge them unto. For a remedy of all which, wherein your own interest is concerned with that of the State, we expect such an answer from you as will enable us to send credentials to such as are fit for that service. 34. Col. Edw. Popham to the Navy Commissioners at Chatham. Pray hasten the victuals on board the Star, Falcon, Hart, and Elizabeth frigates; the long stay of any of the ships in port is a great prejudice to the State, and officers are glad of an excuse to lie loitering about London; I therefore earnestly request you to hasten the victuals for these frigates. What course have you taken for victualling the Jersey frigate, taken by Capt. Peacock, and the Adventure, now at Yarmouth, for which there was an order from the Council of State? I think Thomas King of Yarmouth would see it done; also give order to Mr. Holt of Portsmouth for the supply of the Charles with victuals, if she puts in there. [1 page.]

Council of State to Mr. Powell of Bristol. You are to take on the ships by the month, and hire them for two months certain, and longer at that rate, if the State has need of them; you and the Custom-house officers to enter into charter party with them, in the name of the Council of State, and we will take care your contracts shall be performed; and upon the return of the particulars will order money to be remitted thither, to give them a month's pay to provide them for the service. They need only provide victuals for their own company, for the soldiers will be otherwise provided.

The ships shall enter into pay when they have fallen down to Kingsroad, and are there ready to sail to Milford Haven. Much more shipping than that in your paper will be needed, and some of less burthen; as of 30, 40, or 50 tons; therefore the names of such vessels had better be returned. Take care that water casks be provided at the State's charge, and such a quantity put on board every ship fit to carry horses,—of which number there will be more than you seem to intimate—as shall contain water enough for 10 days at least. For the proportion of horse they can carry, pails are also to be provided, to water the horses aboard, and rings to tie them to the ship's side, and slings to ship them with. Return the particulars of your charges therein, and we will give order for satisfaction. We have written to the mayor and aldermen of Bristol to assist you in making

Council of State to the Militia of the Tower Hamlets, Southwark, Westminster, and London. The enemies of this commonwealth will, with restless diligence, seek all opportunities to involve us in a new war, and to that end endeavour to heighten every discontent, to comply with every interest, to work upon particular weakness, and take advantage of a general remissness and negligence, either of proceeding against them, or providing for our security, as by all rules of prudence we ought to do. The numerous army we have hitherto had has discouraged their appearance, yet they are not without their designs, the execution whereof they defer until part of the army which is now upon the point of embarking be sent into Ireland.

We have held it necessary to see the state of all the militias and forces in this nation, and to have them all in such a posture that the knowledge of their strength and faithfulness might discourage all attempts in their enemies, and that, if occasion be, they may be ready in all places to secure themselves, if the standing army be necessitated to march against the enemy attempting upon us in any other place. The greatness of London and parts adjacent, and the universal concourse thereto give the greatest opportunity to the enemies from all places,—besides those too many of the inhabitants here,—to meet and design, and make preparations with the least suspicion, and so put these places in the greater danger. We therefore hope that you have been proportionably diligent to put the military commands within your jurisdiction into the hands of men of unsuspected fidelity to the present government, and that you have formed your companies and regiments, and have them in readiness for your own safety, and also for the defence of the Parliament and of this Council, upon any emergency requiring the absence of their own guards.

What remains to be done therein we desire may be completed with expedition, and if you meet with any obstruction, certify us, that a course may be taken for its removal; meantime we require a return of the present state of your forces. [I. 94, pp. 298–300.]

Council of State to the Governors of Liverpool and Shrewsbury. There being a great part of the army now ready to be sent to Ireland, we have held it necessary to put the rest into fit posture to prevent or suppress any attempts of the malignant party, for raising new troubles or another war; therefore as few garrisons should be kept as may be, that the forces be not taken up by them, and such places as are not necessary to garrisons should be made so untenable as neither to encourage the inhabitants to a defection, nor the enemy from without to a design upon them. Where the consequence of a place requires the continuance of a garrison, it should be reduced to such a state that it may be kept with a few men.

We have determined that in some places citadels shall be built, wherein a garrison shall be lodged, and we are of opinion, having consulted herein with the officers of the army, that the castles at Shrewsbury and Liverpool, being repaired by advice of a skilful engineer, may be kept by a small number of men, in proportion to what the town can be kept by, and yet be able to preserve the towns from surprise, which no enemy will attempt when he shall find that he cannot be able to continue in it. Send us your opinion herein forthwith. [I. 94, pp. 300, 301.]

Council of State to [the Governors of] Northampton, Lichfield, and Coventry. We expect there will still be attempts by the enemies to raise new troubles among us, and it is a principal encouragement to them when they find places of some strength, and in themselves tenable, so slenderly guarded as to be subject to surprise. To garrison well all places of that condition in England were to employ more forces than the commonwealth can bear the burden of, as the army should be always in a marching posture, to prevent or suppress insurrections; and should any place of strength be surprised, it would either detain the army to reduce it, while in other places the enemy may raise an army, or else by neglecting it, inconvenience would grow there. You know how much Colchester lost by having a strength of walls and no garrison to keep them, and beside the ruin of the town, what a vast charge it was to the nation to reduce it, and how extremely the adjacent counties suffered by the lying there of the army at the siege. Among many places which may run the same danger is your town; as a sufficient garrison cannot be maintained there to defend the place as it now is, we offer to your consideration whether to have it dismantled, so far as to make it untenable by an enemy, who in that case will not attempt what he cannot hold, or to have a citadel raised in some fit place, that may be kept by a few men, at no great charge, and yet keep the town from surprise. We leave the election to you, and desire your resolution forthwith. [I. 94, pp. 301-303.]

Council of State to Sir William Constable. Similar preamble. As Gloucester stands upon so considerable a pass, and therefore cannot be left without a garrison, it is conceived by the officers of the army that it may be kept by some good fort or citadel to be raised in some fit place of the town. Before we send down an engineer thither for putting it in execution, as we have appointed to Yarmouth and Oxford, we desire your opinion, whether there may not be such a citadel as may keep the town safe, and be kept itself by 200 men. 4. To report to the House that several sums have been charged both by the committee at Derby House and by the Council of State, upon the 50,000*l.*, to be raised out of the lands of delinquents, for satisfaction of contracts made for the service of Ireland; and that, as the House has since given order for certain weekly payments out of the same money, if the latter payments begin before the former are settled, it will be a breach of the public credit.

5. Mr. Frost to confer with Sir Adam Loftus about the debt due to Mr. Hutchinson of Dublin.

6. Capt. Stephen Rich's desire to be employed with his ship in the service to be represented to the generals of the fleet.

Council of State to the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen of London. Several regiments of horse, and two of foot, appointed for the safety of the Parliament and city, having their pay assigned on the city, can get no part of it, and the soldiers, having no other maintenance, are obliged to take free quarter, which has been a great grievance in many places, though the city has not felt the burden of it, and it may be of greater charge and worse consequence if not prevented. We therefore earnestly beg that they may have their pay at once, as free quarter "might grow to greater inconveniences than perhaps may be in our power to prevent." [I. 94, p. 306.]

Order in Parliament—upon report of Mr. Scott from the Council of State of their having had a consultation with the Lord General and officers of the army, as to a moving body of horse and foot, to be taken out of the force remaining in England, to take the field upon occasion—that there be added to the present establishment of the army, when the Council of State shall see cause, [enough] to make up the regiments of foot 1,200, the several single companies 120, and the troops of horse 100, for such time only as the Council of State shall find the safety of the commonwealth to necessitate the same.

That the regiments of foot in the garrisons of Oxford, Hereford, Yarmouth, the West, &c., take the field on occasion; and the Council of State give commissions for raising volunteers near those garrisons when necessary, to be paid only when on service, and to join the marching forces, or be put in garrison, as the Lord General shall direct. Whitehall. House, of the mutinous disorders of some of the soldiers at York towards the committee there, have been referred to us to see the offenders punished, and we have written to Major-General Lambert, or in his absence to the commander-in-chief there, and have enclosed the letter to you, that you may deliver it, as also a copy, that you may see what care has been taken here in that affair. - July 17. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. We send the enclosed

Knowing the great diligence of all the commanders at sea, we doubt not that, when they know what parts are infested with pickeroons, they will endeavour to clear the seas of them. The Garland and Nonsuch frigates have lately taken a frigate of Rupert's fleet, the Sta. Tresera (Teresa?), Fras. Darcy, an Irishman, captain, and Sir Hugh Windham, his lieutenant; Col. Legge was also on board. We desire that Darcy be safely sent up, being a very dangerous person, unless you find him a person in such a condition that he may receive justice there, without the trouble of sending him up. As to the fortifications, we enclose a particular of what was proposed when that money was appointed; say what has been done therein, and upon a certificate of the state of those works, and an account how the last money ordered for repair of the fortifications has been expended, further provision shall be made for that purpose. We hear that use has been made of the manor house, and the yards and places appertaining thereto, for the magazine, since that town has been a garrison, which manor house, &c. belong to the town, and they have great occasion to use it. Now as the quantities of provisions of the magazine are lessened, we desire that the said house, &c. may be delivered to the town. [I. 94, p. 311.]
- July 17. Council of State to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Several

Some of those who apprehended them, being of Col. Jones's troop, are wounded, and one, it is said, mortally. Order should be given to make some of them exemplary, both to prevent the like deserting of colours, and the like outrages and oppressions of the country. Council of State to the Lord General. By several letters from York of 30 June and 9 and 14 July, the Parliament has been informed of some great disorders committed by the soldiers there, the redress whereof, and punishment of the malefactors, is referred to our care. We have written at large to Major-General Lambert, and sent you copies of the informations to the House, and desire you to order due proceeding against those that continue in service—whereby they are subject to the martial law—if any of them shall be found guilty of these mutinous courses, tending to the contempt of authority and trampling of discipline under foot, and giving so much discontent to the people, and advantage to the enemies of the commonwealth. For such as are reduced, and so not subject to martial discipline, we have desired Major-General Lambert to assist in their apprehension, that they may be proceeded against at the assizes. [I. 94, p. 319.]

Council of State to Major-General Lambert. The disorders committed by the soldiers about York must be much to your own distaste, that authority should thus be vilified and trampled under foot by the soldiers; if there be not present course taken that the authors of such insolencies be brought to punishment, and the like prevented in other places, there will be an end of the peace and happiness of this nation, and all will fall under the lawless will of disorderly men. Let thorough inquiry be made after the actors in those disorders, of whom you may be informed by the committee at York, and let the offenders be put into safe custody; if they be such as are not disbanded, and are therefore still under the power of martial law, they must be proceeded with according to the rules thereof. But if they be disbanded, you are to have them apprehended and committed to the county gaol, and proceeded against next assizes.

Special care should be had to inquire into the promoters of those riots; they are probably fomented by some that lay these disorders as a foundation to greater, which will certainly break out, if not prevented by the effectual and exemplary punishment of these. For what is pretended by these mutinous soldiers of want of money, we conceive there was care had to furnish it for their disbanding out of the public treasure. Let discipline be put in execu-

Council of State to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. You want 100,000*l.* for the service of Ireland. We know the great consequence of the expeditious carrying on of this service, and have put it forward all we can. For supply there is 30,000*l.* at the Excise that will be ready the beginning of next week, and for the rest, there has been a proposition made to the Council, by some who manage the Irish affairs, that out of two third parts of the deans and chapters' lands,—viz., that appointed for Ireland and that for the navy,—there should be no money paid but to the supply of the 70,000*l.* until it be all paid. If you judge this way sufficient, we will order the said 70,000*l.* to be so paid, although the affairs of the navy will suffer prejudice by it. The ships that take in victuals are laden, and the ammunition is almost all taken in, and when that is finished, there shall be no diligence wanting to dispatch them. The victuals now laden are wheat, biscuit, and cheese, value 10,000*l.*, which, being for the use of the soldiers, should be accounted part of that 100,000*l.* [I. 94, pp. 322, 323.]

Council of State to Sir Thomas Bendish, ambassador at Constantinople. As we are much dissatisfied therewith, we have sent this express to you, and require you to use your best endeavours for speedily procuring the liberty of these poor captives, which should not have needed any motive but the sense of their sufferings, with which every Englishman ought to be affected, and especially you, upon whom that care is as a part of the duty of your place; if the neglect of it still continues, this commonwealth will expect an account from you, as it also does as to whether you have proceeded upon the former letters, or why nothing has been done therein. Council of State to the Commissioners of the Great Seal. We find, by the petition of John Smyth and other inhabitants of Margate, Isle of Thanet, that by reason of the rage and violence of the sea, the jetty made there for defence of the pier and town, and the pier, are in danger to be swallowed up without sudden reparation. We therefore desire you to pass a commission of sewers to the mayors of Dover and Sandwich, Sir John Williams, Bart., and other gentlemen, to see whether there be any defects in the said works, and if so, take speedy course for repair, as the statute for sewers provides, and appoint one or more able men to oversee the work, and give a yearly account thereof to the Commissioners of Sewers. 5. The Marshal of the city of London to prosecute Dawes the next session.

7. The examinations taken by the Lord Mayor, concerning Dawes' treasonable proclamation in Smithfield, to be sent to the attorney-general, who is to draw up an indictment by the next session to be held at Newgate.

11. The money of the two-thirds of the Deans and Chapters' lands appointed for the Navy and Ireland to be employed only for reimbursing of such moneys as shall be now furnished by any persons for sending 70,000*l.* to the Lord Lieut. of Ireland; also all that shall come in upon the Excise of the 150,000*l.*, or any other in the power of this Council to dispose of.

Council of State to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. As to yours of the 20th instant from Bristol, we will take what care we can for the money; the way we propounded was the most visible to us, but we will use both what you propound, and all others that we can suggest to make out your supply, knowing how much the interest of the commonwealth is concerned, that you transport your army in a posture to give reputation to your affairs, and keep close to you the affections of your soldiers. We are sorry that there should be such diffidence among the soldiers, and that the commonwealth has no further credit with them, especially when they see the foundation visible and sound from whence it is to proceed; we should have taken care there should be no diversion of it, nor any minute the more delay because they were shipped without it, but we shall leave no means unattempted to dispatch it away.

The 1,600*l.* Excise money at Bristol is part of the 30,000*l.* now to be sent down; the treasurers of Excise could not furnish the 30,000*l.* unless they might pay 2,000*l.* by moneys already at Bristol. The 5,000*l.* of the South Wales money belongs to the Army, and we know not but you may have it, and shall give direction to the treasurers of the Army about it; if it be taken by you, it must be accounted part of the 100,000*l*. For the Train, whatever has been desired for it has been ordered, and all necessary provision shall be made for you here, so long as there is any stock or credit remaining for the Irish service.

The 100,000*l*. appointed for Ireland out of the Deans and Chapters' lands will be all out, on payment of the 70,000*l*. and there then remains only the army assessment for all further provisions, so you must make the best improvement you can for storing up what provisions Ireland can afford, when God gives you footing and opportunity there. We have appointed 3 cwt. of salt to be sent to Dublin for preservation of flesh and fish; we have sent to the ships in the Thames to hasten them down, although one which was to take in ammunition is not yet ready, and we have sent special warrants to the masters, and two messengers, to hasten them away. We have also ordered Capt. Henley, who commands a pinnace in the river, to compel them out, and convoy them into the Downs, and Col. Popham to give them convoy to you. Some ships have long been ready, but they stayed for the rest which were to take in ammunition, because of the want of convoy for them severally.

The establishment is now finished at the Council, and you will speedily receive it; for the seven companies of Capt. Cox, we have represented that matter to the Lord General and his council of officers. As for the two regiments of foot to be raised for Sir Wm. Cole and Col. John King, we should willingly do it, but there remains no more money. The Committee for Irish affairs will treat with them, if they can do it upon the credit of the remainder of the Irish ordinance of 20,000*l*. a month for six months,—that being the readiest money we are like to have,—and we will do all we can to bring in what remains behind of that ordinance; but whether they will or can raise them upon that credit, we are not yet informed. If they expect money, it cannot be furnished.

There are seven English ships come into the Downs from the East Indies, in which there is a good quantity of saltpetre, so that we hope that want will be supplied for this year.

Since writing the above, we have consulted with the Treasurers-at-War, the treasurers of the Deans and Chapters' lands, the treasurers at Goldsmiths' Hall, and the commissioners of Excise, and have put the business of the 100,000*l*. into such a way that we believe the whole will be ready by Tuesday next. Say how it shall be sent, and where. [I. 94, pp. 314-317.]

Council of State to Mr. Walley. There has been great neglect in making provisions for dispatch of the forces to Ireland, for want of which the opportunity of transportation was lost, which might have enabled our forces to do something that might have prevented the loss of Drogheda; we know not yet what dangerous influence that lost opportunity may have upon the affairs of Ireland. We have had good opinion of your diligence and care hitherto, and should be glad if you can acquit yourself of the loss of this opportunity. The long time they have waited for transportation might

Council of State to the Deputy Governor of Lancaster Castle. There have been several orders for demolishing Lancaster Castle, and commissioners appointed to see it done, but the governor has obstructed it. We again require you to deliver up the place, and also all your prisoners of war or otherwise to the commissioners, who will deliver them over to the sheriff. The commissioners will signify whether obedience be given to our commands, so that we may not be necessitated to have recourse to other means to give effect to our directions. We have ordered Major-General Lambert to send for Morris and Blackborne to York, to be tried there at the assizes; meantime you are to keep them in safety. [I. 94, p. 333.]

Council of State to the Generals at Sea. Philip Carteret, who calls himself deputy governor of Jersey, offers to exchange Capt. Hatsell and John Wright, prisoners there, for Capt. Council of State to the Warwickshire Committee, and to Major Hawksworth. To avoid charge in keeping a garrison in Kenilworth Castle, or danger if it should be surprised and kept by an enemy, it is to be made untenable, and we desire you to see that it be made so. The great tower called Cæsar's Tower, we desire taken down, and also the outward wall; what remains of the house, being only for habitation, will not be tenable by an enemy, in regard of the greatness of the windows, and its other natural weakness. Let the place be put into a posture not dangerous to the country and no unnecessary spoil be made of the house, as it relates to habitation, which might prejudice the present possessor, or the value of the sale by the State. 51. Col. Edw. Popham to the Navy Commissioners. You seem to take it ill that I applied myself to the Council of State for rectifying a mistake of yours, but I only wrote a private letter to Sir Hen. Vane, desiring his opinion, as a person best able to rectify a mistake in point of money, and never knew until now that you were concerned in it, nor how this 11,000*l.* came to be put into our hands for the service, by order of the House, being some score of leagues at sea when that was done. I now perceive that some ships are to be victualled by others, and that some are already victualled by you for two months; now that we know this, we shall be better able to proceed. The Leopard has both received and spent her eight months' provisions, coming out so long before any of the rest of the fleet, and therefore must be supplied with another two, or else called off from service at Kinsale, where she cannot well be spared.

The Antrim and Tiger's Whelp are but one ship, and therefore it is an error by keeping too close to your copy; for at my last being at London, I desired a list of the 16 ships and number of men, which you gave me at Whitehall; while I was writing the letter to Sir Hen. Vane, I gave it to a clerk to copy, and sum up the whole number of men, which I enclosed; and now I find the ship inserted by two names. Had I known you could have given me better satisfaction than Sir Hen. Vane, I should not have applied to him.

The beer is miscast by 78 tuns, but that note I received from Col. Deane, and did not cast it up until now, being in very great haste when I sent it away. I enclose some wants by the officers of the Mary Rose, which require a speedy supply, as she is in great need. [1 page.]

Barnardiston of Coleman Street, and Prayse Barbon of Fleet Street, London, leatherseller, in 500*l.* each. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page, damaged.]

Willoughby, they surprised the London, now in the Thames, but to avoid delay, sentence was passed in the Admiralty that the London was taken by the Nonsuch, and now Capt. Willoughby refuses to allow Capt. Peacock and petitioners any share in the prize. Capt. Reeves made such allowance to others of the share in the Concord, taken by him, and others have done the like. Beg leave to prove their claim. [1 page.]

July 26. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

Council of State to the Collectors for Prize Goods. The goods of the ship London of Flushing were adjudged prize in the Admiralty Court, as taken by Captain Willoughby and his men alone, because Capt. Council of State to Sir Arthur Hesilrigge, Governor of Berwick. Council of State to Col. Popham. As to the George and Unicorn, for the setting out of which you can give no opinion for want of intelligence, although news of danger from abroad be not so certain as to make it absolute to put forth those ships, yet, as there remains some suspicion of designs against us, and it would add much to our reputation to let our enemies see that we are prepared, we wish to employ those two ships for a month, first in the Hope, to be seen of all that come in and go out of the Thames, and then into the Downs, and so over to the coast of Flanders and the mouth of the Meuse, and where you think fit to give them order, but to come in before the weather grows stormy. You are to order commissions for those two captains to prepare to man and put them out.

We like it well that you appoint Capt. Hatsell and Ensign Wright to be first at liberty, in regard of the breach of parole formerly, and then we will give warrant for discharge of Collins and Pulleyne. You are also to enlarge Ames Nicholls for Stephen Martin, and as many more as you can for persons of like quality. We hope the ships laden for Dublin are come to you; give them a convoy that they may not stay in the Downs, and also let them take with them the Fortune of Middleborough, laden with rye for Dublin. Council of State to the Governors of Oxford. Upon information received, we wish, for the safety of your garrison, that Col. Eyres, now a prisoner in Oxford, should be removed. You are to cause him to be conveyed to Warwick Castle, and delivered to Major Hawksworth, governor of the said castle, as also our warrant for his safe keeping there. [I. 94, p. 343.]

COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. The Navy Committee to accept the bills of exchange drawn upon them by Col. Deane, according to a letter from Plymouth of the 27th inst., which letter, with the enclosures, is to be sent to them.

3. The treasurers-at-war to pay for the carriage of the money to the Lord Lieut. of Ireland, and to take care not to exceed 10*l.* a day.

6. Aberystwith garrison to be slighted, and a letter written the Lord Lieut. of Ireland to see it done.

7. To write Major Heane that his letter will be considered, that a supply of ammunition may be made to him. [I. 62, pp. 576-578.]

Council of State to the Committee of Accounts for co. Bucks. The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has ordered Lieut. Col. Shelborne, who commands his regiment of horse, to march up to him, and has received answer that he meets with obstruction from you, as you require him to give an account of moneys received by him, and threaten that if he goes to Ireland before his account is finished, you will sequester his estate. He says he gave in his account three years since upon oath, and has not since received any surcharge, and in all this time you have not finished the account, and to call upon it now, and make him neglect a service of greater consequence, would be a great disservice to the commonwealth. His journey must not be obstructed about this business, or he, being sent by Parliament, will, by their authority, be freed from sequestration. You give out that he goes to Ireland to avoid his account; such reports must be forborne, his integrity and faithfulness to the commonwealth being well known. [I. 94, pp. 344, 345; Vol. II. No. 56.]

Council of State to the Governor of Weymouth. Thanks for your care for the safety of the commonwealth; as to the prisoners with you, we will send our resolution in a few days, and give order for the provisions you write for. [I. 94, p. 345.]

Council of State to the Treasurers at Goldsmiths' Hall. We have ordered the treasurers-at-war to send away the 100,000*l.* to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland forthwith, but they say no part of the money that was to come in from your treasury is yet paid. Hasten it all you possibly may, that there may be no delay in sending away that money upon which the Irish service so much depends. [I. 94, p. 346.]

July 31. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

2. The demolishing of Harding [Hawarden?] and Holt Castles referred to the committee that meets the officers of the army.

3. The consideration of the removal of the prisoners sent from Dublin to Chester adjourned.

4. Mr. Frost to contract with Mr. Bushell, Mr. Lucie, Don Antonio Ferdinando, Mr. Van de Put, and Mr. Lloyd, for the corn proposed to the Council.

5. The petition of the inhabitants of Plymouth for payment of money due for quartering soldiers during the war to be reported to the House.

6. The Irish Committee to confer with the officers of the army how a regiment of horse may be sent to Ireland.

8. Mr. Frost, jun. to pay the two pilots sent with the ships to the Downs bound for Ireland, and deduct the amount out of the next payment of their monthly freight.

9. James Mildmay, the crier of Gravesend, to be sent down to the justices of peace for Kent, as also the informations against him.

10. The French prisoners taken at sea and now at Bristol to be set at liberty, and put on shore in France, and the rest to be kept for exchange, and paid for after the rate of 3*d.* a day.

11. Capt. Thelwall's business again referred to the Irish Committee.

13. Lieut.-Col. Jackson referred to the Irish Committee as to his dispatch to Ireland. [I. 62, pp. 579-581.]

Council of State to Col. Hagget. For the better security of Bristol, now that the forces of the Lord Lieut. of Ireland are drawn thence, the government of the place is to be committed to your care, and the Lord General will send you a commission for it, and also for raising another company besides that already there (both which are upon the establishment) which is also to be your own particular company. For further security in case of imminent danger, a regiment is to be there enlisted under you as colonel, and other officers of approved fidelity, and the private soldiers enlisted by you to have a like qualification, which regiment is only to receive pay when upon actual service. We will order you a commission for this regiment, and have appointed 500*l.* to be employed for the repair of the works. [I. 94, p. 346.]

Council of State to the Committee at Haberdashers' Hall. The House wishes us to inquire into a debt said to be due from the Earl of Northumberland to Sir John Pennington, to which there are pretensions of a discovery by Col. Mydhope, as money belonging to a malignant, since which there have been some proceedings at your committee, and the thing seems not, as he pretends, a new discovery. Certify us as to this money, amounting to 1,500*l.*, who was the discoverer of it, when it was discovered, and what proceedings have been had thereupon. [I. 94, p. 347; Vol. II. No. 57.]

Council of State to the Trustees for the late King's goods. There has been an inventory of the horses, mares, and colts at Tutbury Race lately presented to us, and we hear there is an intention to sell them and dispose of the Race. Considering the great destruction of horses during the late wars, and that the said Race is the only place in England by which provision can be made of a good breed, and that the profits that can be made of the land and the sale of the stock now there will not equal what it will amount to in the way now used, we wish the sale of such horses to be forborne until further consideration. [I. 94, p. 348.]

July 31.

Council of State to Col. Deane. We hoped the money formerly desired by you would have sufficed for your victuals for the two additional months, yet being loth that for want thereof the ships should come in too early, and so lose the fruit of all this summer's service, we wish the Navy Committee to accept your bills, and doubt not but you will employ the money for the advantage of the commonwealth. [I. 94, p. 349.]

July 31.

Council of State to Sir Thos. Wroth, Col. Alex. Popham, and Col. John Pyne. We have thought necessary, for greater security, that some regiments of voluntary horse, foot, and dragoons be raised, only to receive pay when on actual service, and only to be employed on special occasion. We have received from Sir Hardress Waller the list enclosed, and desire your opinion whether you approve of those named as officers under you; if you do, we will order their commissions. [I. 94, p. 350.]

July 31.
Whitehall.

Council of State to Col. Duckenfield. For the better security of those parts, you are to have a commission to enlist a regiment of volunteer foot, of whose good affection to the Parliament you are satisfied, who are not to receive pay but when drawn out upon particular service, this commonwealth not being in a condition to admit of any extraordinary charge. We doubt not you will find officers and soldiers whose good affection will be a motive beyond mercenary ones to put them on to the service. Send us the name of a fit person for a commission for raising a troop of volunteer horse. We have referred it to a committee to consider about demolishing the castles of Hawarden and Holt, and you shall have their resolution by the next post, and also ours about the prisoners sent from Dublin. [I. 94, p. 351.]

Council of State to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. We have resolved that several garrisons shall be disgarrisoned, and among them that of Aberystwith; we desire you, while in those parts, to take order that it be disgarrisoned, and so far made untenable that no inconvenience may grow to the country by it, if any disaffected persons should surprise and hold it. We doubt not but you may use the soldiers who are there in garrison in your present expedition.

Ten ships are gone out of the Downs with a convoy towards you, and we hope will be with you, or at least at the Land's End, before these letters, the wind having been very good; 70,000*l.* is sent to-day, and the rest will follow in two or three days, so you may give order for bringing it to you if you sail off before. We found every one willing, upon representation of the necessity of the service, to furnish their part, and indeed it came in beyond our expectation. We hope the soldiers will be content to go on board, if all things else are fit, and not stay until the money has come up. The forces that were about Chester and Liverpool are shipped away, and we believe were at Dublin by Wednesday or Thursday, and we hope the ships that carried them will be with you before these letters; there are shipped in them 2,100 foot and 634 horse. There is another ship of corn lading in the river, and we are buying more, and the other provision of victuals, made by Mr. Hawkins before he came away, shall be sent with it.

When God gives you a footing in Ireland, the best improvement possible must be made of the victuals of the country, as your forces will need a great quantity. The prices here are high, and it is likely to be so of old corn, in regard the stores are so far spent, and new corn, though the harvest should be never so dry, will not endure transport until the spring. When the harvest is new there, the people will sell their corn at low rates, that they may get something for it, lest they lose it all by incursions into quarters; soon after the harvest last year, they sold for 20*s.* and 22*s.* the quarter. Also let there be as much flesh salted up as you can get, for when winter is come, there will be none to be had there, and let all improvement be made of the fishing. There is an order taken for salt, and we hope by its help, and some of this money now sent over being applied to these purposes, a great deal of charge may be saved, and a comfortable provision made for the soldiers. Petitioner has been most unjustly ordered to pay them some money, although he was never cited to the hearing of the matter, nor heard by the Committee. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. The George and the Unicorn will be ready in three or four days. Speed away their captains' commissions and instructions. As there are many piracies committed between Yarmouth and Newcastle, which you are to give order for, and as care must be had for the coming home of the North Sea fishing, and for the preservation of the herring fishing now approaching, one of you should still attend the managing of the affairs of this Council. We have appointed the Fellowship and the Lioness to convoy three Merchant Adventurers' ships to Hamburg, and return after 14 days. [I. 94, p. 362.]

Withstood the rebels in their marches through the country where he had an interest, by garrisoning the place at his own charge, under commission of Major-General Middleton, who recommended him to the Committee of Estates for maintenance. In 1645 and 1646, his lands in Perth were overrun, burnt, and wasted, whereby he lost 3,000*l*. Being unable to live, is obliged to give two-thirds of his rent to get the land cultivated. Last September, Geo. Monro and his accomplices, understanding that he was opposite to their wishes, placed several troops of horse upon his lands, and in 15 days, drove away his cattle, exacted money, and did 10,000*l*. damage, and his lands are still held for payment of maintenance and bearing the public burdens. Authenticated by Andrew Hutcheson, minister of Stewartoun, and six others. Council of State to the Lord General. We understand that there is a confluence of malignants in the eastern division of Surrey, and that they have private meetings in such places as they used last year, for designing the Surrey petition and the following insurrection. The principal persons are Sir Thomas Bludder, with other ringleaders of the last year's rebellion, and lately Lord Goring was seen among them. The major part are at or about Epsom, under pretence of drinking the water there, but lie privately, having good horses and arms, and do not drink the water. 27th ult., certifying the rescue of those of your company that were taken and carried away by the perfidious design of Cochrane and his associates, of which we are very glad; if it had succeeded, it would have been too great an encouragement to those plagiarists to continue that trade of taking and ransoming men, and maintaining themselves by it; and we hope it will be a ground of caution for the future against too much credulity. We are much satisfied with the gallant resolution and valiant action of those young merchants who, with so much hazard, performed that rescue, whereby they have done honour to their nation, and gotten themselves reputation. We conceive them to deserve all encouragement, and shall give them our best countenance. As to your danger there, we have written to the Commonwealth of Hamburg; of the effect of our letters we desire to be certified from you. The Parliament will not abandon any who are under the malice of their enemies for their affection to the commonwealth, but will endeavour that right and justice be done them.

For a person to be qualified with a public character there, we wish some among yourselves, who might best have understood your own affairs, had been fit for it; but you not encouraging that, we shall take it into speedy consideration, that one may be dispatched from hence to you that may be qualified. [I. 94, pp. 367, 368.]

Council of State to [the Senate of Hamburg]. Of the advantage to human society of mutual commerce none can be ignorant who are at all conversant in civil affairs. There has long been a strict alliance between this commonwealth and your city, and many privileges enjoyed by the merchants of either part, for encouragement of a trade which has been beneficial to both, and we shall be ever ready to do what justice, honour, or any former conventions oblige us to, for preservation of the said alliance. We have considered your letter of 25 June, setting forth some fraud in the manufacture of cloths especially vendible in those parts, and believe that, during these times of war, many abuses may have crept in, it not being then possible to take due care of the execution of particular laws, while we were enforced to employ all our power to preserve our whole liberties from being rooted out by the attempts of the late tyrant, whose ways the divine justice has brought upon his own head, and has begun to settle peace in this commonwealth; by the advantage thereof we hope to redress all abuses which the misgovernment of former times has encouraged. We have put the business into a way for examination and redress, and doubt not but, with as much speed as the nature of such an affair will bear, to reduce the manufacture to the ancient manner, and restore our cloth to its ancient reputation.

We doubt not but your city will also do what on their part is stipulated, for preserving the alliance and encouraging mutual trade.

We formerly, upon representation by our merchants there residing, of the danger they were in, and the attempts made upon them for adhering to this commonwealth, recommended them to your protection, the benefit whereof they for some time enjoyed; but we are now informed that, since the arrival at your city of one Cochrane, who gives out himself to be a public minister of Charles Stuart, eldest son to the late King, they have been much affronted and endangered; the deputy of the company and two other merchants have been, by the practice of Cochrane, surprised and carried away, and our merchants could not obtain any assistance from you for their recovery. And although a very small number of our young merchants, with very great hazard, effected their recovery, and brought back the pirates who (in the river whereof your city is conservators) committed this wickedness against the laws of the empire, and who are imprisoned for it, yet such is the impudence of Cochrane, that he not only owns that fact, but requires those pirates to be set at liberty, and those merchants of ours so rescued, together with those who so valiantly rescued them, to be delivered over into his hands. We shall not say anything of this fact, effected with so much perfidy, and owned by him with so much impudence; by this you will be able to judge with what kind of men we have been conflicting for the preservation of all that can be dear to freeborn men. We desire that Cochrane and the rest of these offenders may be proceeded against, according to justice and the laws of the empire, and that our merchants may be so under your declared protection, as to be secure against nefarious attempts which security they will much better enjoy, if those who formerly attempted upon the life of the minister there (some of which number walk openly and boldly in the streets, to the affront of justice) may be punished as their offence shall by law deserve. Of all these things our merchants there will make a more full representation.

We recommend it also to your consideration, whether it can be for the safety and interest of your city to suffer Cochrane, such a pest to human society, under pretence of a public character (from him who has no power to give one, being not possessed of any dominions), to remain in your city, and with what security our merchants can there follow their trade, when they shall be still subject to all his wicked designs, and be without remedy, by reason of his pretended character. The sense we have of this danger of our merchants, and of the impudent affront to this commonwealth by Cochrane, has made us the longer in this representation; but we doubt not you will take the same into consideration and take such a course as these offenders shall be punished, and our merchants protected, as we shall also protect all such of you as have their residence among us. Council of State to the Governor, Bailiff, and Justices of Guernsey. There have been several complaints presented to the Parliament and this Council of the distempers and factions in Guernsey, which continue and heighten, to the danger of the island. The long troubles here have given so much business to Parliament that they have not had time to settle that affair, but commissioners have now been appointed to be sent over, to examine upon the place the whole state of the island, and of the grievances complained of, that Parliament may take course for redress, and settle the island in safety. Of the coming of those commissioners we give this notice, that preparations may be made to facilitate their dispatch. [I. 94, p. 380.]

Council of State to the Governor, Bailiff, and Justices of Guernsey. To the same effect as the preceding; also: Some persuade the people that they shall be freed from the payment of their just debts, &c., and stir them up to disorders to attain that end; you are to undeceive them, and let them know that this commonwealth will take care that justice may have due course, and that each man pay to the other what is due; for this commonwealth will not countenance any who maintain principles so destructive to the very foundation of the flourishing of any government. But if the troubled

Col. Edw. Popham to the Navy Commissioners. The time now drawing on for fitting out the winter guard, I recommend to you to make seasonable provision for the ships appointed for it, that when they come in, they may make little stay in port. Provision of victuals should be made for 1,000 men in the port of London, 1,000 at Portsmouth, 500 at Yarmouth, and 500 at Plymouth, for six months, that the places for their taking in victuals being near that of their service, the coast may be better guarded, and the trade of merchants secured. Council of State to Col. Popham. About 8 August, there were eight ships taken off Flamborough Head, which is a great discouragement to the trade of the north. You are to give special charge to the northern squadron to look after those pirates, and as they are set out from Ostend and the ports of Flanders, and thither carry their prizes, you are to order two ships fit for that service to ply upon the coast of Flanders, to prevent their coming out, or intercept them when they return with their prizes. Besides this particular service, their being upon these coasts will be a great security to the trade between this place and Flanders. The merchant ships now in the service shall continue their employment for eight months. [I. 94, p. 386.]

80. Col. Edw. Popham to the Navy Commissioners. Yours of the 15th put me into a very great admiration, that you should send to me now to give notice to the captains of the merchant ships that they are to be victualled for two months longer by their owners, when my letters could not come to some of them before their victuals had expired, being victualled but till the 27th of this month.

I never heard until now that the question was whether those ships should be victualled or no for two months longer, but whether they should be victualled by us or their owners, which was so readily resolved by you and the Council of State, that I thought the work had been done six months since. All I can say is, that the Hercules and Lucy are upon the Irish coast, and the Lioness, Increase, and Magdalen upon the North coast; by this mistake we are like to lose the service of those ships where it will be most wanted, the blame whereof will light on somebody; I have that under your hands which will clear me of it. All that can be done is for the owners to give credit to the several captains of the Lioness, Increase, and Magdalen for so much money, in some of the northern ports, Yarmouth, Hull, or Newcastle, as will make provision of two months' victuals. Council of State to the Earl of Pembroke. Upon information of some designs against Parliament and Council, and upon considering how difficult it might be to have the benefit of the guards quartered at St. James's, being the principal guards about this town, unless all the passages and doors of that park were in the hands of Col. Pride, the commander of that regiment, we have given him order to call for all the keys of the gates and doors of the park. We give you notice, that you may know that it is only done in order to the safety of the House and Council, which we know is so much in your desires that everything will be acceptable to you that may contribute thereto. Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. The Jonas merchant ship, employed in the present expedition, is come into the river, by reason of disorders in her men concerning their staying out two months longer: as the precedent is an ill example to the rest of the fleet, and the time formerly intended will be almost spent before she can be fitted for sea, it is thought fit that the said ship should be no longer employed, but paid off for the time she has already served. You are to examine who have been the principal authors of this disturbance, that when they come to receive their pay, their wages may be either suspended, or their persons secured, for the deterring of others. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. Hearing that the Dolphin has come in, in a disorderly way, to be paid off, and that the officers have not done their part to prevent it, we think so great a misdemeanor should have due punishment; and therefore that firstly, the officers should lose the benefit of the gratuity intended for those that have well demeaned themselves; secondly, that their standing wages should be suspended until we come to understand the true matter of fact; thirdly, that such of the seamen as have been the ringleaders should have their wages stopped, and their persons secured for trial at a council of war, whereof we desire you to certify the admirals at sea. This rule is to be observed in all cases of like nature. Capt. Keysar, with his ship, is likewise come in, and expects to be paid off; you are to stay his wages until further order from us, he being referred, by special order of Parliament, to the examination of the Council, concerning his coming from Londonderry without order. Council of State to the Governor of Weymouth. We have received information concerning the Prince's landing at Jersey. We have desired Col. Popham to send a sufficient number of ships to Guernsey to countenance that isle, prevent the increase of the Prince's forces at Jersey, and hinder any attempt from thence upon any port in the south and west of England. We give you this notice that you may have a watchful eye upon your garrison, to prevent any practice upon your soldiers or the people of the town, or any attempt of force upon it from without. Council of State to Col. Popham. The Prince has landed at Jersey, transported in two of the State's ships, which we conceive are the same we formerly gave you notice of; if they be, we wish it had been prevented. You are to cause a squadron of ships to sail to Guernsey, to prevent the Prince holding correspondence or making any practice upon any parts in the West, and also to hinder the increase of his strength by the repair thither of any forces, as there are 400 more soldiers in France to be transported thither. As some ships have been sent you by Col. Deane, you can spare some for that purpose, and therefore we desire you forthwith to dispatch away such as may give countenance to Guernsey, and prevent danger to any place in the South and West. Send us a list of the ships, and whom you appoint to command them in chief, if you shall not think fit to go yourself. If you find sufficient shipping from the coast of Ireland for this and the rest of the affairs in these seas, so that the great ships lately set out may be spared, or if you find you can make no use of them, you are to send them in again. The Commissioners appointed for Guernsey are at Portsmouth, and you are to appoint a ship for their transportation. [I. 94, p. 432.]

We enclose a warrant to the treasurers. In order that the assessments laid for the army in Ireland may be employed for the ends intended, the Council has now taken off the 60,000*l.* formerly charged upon the first three months' assessments for the army in Ireland, for supplying a magazine, in consideration of three months' advance made to them upon their going over to Ireland, and placed it upon the 150,000*l.* on the Excise. Council of State to the Mayor and Aldermen of Hull. The town of Hull is of consequence to the commonwealth, and we would omit nothing that conduces to its safety; the enemies have their eyes much upon it, and will use all means to get it into their power, by corrupting any that may contribute thereto. We doubt not but the governor and officers of the garrison will do their best, and we recommend all things appertaining thereto to your care. All officers in your corporation, as well those annually elected as those that continue, should take the oath appointed by this present Parliament, when you change your officers. We send the resolution of Parliament concerning ministers, which you are to see put in execution, and certify us what you do in pursuance of these directions within one month. [I. 94, p. 439.]

the doctor, who was barbarously murdered in the service of the commonwealth, his children are not only deprived of their father, but of their subsistence. The employment in which he died being put upon him by this Council, we hold ourselves obliged to see justice done to his children, and therefore, at request of his son, rethe condition of the children, and order what remains due to them to to them be speedily paid, that it may not only serve for their present subsistence, but be capable of improvement for their future advantage.

The son was to have 200*l.* a year as a pension, but as yet he has mote their affairs,—they being very unacceptable to many whose concurrence is necessary to their designs,—they have endeavoured to obtain their end by corrupting some of the Levellers, and by them imposing upon the rest of that sort, and upon many others whose simplicity cannot see the danger of their design, and who are thereby made instrumental to set up that power which will put out its first endeavours to their ruin. In prosecution hereof daily counsels are held, and emissaries sent abroad to seduce the people, and to stir up insurrections, and hinder the enjoyment of the tranquillity purchased at so dear a rate.

We hold it of more facility to prevent these designs than to suppress them when broken out, and we desire your best assistance; to that end inform yourselves of all emissaries of the Levellers sent abroad, and of all their secret or open meetings and consultations, and disperse all such meetings, and cause all those emissaries, and all the heads and chief promoters of such counsels to be apprehended and committed to safe custody, to be proceeded against as traitors. Council of State to the Mayor of Wickham. We understand that on the last market day at Wickham, 200 disorderly people assembled and seized and carried away the corn brought to be sold, under the notion of taking toll corn for the use of the poor, giving an example to others to run into exorbitant practices of the like nature, unless prevented; also that, being then overawed by the presence of the soldiery, who assisted you for the preservation of the peace, they gave it out they would come with far greater numbers on the next market day. For the hindering of a repetition, endeavour to find out the principal actors, and cause them to be apprehended and dealt with according to law; but if this cannot be effected before their next appointed meeting, call to your assistance the soldiers quartered nearest you, who are hereby required to aid you, and apprehend the principal leaders of the insurrection, and cause them to be proceeded against. 2. Mr. Scott to report to the House a copy of the letter which has gone into the several counties of England, by agents who are instrumental in carrying on the levelling design.

12. The officers of the Mint to attend the Council to-morrow, and bring their patents.

13. To request the House that,—as the 90,000*l.* a month is not sufficient for the pay of the army; and that for the supply thereof, this Council has charged some money upon the receipt at Goldsmiths' Hall, and that money does not come in, for want of perfecting some compositions,—they will order the committee at Goldsmiths' Hall to sit frequently, until those compositions are finished, so that supplies may be had for the army.

14. Capt. Rich. Wiltshire, late captain of the Jonas, Wm. Young, Jno. Milby, Jno. Rivers, Ralph Wingreen, Jno. Hopkins, and Wm. Grimes, to be tried by a council of war, for mutiny and bringing her in contrary to order. [I. 63, pp. 104–106.]

Sept. 26. Council of State to the Trustees and Contractors for Sale of the late King's goods. You are to take notice of the enclosed order from Parliament, and forbear selling any of the gold or silver plate, or gilt plate until further directions. [I. 94, p. 453.]

Sept. 26. Council of State to Col. Popham. We have received yours from aboard the Happy Entrance, on the banks of Guernsey, concerning the forces to be sent thither; they will be sent speedily. As to appointing the Mary Rose for the service of the island, she is to go as convoy for the Bay of Biscay, instead of the Unicorn, and therefore cannot be employed for Guernsey, but we leave it to you, who know all the ships of the fleet, and where they are, to appoint such as you think fit. As for the great ships which may not be so safe in those seas, we leave it to you to send them away as you see cause. [I. 94, p. 453.]

Sept. 26. Council of State to the Generals at Sea. There has been a mutiny in the Jonas, which was brought in before her time, and the examination has been referred by us to the Navy Commissioners. We have thought fit that Capt. Rich. Wiltshire, and six

Council of State to the Lord General. Your letter concerning the proceedings at Oxford against the late mutineers is reported to the House; we thank you and your officers for taking such an effectual course for quieting that mutiny. As there has been a just proceeding against those soldiers who have been seduced, we have taken order that those seducers who are not subject to martial jurisdiction be effectually proceeded against, for which purpose commissions of oyer and terminer are issued. Mr. Attorney has had order to proceed against some of the principals, and the trial will commence in a few days. [I. 94, p. 455.]

Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. We have considered your letter to the Admiralty Committee concerning the captain of the Jonas, and the six men whose wages you have stopped, and have written them to say they should be tried by the generals at sea, by a council of war; you are to take bail for their appearance, or secure them in the Marshalsea until they can be tried. Council of State to Messrs. Betsworth, Moore, and Wither. We formerly ordered Winchester Castle to be made untenable. We now authorise you to see the same put in execution, and to summon the country to do the work, which we conceive they will be willing to do, to provide for their future quiet. We enclose a copy of the engineer's opinion of what was necessary to be done. [I. 94, p. 456.]

Council of State to Mr. Walley. Several officers in the parts thereabouts are raising men for Ireland, by order of the Lord Lieutenant, for recruiting the regiment there, and if they continue long upon the country, it will be a very great burden. See therefore that shipping be ready to transport them as they reach the number of 40, although they may be for several regiments; for each officer may easily send a list of their names to his colonel or commander, who may then receive and conduct them to their regiments. As there is so much shipping in those parts, there can be no danger to pass them away in single vessels, and we desire all expedition. You are only to give allowance to private soldiers taken for recruits, and not to any officers who are upon their established entertainment. [I. 94, p. 457.]

Council of State to the Navy Committee. An able minister should be settled at Chatham, to teach the seamen and others their duty; but as the maintenance for the minister which arises out of the mariners' groats does not suffice for an able man, and as Mr. Adderley, who is fit for that work, will undertake it at 100*l.* a year, we recommend that he be settled there, and that you give him 100*l.* a year, towards the making up whereof, you are to employ the mariners' groats that were formerly allowed to the minister there. Sept. 26. Council of State to Capt. Fras. Penros of the Mary Rose. You were ordered to fit your ship so as to convoy several merchant ships to the Bay of Biscay, &c., but on pretence by the officers of want of supplies for such a voyage, we appointed another ship. Having since seen a letter and paper signed by you and all your officers and company, of your readiness to perform the said service, we hereby require you to proceed therein; and the commander of the first of the State's ships you shall meet that has provision of powder on board, is to deliver your gunner 10 barrels on his receipt. You are also to take care not to bring your ship under command of any foreign prince or state. [I. 123, p. 112.]

Order that the Commissioners of Customs report the time when Mr. Mathew's grant of clerk of the passes was made, and whether the office may be continued without prejudice to the commonwealth.
Reference to the Court of Admiralty of the petition of Jane Herbert; the judges desired to admit her to sue in formâ pauperis, as she cannot pay the fees for prosecuting her husband's right; also to grant her the usual warrants to arrest the vessel, to bring the matter to trial whether her property does not still remain, notwithstanding the surprisal and carrying of the vessel into Washford, and the sale made thereof by the rebels there. [I. 123, p. 111.]
- Sept. 27. 106. Order in Parliament—on report of the Council of State that 90,000*l.* per month is not sufficient for the pay of the army; that for the supply thereof, the Council have charged some moneys upon the receipts at Goldsmiths' Hall, and that moneys do not come in, for want of perfecting some compositions there depending;—that the committee at Goldsmiths' Hall sit this afternoon, and so daily, until those compositions are finished, in order that supplies may be had for the army, and that Mr. Lister and Col. Sept. 27. Admiralty Committee to Mr. Barrow. There are divers gentlemen now at Gravesend, who pretend to be going for the West Indies, but we believe are going another way. Colonel Sheffield, Mr. Pymme, and Mr. Spencer, are three of them, and we desire you to ask for their passes, as they ought to have them from the Council of State; in case they do not produce them, you are to stay them, and search for their papers or letters. If they produce any passes, stay them, for the passes are not right; Mr. Frost has not given them any, and they ought to have had them from him. What letters or papers you find upon them you are to send to Mr. Thomas Scott, one of the Council of State, but not to let them know whence you had your order. [I. 123, p. 112.]

Sept. 28. Order in Parliament,—the House having proceeded this day in reading the declaration or vindication of the proceedings of Parliament by parts, and every clause, when read and put to the question, being assented to, and the said declaration being put to the question, repassed, and ordered to be forthwith printed and published;—that, the Council of State consider of such persons now in prison or under restraint as are fit to receive favour, in pursuance of this declaration, and give order for their discharge, they submitting to the government now established, and giving security not to disturb the peace.

Also that the Council of State consider in what manner this declaration may be sent down and dispersed in the several counties, and give orders accordingly. [I. 87, p. 88.]

Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. We have received the opinions of the master builders of the ships now in hand, and of some sea commanders, concerning the proportions of guns to be used in the said ships, and find that the opinion of the officers of the ordnance is different. You are to send for the master builders, and the Ordnance officers will attend, and consult upon a perfect list of the guns, that may be a ground for the contract to be drawn up for the gunfounder for providing them; Peter Pett, jun. must attend also. Sept. 29.

Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. The masters of the vessels laden with provisions for the army in Ireland say that the captain of the Fellowship will not be ready to convoy them for eight or ten days, as the bread he was to have had for his company is not yet baked. Although we can scarce give credit to this, we acquaint you with it, and desire you to make speed in furnishing the ship, as the army much wants the provisions. [I. 123, p. 113.]

We referred the charge and his answer to the Navy Commissioners, who contracted with Rich for two vessels, to be solely employed in that service; after a long time spent in the business, they returned us the enclosed, wherein they allege that the business ought properly to be determined at Dublin, where the witnesses nominated by both parties reside; we therefore trouble you to examine the matter, and settle the post barks conveniently, and we will present the same to the Council of State for approbation. [I. 123, p. 114.]

Sept. 29. 109. Charles II. to Lord Montrose. I entreat you to go on with your wonted courage in the prosecution of those trusts committed to you, and not be frustrated by any reports you may hear, as if I were otherways inclined to the Presbyterians than I was before when I left you. I assure you I am still upon the same principle, and depend as much upon your undertakings and endeavours as ever for my business, being fully resolved to assist and support you to the utmost of my power, as you shall find when you shall need anything to be done by affection. [Copy, $\frac{1}{4}$ page, with three other copies, calendared under their respective dates. Endorsed, "Copies of letters from young Tarquin to Montrose."]

Sept. ? 110. Notes [by Nicholas?] As it is reported that the rebels in England have plotted the assassination of the King, Queen, and Duke of York, and for that purpose have already sent beyond seas several persons in disguise, His Majesty ought to command that all the persons attending him, the Queen, and Duke of York should wear swords; that a competent number of persons in his and the Duke of York's service should be commanded to wait upon them by turns, and special order given them not to permit any person whom they do not know to approach their Majesties or the Duke, until they are informed who they are, whence they came, and what they would have. That some fit person should be appointed as sentry at the door where their Majesties are, and observe who goes into their presence, and not permit any strangers to enter whose affections and intentions may be suspected.

It is to be hoped that their Majesties and his Highness will not go abroad with the little company they usually do. Some fit messenger should be employed to inquire privately after such strangers as shall come to town or to Court, and give notice of them, and such noblemen and gentlemen about His Majesty as have no particular charge or business to look after should be desired to attend, and have a care of their Majesties and His Highness, whenever they go abroad. Council of State to the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of London. There has been great mischief by the license and irregularity of the press, and the spreading of foolish, malignant, seditious, and treasonable pamphlets and invectives; great care has been taken to pass an Act that will put an end to that mischief, if care be had in its execution; that care being principally in the justices of the peace, we desire that the Act may be published in Common Council, and that you give special charge to your marshal, &c. to search for all the guilty, and proceed against them without respect of persons. [I. 94, p. 465.]

1. Petition of the Mayor, Jurats, and Inhabitants of Dover to the Council of State, for money to repair and maintain the harbour. The Parliament, in Oct. 1648,—upon a petition recommended by the Committee of the Navy and Customs, expressing the great breaches made in the August before and afterwards, by the violence of the sea, and setting forth the concernment of the harbour in customs, and as a safeguard to ships, and the want of timber and money for its repair and preservation,—gave order that the Committee of Kent should disburse 1,270*l.* out of the compositions of delinquents for its repair. Thereupon the committee ordered payment of 300*l.*, part of the said 1,270*l.* which was endeavoured to be raised, but on account of the county being charged with soldiers, it could not be done, and there is now no hope of the payment of it, and great fears that the harbour will be utterly lost, in respect of the great breaches made therein. 2. Remonstrance of the town of Dover [to the Council of State] as to its desperate condition. Henry VIII. caused the present harbour to be erected at his own cost of 60,000*l.*, and since then, care has been taken by the State for its maintenance, by tonnage and poundage of ships at 6*d.* per ton, in passages from France to that port. King James, for the benefit of the harbour, incorporated it by the name of warden and assistants, and King Charles, in his 13th year, granted a new duty of 1*s.* per pack on all composition goods between Dover and Flanders. The present cost for repair of the harbour will amount to more than the receipts for 20 years before, the timber, stone, and iron work being much wasted by the sea. The chief revenue of the harbour was the tonnage on strangers' vessels, and cranage of goods, which now produces but little benefit, and the rent of the lands and houses belonging to the harbour produces but 170*l.* a year. It is the only dry harbour upon the southern coast, for safeguard and for repair of merchant ships. The inhabitants have paid to the present Parliament 35,000*l.* in plate, loans for Newcastle, Ireland, the public faith, &c. The charge of the poor of the town is 650*l.* a year. Divers merchants, seamen, and others have left for want of trade, and 200 houses stand empty. Within the last seven years, they have lost 50 sail, with the goods and merchandise. The composition trade of the town has paid the State, from 20,000*l.* to 60,000*l.* a year, and may again do so, the harbour being preserved, and the conveyance of merchants' goods carefully observed. Council of State to Sir Wm. Rowe and Messrs. Smith and Mathewes. Within a fortnight after date, Downes to deliver 2,500 coats and as many breeches, and every week after 2,500 more, until the 16,000 are delivered. 2. The coats to be made of Coventry or Gloucester cloth of Venice color, red shrunk in cold water, all three-quarters and a nail in length, with tape strings, and bound about with the same. 3. You are therefore to pay him the said money, and assist him in their speedy transport to the ports ordered by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, or his colonel, and see that the men be transported at the State's charge; let them not want shipping, and thereby lie here at greater charge, and do no service. Oct. 20. 23. Charles II. to the Gentry of Cornwall and Devon. The great sense we have of your firm loyalty, whereof you have given so many exemplary proofs both to our father and ourself, in these unhappy times of trial, is ever so present with us as we daily meditate how we may acknowledge our thanks, and by some happy enterprise, free our faithful subjects from the grievous tyranny and oppression they groan under, through the power usurped over them by their fellow subjects, contrary to the fundamental laws of the land. That we may proceed therein with the better success, we desire you to persevere in your former loyal endeavours, as most of our people are resolved to do, and put yourselves into readiness to join with us or any force that shall be raised by our consent, for suppressing the arbitrary power now exercised over you, vindicating the horrid murder of our father, freeing yourselves from the heavy burdens and taxes illegally imposed upon you, and restoring our just rights and the ancient liberties of the English nation; and as we shall ever make this our end in all our attempts, we doubt not but, by the blessing of God and your loyal assistance, to effect the same in due time, to the comfort of all those that love peace. [Holograph draft by Sec. Nicolas, not signed; 1 page.]

Oct. 20? 24. Instructions by the King for Sir John Paulet, employed for raising forces for the service in county Hants, Col. Fras. Windham county Somerset, Col. Robert Phelippes counties Dorset and Wilts, and for such other well-affected subjects as join with them in giving assistance. Being resolved, by God's assistance, to use all possible endeavours, as well for vindicating the horrid murder of our father, as for freeing our subjects in England from the grievous tyranny usurped over them by their fellow subjects,—who, under pretence of reformation and liberty, exercise the most infamous cruelties that ever were acted by any that professed the name of Christians,—and for better encouraging such of our subjects as still retain their loyalty, we have issued commissions for raising horse and foot in the counties before named, and for their more orderly advancing, we issue the following instructions:—

1. You are to cause all possible secrecy to be used in this important affair, more particularly in the listing and raising of forces, and all employed therein are to get together privately in some safe place, such arms and munition as they can, and to be in readiness to rise on a fit opportunity, whereof timely notice will be sent them in your respective counties, and join with such other forces as shall appear there for us; but you are to require them otherwise to remain quiet, lest they be destroyed before they can gather strength.

2. You are to hold correspondence privately with faithful persons, and communicate freely among yourselves, so as better to understand each other's strength, and where it remains, and not only agree upon some fitting rendezvous for your respective forces in each county, but appoint one for the forces of all the counties to meet, either for defence or to unite with other forces.

3. You must not go into action without the consent of the major part, and when in action, use all diligence to unite your forces together, in or near some place of strength under your power, lest you be surprised before you have got into a considerable body; and as soon as your several forces are united, you are to agree who shall be the commander-in-chief, and the decision of the majority of you shall be final.

4. You are to use care in disposing of the commissions delivered you, to persons of good esteem, and of whose ability and fidelity you are well assured, and no man is to have a commission for two regiments, as this has been very prejudicial in former services.

5. At your entrance into service, you are to make timely provision for a good supply of arms and ammunition for all the forces, and appoint trusty storekeepers to take charge of the magazines.

6. You are to get what ordnance you can, and also a good train of artillery for your better strength, and to appoint some experienced officer to take the care thereof under you.

7. You are to send notice to us of all your proceedings; what number of horse and foot you have prepared, what arms or munition are provided, where they all are, and in what condition for action, that we may direct a correspondence to be held with you by such as we shall employ in other counties or places, for your better reinforcing each other against the rebels. [Holograph, draft by Nicolas, 3 pages.]

Oct. 20? 25. Commissions to Sir Jo. Paulet for county Hants, Col. Fras. Windham county Somerset, and Col. Rob. Phelippes counties Dorset and Wilts, to be commanders-in-chief of the forces to be raised in their respective counties. [Draft by Nicolas, 1½ pages.]

Oct. 20? 26. Commissions for four colonels of a regiment of horse, one in each of the above-named counties. Blank. [Draft by Nicolas, 1 page.]

The payments from the 22nd inst. to be made out of these receipts of the excise are,— 16,000*l.* for interest on the remainder of the two 400,000*l.* to be raised by sale of bishops' lands, and the 84,000*l.* charged upon bishops' lands for the city, by ordinance of 3 June, which 16,000*l.* it is hoped will be paid towards the end of November.

350,000*l.* charged for the use of the Commonwealth, 150,000*l.*, whereof is assigned by Parliament for Ireland and all but 300,000*l.* (sic 30,000*l.* ?) of it is already engaged; this is not likely to be paid until next August. The other 200,000*l.*, which until then does not begin to have its course, remains to be disposed of.

204,647*l.* 1*s.* 10½*d.* for particular uses with interest, in which is not included the last doubling upon the bishops' lands, which amounts to 484,000*l.* The whole charge therefore on the receipts of the excise, besides the said 484,000*l.*, is 1,505,497*l.* 3*s.* 7½*d.*

It has been considered, for the better managing of the excise, that in the new modelling of excise now depending before Parliament, there should be a certain and regular way of collecting it; a speedy course taken for bringing in the arrears; and some way thought of, with the consent of the parties interested, for taking off those charges remaining upon the excise, after the first 400,000*l.* is paid off; so that from thenceforth the receipts may run clear, thereby to support the public expenses for abatement of assessments.

In lieu of transferred debts as yet unsatisfied, 9,525*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.*,

From compositions of delinquents upon bonds for their second payments 218,212*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.*

From compositions of delinquents that as yet have not paid any part of their fines, 147,749*l.* 0*s.* 1*d.*

To be repaid to that treasury from the treasurers for sale of the King's goods, being lent for the sick and maimed soldiers, 3,000*l.*, total, 368,961*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*

Council of State to the Governor of Southampton and Alderman Le Gaye. We wrote the Mayor of Southampton that the oath appointed by Parliament to be taken by all the officers of every corporation, should be taken by those of Southampton. Council of State to Mr. Walley. In Ireland there is great want of recruits; having many places, many men are taken up to keep them. Use all diligence in sending away Col. Moore and Col. Fenwick's recruits to Col. Venables' troops at Belfast, furnishing them with what muskets you can, as there are not sufficient in that place. If you cannot send them to Belfast, then send them to Carlingford; in that case, you may forbear furnishing the arms, as they can be had there; all expedition should be used in sending them away. Report to the Council of State, on the petition of Lieut. Stephen Rose and the rest of the seamen of the Happy Entrance, that for destroying the Antelope, Lieut. Tulley, corporal, 10*l.*, 20*s.* to be in a gold medal; and each of the mariners 5*l.*; to be paid by the collectors for prize goods, out of the tenths of the prizes, which, by an order of the Council of State of June last, were to be reserved, to the sum of 1,000*l.*, to be disposed of in medals or rewards to such mariners as have been active in the service of the State. - Oct. 27. Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. At request of Whitehall. the generals of the fleet, we desire you to hasten forth the winter guard and inform us how many ships you have already set forth, how many are come in and fitting forth, and how many men are borne upon each of them. If any obstruction lies in your way, certify us, and we will endeavour to remove it; and as any of the ships come in, let them be fitted forth again with all speed. [I. 123, p. 127; Vol. III. No. 41.]

- Oct. 27. 42. Thomas Lord Grey to all Constables, Thirdburrowes, and other ministers of the peace in counties Northampton and Bucks. As there are divers disorderly and dangerous persons within your counties, who have abused the officers of Whittlewood Forest, and provoked others so to do, and who threaten them still, and have also coursed, killed, and destroyed the deer, conies, &c. there under my command, I hereby will and require you, upon receipt hereof, to search all suspected houses and places within your several parishes, and apprehend all such persons as the bearer shall nominate, and bring them before me or some other justice of the peace of this county. You are also to seize and take away all greyhounds and other offensive dogs, and all nets, bows, guns, staves, &c. found in any suspected houses, and deliver them to the bearer for the lieutenant. - Oct. 28. 43. Col. Edw. Popham to the Navy Commissioners. The Assurance, St. George, Expedition, and John being at Portsmouth, to be paid off, victualled, Downs. and fitted out again for the winter guard, I desire that as soon as the men are paid off, they be newly entered upon the same ships, to which purpose I have written the captains; for if those men should be absolutely discharged, it will be very hard to man the ships again here; and if they stay till men be sent from London, it may be two months or more before they will come out again, which will be very prejudicial. There is news from the coast of France that the Constant Warwick and Weymouth pink are cast away about Guernsey and Jersey, and few of their men saved, but I hope it is only a report raised by those that wish it so; I have not heard thence this month.

The Tiger and the Star's eight months' victuals draw towards an end; it will be an advantage if they might be paid off at Harwich, where they might likewise wash and tallow, and be re-victualled at Yarmouth for the winter guard. Should those two frigates come in, that coast would be left wholly destitute of guard, most of the ships of the squadron being only for the summer's guard; but if they come no further than Harwich, they are still near their place of employment. Mr. Pitt writes me that the Leopard will be ready to sail hither the middle of this week. The Bonadventure and Happy Entrance are both graved; the former is taking in her victuals, and the latter ready for hers. Let them be speeded, and all expedition used for fitting out of the rest of the winter guard as they come in. [1½ page.]

16. To report to Parliament that Mr. Strickland—having delivered his credentials from the Parliament to the States-General and Provincial, and demanded audience, and being long delayed upon pretence they had no order, and the same being signified to the Council of State,—had order to return. This he signified to the States Provincial of Holland who, judging it a matter of weight, resolved that all endeavours should be used by them with the general States, that he might be received and have audience, in such manner as is given to the ministers of other Kings and commonwealths; and that if they could not prevail, a protest should be made against those that should hinder, and they would give notice thereof to the several provinces, and desire them to make reparation, if anything should fall out of what was expressed in their protestation, by his not being received. If he should not be received, they would deliberate what answer they would give him. This resolution was taken by them on 9 Sept., and the next day exhibited and read in the assembly of the States-General, which producing no other effect but delay, on the 24th of Sept., the protest, whereof follows a translation, was read in the Assembly, and registered in the register book of the States-General, by the States of Holland.¹

Council of State to Sir Hardress Waller. Rich. Ford, who has lived at Rotterdam, a most desperate malignant, has come to Exeter or the West parts, and it is believed is about some design of special mischief for Charles Stuart, being a principal man in all their councils, a man of parts, and of special abilities to do mischief. He has compounded at Goldsmiths' Hall for a very inconsiderable sum, and for that reason, cannot be taken upon any of his old accounts; yet we desire you to appoint some to have a special eye upon him, so as to watch his conversation and actions; if he be found to be designing or promoting new troubles, let him be secured. His business may be to promote some secret contributions, or to practise with some garrison. We have often debated a reply to your letters as to the militia, but the Act requiring alteration has retarded it. [I. 94, p. 508.]

1. To recommend to the committee which confers with the army officers to take care (in regard of some differences in Guernsey) to send over some person to command the forces now going thither who is not concerned therein; the petition and remonstrance sent from Guernsey referred to the said committee.

2. The master of the ship that carried the recruits to Dublin, instead of to Carlingford, summoned to answer for breach of order.

Nov. 4? 50. Thos. Elford to his brother, John Eaton, minister of the Gospel, Bridport. That a stop may be put to a growing mischief, I sent to some a copy of a remonstrance which is of dangerous concern. The chief agents are ringleaders of the canting levelling crew, Herbery and others, who, preaching up and down, prosecute their design. They intend to present it to the Generals, but it should be nipped in the bud. Pray send it at once to Col. Sydenham; I do not know his address. If these sparks are not quenched, we shall see all in a flame again. Be secret, and ask Col. Sydenham to be so; but he is wise, and knows to whom to impart it. Write me if I can serve you; my address is at Mr. Middleton's, Taunton. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page; see Council of State to the Leicester Committee, Nov. 5.]

5. All the orders of Council as to the commitment of Lieut.-Col. Lilburne to be ready by to-morrow, and all the orders of the House sent for, as also the judges who were commissioners at his trial, and the Attorney-General.

6. The Irish Committee to consider how some families may be sent to Wexford, as also to send to some of the adventurers for lands in Ireland, and consult with them thereon.

7. Lord Commissioner Whitelock and Lord Chief Baron Wylde to look into all orders concerning the trial of the Pix, and prepare what is fit to be offered to the House, both for alteration of the oath and otherwise, and to do it speedily, as the proceedings of the Mint depend thereupon.

11. The letters and papers from Guernsey referred to the committee for that place.

12. Thomas Church not to have the warrant for his discharge until he has paid the charges and fees of the serjeant's man, and those of the keeper of Peterhouse.

Council of State to the Committee at Leicester. If what is suggested in the enclosed petition is true, we are much dissatisfied, and cannot conceive that any committee has power to appoint any such disputations as are mentioned therein. We know their nature tends only to the increase of animosity, as experience has in this particular shown you, to the breach of the public peace, which all those who have any public trust ought to use diligence to preserve, especially in such times as these, wherein the common enemy is watchful to make advantage of every disturbance, from whatever cause. We know well this Council has given no encouragement to such proceedings, nor do we know any ordinance of Parliament on pretence whereof the things complained of against you in this petition can be justified. Certify the whole state of fact, from the cause of the disputation, to the commitment of the prisoners, so that if it differs from the information of the petition, we may examine further, and put an end to an ill-begun business.—P.S. Since writing the above, we have received your letter, but find nothing proved therein as to the point of Levelling, to which our letter refers. [I. 94, p. 515.]

Lion, Nonsuch, Guinea frigate, Nicodemus, Concord, and Garland. We shall endeavour to keep all out except the latter, until we have some of our winter guard returned. My partner Blake is on the coast of Munster, with the Guinea frigate and Nonsuch; the Satisfaction and Nicodemus tend the army; the Hector is at Plymouth, fetching them bread, and the Concord is here, also laden with bread for the army; I am sending her away with the Garland for Wexford. We keep the Lion here for the safety of this place, now the great rendezvous for all vessels for Ireland. I have sent the Phoenix to Plymouth, to change the beer that was brewed there, and which for the most part stinks, and have given order to the victualler to put two months' more provisions on board her, which will complete her until after Christmas; for I fear we shall want ships for the West Coast and Ireland, if they all stay as long as Capt. 55. Sir Kenelm Digby to Lord [Conway]. Now that the Protestant Church is grown invisible again, I cannot hear with patience the doctrine of imputative righteousness. Pray allow me to believe not your justice but your mercy to me, and to profess myself your most obliged. Those innocent recreations you mention, of tabors and pipes, and dancing ladies, and convenient country houses, shady walks and close harbours, make me sigh to be again a spectator of them, and to be again in little England, where time slides more gently away than in any part of the world. Quando sia mai, ch' a rivederti io torni? Instead of your smiling English sky, I am here weatherbeaten with winter storms; for your smooth well-natured ladies, we see nothing but rough-hided savage sea calves; for your delicious wine and curious food, our diet is red puddle beer,—made of brackish water, and wood-dried malt,—the flesh of seals, porpoises, &c. dressed with whale oil, and our bread is made of tainted rye, fished out of wrecked Holland hulks cast away upon these sands.

All our mirth is made by Mr. Griffin's daily extravagancies. He has put the governor upon digging in the citadel for a million of gold, hid there by the English at their departure. The other day, he invited all the English sailors here to a feast, where his chief entertainment was to read them his letters to Lord Windsor; they showed their weariness by rising to be gone before he had half done; whereupon he quarrelled with them, but they were too many and too boisterous for him. His English maid that waits upon him salved all up. If he should hear I am so bold with him, he would be bolder with me, so pray sacrifice my letter to Vulcan, or else woe be to me. Send your letter for me to my servant John Lee, at Gresham College, or to the post house, directed A Monsieur le Chevalier Digby, à Calais; it will find me, if no curious overseer of the packets at the post break it open for the superscription's sake. But I hope I am now thought so innocent that neither my commerce will be suspected, nor my person interdicted. I desire liberty of return, for no one thing in the world more than to have the comfort of waiting continually upon you. [3 pages.]

Admiralty Committee to the Generals of the Fleet. Divers merchants trading to Spain, &c. are expecting ships in from Spain, Canaries, and the Straits, and are informed that Rupert and Plunket are lying, with several men-of-war, about the Land's End, to take and destroy them. To secure these ships and the merchant trade in general, you should appoint a strong guard of ships to ply to and from the Land's End, with orders to look out for pirates; tell us what orders you make herein, that we may give an account to the Council of State.

We have received the enclosed certificate touching the shallops the State employs for the guard of Guernsey; as you have been there, you can better judge whether they are fit to be continued. We have also received a petition complaining that several small vessels have been lately taken by pirates, between Sandwich and the Hope, and referred it to the Navy Commissioners, who certify the necessity of the speedy setting out a small vessel for the guard of those parts, and recommend a Sandwich ketch for that service. We enclose copies of their letters, and upon receiving your opinion therein, we will proceed. [I. 123, p. 130.]

56. Col. Edw. Popham to the Navy Commissioners. I have received yours of the 29th ult., intimating the contracts made by you with persons at Chatham, Portsmouth, Plymouth, and Yarmouth, for this winter and the ensuing summer's guard, and have given directions to the several ships employed near those places, for their taking in their victuals accordingly. I have here certain remains of victuals paid for and undisposed of, part of the two months' provision made by me here, which, with a few things wanting, will make two months' victuals for a third-rate ship. The State should not lose the victuals, which are paid for and in good condition. If you appoint Simon Blackmore purser, in regard they are in his custody, to take them into the Happy Entrance, and supply what shall be wanting, it will be so much saved to the State, for I received a letter from Col. Deane, intimating that no more ships should come further eastward than Portsmouth, so that there will be no more ships here to take off those provisions. There are likewise 222 men's victuals paid for and undisposed of in Thomas King's hands of Yarmouth, which I have not ships to take off, as the Fellowship was victualled by you for extraordinary employment to Ireland, and the Jonas and some others, which I had contracted with him to victual, came in contrary to order, without taking in any victuals. Pray give King notice in time, to provide so many men's victuals the less out of the contracts you have made with him, which I doubt not but he will be willing to do, in regard your contract with him is less by a farthing a head per day than mine was, and he has received all his money from me already. I have sent in the Unicorn to Chatham to be paid off, her victuals having expired. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

Council of State to the Generals of the Fleet. A petition has been presented to us by divers fishermen and inhabitants of Folkestone, Kent, showing that they have lately discovered a shelf of oysters against the town, which, if preserved, will not only satisfy their charge of discovery, but be a great relief to their poor, and their neighbours of Dover and Hythe. They further state that divers great boats frequently come from Essex, Rochester, Milford [sic, Milton?], and other places, to fish, and destroy the said shelf, which will be effected, if not suddenly prevented. We therefore recommend to you to use all means for preserving the said shelf from destruction, that it may be continued as of use for the public good, and not ruined for advancing of particular interest. If you shall hereafter find that any boats are sent thither to destroy it, you are to take notice of the persons so offending, and send their names to us, that order may be taken for their punishment, and for restraining similar proceedings, we conceiving it very equitable that, as the petitioners have been instrumental in the discovery thereof, they and their neighbours should receive special advantage thereby. 83. Declaration of James, Marquis of Montrose, Earl of Kintairne, Lord Graham, and Baron of Montdeu, Lieut.-Governor and Captain General for His Majesty, of the kingdom of Scotland:—

Though it may seem both public and private injury, rather than matter of duty, to do any act that may even appear to dispute the clearness of this present service, or to hold its enemies as a party,—the justice of His Majesty's cause, the wickedness of these rebels, and my own integrity being all of them so well and so thoroughly known,—yet the further to confirm the world, and encourage all who are to engage, and the powerfuller to convince many who have been innocently inveigled in those desperate courses, I do, in the name of His Majesty, and by virtue of the authority granted by him to me, declare that,—although there has been, and still is, a horrid faction of rebels in Scotland, who causelessly hatched a rebellion against his late Majesty, and when he had granted them all their violent and most unjust desires, were so far from resting satisfied that, being themselves not able to find any further pretences, they solicited a party in England to begin where shame and necessity had forced them to break off; and when those of the English, being so much less wicked, would have often satisfied themselves by His Majesty's extraordinary concessions (they then not intending the desperate lengths which fatal success and their hollow practices did thereafter drive them to), they thrust in oil to the fire, and ganger to the wound, until they had rendered all irrevocable.

Neither were they contented, in the fox skin alone, to act this their so brutish a tragedy, which could never have secured their ends; but while they had received all imaginable satisfaction (as their very own Acts of Parliament witness, wherein they say that his late Majesty parted a contented King from a contented people), finding their rebel brood whom they had begot in England beginning to lessen, and His Majesty's party to have by much the better, they, contrary to the duty of true subjects, and to all covenants and oaths, did enter with a strong army into England, persecute their Prince in a foreign nation, assist a company of stranger rebels against their native King, but for which His Majesty had, without all peradventure, prevailed.

And not ashamed of all this, when His late Majesty was, by unhappy treacheries, reduced to think upon extreme courses for his safety, he was pleased, out of natural inclination towards his native people, notwithstanding their former villanies, to choose that ignoble party to fall upon, thinking that those whom his greatness and their duty would not oblige, his misery and their compassion might perhaps move with pity, yet too justly fearing their puny faiths, he first resolved to engage them by a treaty; and when he had received all manner of assurances, as is so undeniable and known to all the world, casting himself in their hands, they, contrary to all faith, duty, and laws divine and human, of hospitality, of nature, of nations, and to which there has never been a precedent, nor can ever be a follower, most infamously and basely, to the blush of Christians and the abomination of all mankind, sold their sovereign over to their merciless fellow traitors, with whom how they conspired his destruction, their secret intercourses both before and since his horrid murder, too evidently declare.

Of all which villanies they are so little touched with the guilt, that they now begin with His Majesty upon the same scores they left with his father, declaring him king with provisoes, so robbing him of all right, while they would seem to give some to him, pressing him to join with those who have leagued all his dominions in rebellion, and laid all royal power in the dust; that in effect he would condemn the memory of his father, destroy himself, and ruin his faithful party within all those dominions.

There are those who at first entered England, soliciting all to rise in this desperate rebellion, who were the chief instruments of all the battles and slaughters within that kingdom, who sold their sovereign unto death, and yet dig in his grave, and who are more perniciously hatching the destruction of his present Majesty, by the same base treacheries, than even they did his father's. Yet the people in general, having been ignorantly misled, have now their eyes opened, and their hearts turned to dutiful obedience, and there has been still a royal party, who have given such proofs of integrity that His Majesty—moved with tender compassion for these righteous' sakes,—in behalf of all who at last have remorse for their misdeemeanors, is not only willing to pardon every one (except such who, upon clear evidences, shall be found guilty of the murder of his father) who immediately, or upon the first possible convenience, abandons those rebels, and joins with us and our forces, but also to assure all who are or will turn loyal to him, of that nation, that it is his resolution, upon the word of a prince, to ratify (so soon as it shall please God to put it in his power, with the advice of the supreme judicatures of that kingdom), all that was done by his father in order to their peace, desiring nothing but their dutiful obedience, and faithful services, for the revenge of the horrid murder of his father, his own just re-establishment, and their perpetual happiness under his government.

Wherefore all who have any duty left in them to God, their king, country, friends, homes, wives and children, or would change the tyranny and oppression of those rebels into the mild and innocent government of their just prince, or revenge the murder of their king, redeem their nation from infamy, themselves from slavery, restore the present, and oblige the ages to come;—let them, as Christians, subjects, patriots, friends, husbands, and fathers, join forthwith with us in this present service, that is so full of conscience, duty, honour, and all just interests, and not apprehend any evils half so much as those they presently lie under; for though there may appear difficulties, yet let them not doubt of God's justice, nor the happy providence that may attend His Majesty, nor their own resolutions, nor the fortunes of those they are joined with; resolving with Joab, to play the men for their people and the cities of their God, and let the Lord do whatsoever seemeth good unto him; wherein whatsoever shall happen, they may at least be assured of Crastinus' recompense, that dead or alive, the world will give them thanks. (1.) You shall meet the first Tuesday in every month, in some convenient place, and oftener if necessary.

(2.) Before acting upon these instructions, you are to subscribe the engagement to be true and faithful to the commonwealth, in the presence of any three of you, and then any two of you are to cause the said engagement to be subscribed by such colonels and majors (whose names you are to return to the Council), captains and other officers as shall be employed, and by the common soldiers whom you think fit to be entrusted with arms ; and upon recommendation of the officers to the Council, they are to have commissions if the Council approve them ; and they being so commissioned, you may grant commissions to their inferior officers, if you approve of them.

(5.) You are to inform yourselves what horse and arms are in your respective counties, cities, and towns, and in whose hands, how, and where formerly charged ; and to cause all those fit for service to be put into the hands of well-affected persons, and made fit for war, and then train and muster them in troops and companies, and form them into regiments, to resist all who attempt to invade or raise insurrection ; calling to your assistance such persons as you think fit that are trusted with the militia, to aid in

Council of State to the Admiralty Judges. As disaffected persons correspond with the enemy, and under colour of sending provisions, &c., to Ireland, send them to the Scilly Isles, Jersey, &c., and bring back the spoils of our merchants, taken by the enemy, for want of some to prevent connivance or negligence, and to proceed against offenders, you are to authorise Jas. Corbet for three months to seize all such ships, and proceed against them in the Admiralty Court. [I. 63, p. 353.]

ADMIRALTY COMMITTEE. Day's Proceedings.

Order upon consideration of the charge made against Capt. Hughes, of receiving pay from the Turks to go with his English ships to Canea in Candia, that,—inasmuch as the committee are informed that Messrs. Read, Ell, Guarland, Hockson, Hurlstone, Mabson, Balligher, Nox, Sandford, Thorowgood, and others, have accepted the like pay, and carried Turkish soldiers in English ships as aforesaid,—the Council of State be informed that this committee think Dr. Walker, advocate for the Admiralty, should put in a charge against them in the Admiralty Court.

Tiddiman, as serjeants of the Admiralty and Cinque Ports of Dover, upon oath, as well for pay as fees for wrecks, droits, &c., that have come to their hands during their service, and return such accounts to this committee. Admiralty Committee to the Generals at Sea. We communicated your letter of the 3rd inst. to the Council of State, but they have since received more certain intelligence, by a Straits' ship of great value, that Rupert's fleet is at Cadiz, and that he is endeavouring to get that and other harbours of the King of Spain to connive at his designs, in making prize of our merchant ships, and selling them. The Council know what prejudice will arise to trade by these means, and what opportunity he will have to strengthen the revolted fleet and increase piracy, and therefore wish all possible expedition to be used to set forth a squadron to pursue him. That no time may be lost by consultation about the commander, Col. Deane being sick, they have chosen Col. Blake, who will repair to Portsmouth, where you can confer with him. The Council leave it to you and your fellow commanders to appoint what ships of force you please of this squadron, and approve of the alteration of those mentioned in your letter; they have directed us to consult such masters of the Trinity House as have used the Straits, and thereupon to correspond with you and Col. Blake, for fitting and furnishing all things requisite for this service. [I. 123, p. 165.] to proceed to Aleppo, until her complaint against him in Parliament has been heard. The late Wm. Hopkins being at Smyrna in Asia, in Jan. 1643-4, in open court accused Theophilus May, who keeps out of England, for calling the members of this Parliament rogues, rascals, traitors, and robbers, and no Parliament. Thereupon Ryley, with his accomplices, sent a malignant certificate against Hopkins to Sir Sackville Crowe, then ambassador at Constantinople, who, without further proof, issued a warrant for his close imprisonment, and then stopped his ears to his complaint, insomuch that he (being in perfect health when he was attached) died within six months under restraint, and not without suspicion of poison, and petitioner thus not only lost her husband, but also his estate there, valued at 2,000*l*. Ryley was a clerk of the Star Chamber, a ringleader and guide of the malignant party at Smyrna, and a capital opposer of the well-affected party ; yet has been so powerful here that the Levant Company have lately chosen him for their consul at Aleppo. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.] Annexing, 93. I. Certificate by John Bouchier, Robt. Petchet, Nathaniel and Samuel Barnardiston, John Hassall, Hen. Davy, and Thos. Porter. At a court held at Smyrna on 8 Jan. last, Theophilus May confirmed his testimony against John Bond, surgeon, for treasonable words uttered by him against His Majesty on 1 Dec. last, and when the Court was ready to rise, Wm. Hopkins said, "Mr. May, in this business of Bond's, and in your accusing of him for his treasonable words spoken against His Majesty, you have performed the part of a loyal subject and an honest man, worthy of commendations ; and I assure you that if I had heard him speak those words, I should have been the first man that would have accused him, and brought him to justice. But, Mr. May, I have something to say against you ; that you, being a man living here by alms, should speak against the State. For my part, I do not know that it is treason against the State or not, but sure I am it is scandalum magnatum, and the words spoken by you on board the William and Thomas were that the Parliament were a company of rogues and rascals, traitors and rebels, and no Parliament."—Smyrna, 20 March 1643-4.

93. II. Hen. Ryley and six others to Sir Sackville Crowe. At the request of Theo. May, we certify that at a Court held here on 8 Jan. last, Wm. Hopkins, merchant, now resident at Smyrna, (after the examination of May on His Majesty's behalf, against John Bond, surgeon, for the horrid treason uttered by him, was read to those assembled) in the presence of the whole nation, reviled May, saying that he was a needy fellow, &c., to the end, as we conceived, to undervalue his testimony, and accused him of having spoken words against the State, affirming that May had said that the now remaining part of the House of Commons were rebels and traitors ; upon which accusation he drew up a certificate against May, and went from house to house to procure hands to it, and some that would not conform thereto he threatened, and told the bystanders to take notice of them as men ill affected; which threatening was proved against him on 14 Jan. last, in the presence of the consul, and all the nation, by Messrs. Pixley and Robinson; they voluntarily affirmed it to be true before Hopkins, who had but a little before shamefully denied it. With the testimony of Jno. Pixley, that Mr. Robinson refused to subscribe May's certificate. — Smyrna, 13 April 1644. [Copy, 1 page.]

31. To signify to the mayor and jurats of Dover that the Council approve their election of another foot post, in the room of Ranger, as it would not have been safe for the State to suffer him to continue in that employment.

32. The same thing to be signified to Col. Sidney and Mr. Scott, who are to take care that no prejudice accrues to the State by Ranger carrying letters between Dover and London.

33. The petition presented on behalf of Charles, son of Sir Chas. Coote, referred to the Irish Committee.

Reports of the Irish Committee approved; viz.:

34. Having considered the petition of Sir Wm. Cole, according to an order of Council of 11 Oct. 1649, they think,—

(1.) That the Lord Lieutenant ought to furnish him with 750 foot and 40 horse for recruiting his regiment, out of the 5,000 recruits sent to Ireland.

(2.) That as to the paying and stating of his arrears, and satisfying the money disbursed by him towards the maintenance of his own regiment, he should be left to make his application to the House.

(3, 4.) That in regard of his great sufferings, faithful services, and maintained fidelity, Alderman Andrewes and Maurice Thomson should be ordered to pay him 300*l.* on account, out of the ordinance of 20,000*l.* a month for the Irish service, to supply his present necessities, and to enable him to return to his charge in Ireland.

35. Having considered the petition of Jno. Davies, for that part which concerns the provisions received by Sir Chas. Coote, according to an order of the committee of 13 Sept. last, they think that he ought to be paid, for the 50 tons and seven barrels of salmon which Sir Chas. Coote received for the use of Derry, the same price that Lord Folliot had for his salmon, and 20*s.* per ton more, for the freight from Ballishannon to Derry, which being 16*l.* per ton, amounts to 878*l.*

That he should be paid for the 8,825 codfish, accounting six score fish to each 100, 36*l.* per thousand, and for the 11 tons of herrings, 24*s.* per barrel; total, 421*l.* 2*s.* 7*d.*

That for the damage received by Davies in the freight of his two ships, laden and bound for Spain and France with such fish, the forbearance of his money since the goods were taken by Sir Chas. Coote, and the hire of one of his ships detained for seven months in the State's service by Sir Chas. Coote, he should be paid 300*l.* 17*s.* 5*d.*; all the said several sums, in total, 1,600*l.*, out of the 150,000*l.* charged upon the Excise. [I. 63, pp. 400–404.]

Dec. 17. Council of State to the serjeant of the Admiralty at Dover. Petitions have been presented to us by Gabriel Tyson, of Nieuport, captain of the St. Ilster man-of-war, who took at Hamburg a ship laden with corn for France, and by David Nephew for the proprietors of the ship; but as the Admiralty judges and advocate report the case not cognizable in their court, you are to dismiss the ship, to be judged before the proper judicatory. - Dec. 17. Admiralty Committee to the Committee of the Trinity House. Several petitions for relief have been presented to the Council of State, by persons pretending to be widows of seamen who lost their lives in the service; and as, by Act of Parliament, provision is made for the relief of the widows and impotent parents of such as shall be so slain, the Council, desiring that such relief may run in the right channel, have desired us to recommend the enclosed petitions to you, and to desire you to examine whether the parties are the widows of the persons mentioned, and if so, to give them certificates, whereby the Council may proceed. You are also to examine all persons coming to you for certificates of this nature, that there may be no fraud done to the State by persons claiming the benefit of the said Act, and then certify their condition to us. Whitehall. 101. Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. We lately sent you an order for the speedy supply of the ships for the summer's guard, so as to have them ready to sail by the 1st of March; we remind you of it as of high concern, and in particular that the Swiftsure and the four new frigates be launched and fitted by the time limited. You must send to the master builders to launch in February, and enter as many men upon the works as shall finish them by then.  3. The auditors of the prests to certify what has been heretofore paid as yearly salary to the master of the barge and his deputy.
 5. To write the committee at Goldsmiths' Hall that it was not the intention of the House, by any of their late orders concerning sequestrations of the counties to be paid into Goldsmiths' Hall, to make void the payment of the county troop serving in county Oxford, they being of so much use to the commonwealth.

13. To write Mr. Anderson, sheriff of Lincoln, to repair into the country to discharge his duty.

Dec. 18. Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. We send you the enclosed list, which we agreed upon yesterday, of a fleet of ships to be set forth for the summer guard, that you may consider of the necessaries to be prepared for fitting it forth to sea. You are to return an estimate of the charge, that we may give an account thereof to Parliament and the Council of State. [I. 123, p. 179.]

Dec. 18. Admiralty Committee to Col. Willoughby. We have seen your and Capt. Dennis's letters, concerning the late sad accident to the George, and approve of the course you intend pursuing, for bringing her into harbour, caulking, victualling, and repairing her, so as not to retard the voyage intended. We want particulars, and doubt not you will take care that the injured men are well looked after, for which purpose Col. Popham has written to the collectors of prize goods. We wish there had been more vigilance used than to suffer a lighted match in the gun-room to be the occasion of so much mischief as might have happened, if God, in his great mercy, had not prevented it. Dec. 19. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

5. 10s. a week to be allowed to Col. Eyre, prisoner in Warwick Castle, for subsistence.

6. The petition of Wm. Sandford & company to be again sent to the Admiralty judges, to consider whether it is cognizable before them, and if so, to proceed and report.

7. The petition of Robert Thurlock & company referred to the Admiralty judges.

8. Col. Purefoy, Col. Jones, and Sir Jas. Harrington to be a committee to examine the petition of Mr. Westcott, and release him upon bail or otherwise.

9. Order that,—as by warrant of 3rd November last of the Council, in whom the power of Lord High Admiral of England is vested by Act of Parliament, an inhibition was laid upon all fishermen inhabiting within the Vice-Admiralty of Kent, not to take any oysters in any other hundred than that wherein every of them dwell, nor in any particular ground belonging to any town corporate, joint or particular ground owners, until Council had taken further order;—having considered the case, they think fit to take off the said inhibition, after Monday next the 24th inst., and leave the business of the fishing for oysters in the same state as before. [I. 63, pp. 411, 412.]

Dec. 19. Council of State to the Admiralty Judges. We refer to your arbitration the case concerning the oyster grounds in question between the Stroud, Milton, and other fishermen. You are to summon the parties interested and all others needful, examine witnesses viva voce, and consider and report what is fit to be done for the final settlement of the business. [I. 123, p. 181; see Dec. 14, supra.]

Dec. 19. Admiralty Committee to Col. Deane. Fearing miscarriage, we send you another copy of the results of the Council of State, concerning a squadron appointed to attend the motion of Prince Rupert; also the commands of the House, recommending the present winter and the succeeding summer's guard to the special care of the Council of State; which being referred by them to us, we desire you to send the Nonsuch, Phoenix, Guinea frigate, and Garland to Plymouth, out of your present guard. We were loth to draw any more from you by positive order, but if you may spare more, send them, the rather as most of them are appointed for the next summer's guard, and if they are not sent in seasonably, it is not possible to set them forth so as to answer the expectation of the State.

We also hope that the frigates and ships lately surprised at Wexford, and surrendered at Kinsale, may be accommodated for service on the coast of Ireland; say how many would be useful for that service, and when you would have them ready. Meantime we desire of the Lord Lieutenant that none of those ships may be sold or disposed of by his officers, that have or may presume an interest in them, not doubting, if the State takes them, but to give the officers satisfaction equal to what they may expect from private men. We have agreed with the owners of the Guinea frigate for their property in her, and desire a survey of her rigging and stores. [I. 123, p. 182.]

Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. Having given you general directions concerning Capt. Limbery's proposition about furnishing Spanish money, we respite further answer to him, until we hear from you what proceedings you have made with others therein. The exception we have to Capt. Limbery's proposition is that we do not think fit to lay down more than the 4,000*l.* mentioned by you and the masters of the Trinity House, being unwilling to take it for granted that we shall be put to greater expense, although we give bills of credit, in case there be extraordinary cause. We therefore again refer the whole business to you. [I. 123, p. 183.]

102. Report, by [Col.] J. Brownwick and [Capt.] Geo. Bishop, of the spoils committed in Dean Forest, being abstracts of certain depositions taken in that behalf, viz : Upwards of 50,000 trees have been destroyed there since 1641, some of which were of the best of an ell and a half square. The chief destroyers are Col. Kerle and Captains Thos. Pury, Gifford, Brame, Phillips, and the preservators of the forest, who are proved to have destroyed near 16,000 timber trees and 237 tons, besides other trees, much of which was contrary to the orders of Parliament, the Council of State, the Lord General, and of Commissioners authorised thereto, such orders having been scorned and disobeyed, and the cutters encouraged to break them, though it cost 1,000*l.*

To effect this, the honest officers are put out, and knaves put in ; trees are cropped that they may rot, valuable timber put amongst stub-wood and roots, and sold at from 1*s.* 8*d.* to 3*s.* 8*d.* the long cord, for which 30*s.* the cord had been offered, and some sold to the country for 25*s.* The cords were commanded to be made six, eight, nine, and 18 inches too high, and eight inches too long, and taken at this excess per force, if officers refused to deliver them, which is near 4,000*l.* loss in 10,000*l.* Holes were made in trees, and fire put in to kill them. Persons were employed to false mark the cords, which very much deceived the tale of them, and the officers mark the best trees to be cut down and the worst to stand ; 5,000 cords of wood have been taken, contrary to order, and without delivery. Honest officers are threatened and forbidden to view the forest.

Sir Jno. Winter was to pay the King 16,000*l.* per annum, but we cannot find that even 2,000*l.* has been given for the last five years, though there are now as many furnaces and forges as there were then. The orders of Parliament called hedge orders, the last commission so termed, and the Great Seal, were contemned by Thos. Pury the younger, M.P., before the jury and commissioners, when they were sitting, and terrifying threats were made to the country, so that they dare not discover the spoils ; for what they have discovered, they fear to be ruined, and some of them have since been prosecuted as delinquents, although friends to the Parliament.

When we made the last general survey, and gave prohibition, which is not yet taken off, there were 3,608 cords, 19 tons, and 57 logs on the ground, which have since been carried away. They send about to Hereford, Worcester, Salop, &c., to buy wood, and make men delinquents to have their wood. The preservators have been proved to be 3,000*l.* a year detrimental to the State, since they came into office. Great quantities of iron, furnaces, woods, and watercourses of other men have also been forcibly taken, kept, or destroyed, and no satisfaction given, nor dare the poor men ask for it.

There are 12 furnaces and forges in the forest, kept on foot by forest wood, besides others in places adjacent. It is conceived, by those who have seriously considered of these wastes, that the State has been defrauded of at least 20,000*l.*, besides the destruction of so much timber, and the goodliest forest in England; and this by pretended Parliament servants, and former commissioners intrusted to prevent such destruction; and that, if the iron works are not immediately stopped, until the business has been judicially determined, the whole forest will be suddenly destroyed. Dec. 19.

103. Abstract of the evidence of Col. Purefoy, and several others, on a petition presented against the Earl of Denbigh and his officers, for mal-practices in Shropshire, viz. : Upon a letter being written by the committee of Coventry to the House of Commons, touching some miscarriage in his Lordship and his officers, he came to the committee, and said they were neither gentlemen nor honest men that had subscribed it; he told Mr. Mackworth, one of the committee, that he was a liar and a rascal, and that he would cudgel him, simply because Mackworth said he had heard that 200 of his horse faced about, when charged by only 30 of the enemy's. He said all of the committee were knaves, and had cheated the country, and that he would cudgel them also, if he met them out of their command, and this he threatened with many oaths. He also threatened to run Mackworth through with his sword, and said if he could not have justice from the Parliament according to his mind, he would have him cudgelled to death by others, as it was below him to do it himself. He also told Wm. Crowne, his secretary, upon hearing that Mackworth had come up, that he hoped he would keep out of his sight; and upon Crowne replying he surely would not right himself in such a way upon him, he answered he scorned to do it himself, but others should, as he was not a fit man to stand in competition with.

As to his officers at Oswestry, Col. Stepkin, an officer of Staffordshire, called Mr. Olive, a member of the Shropshire Committee, a jack-an-apes, and kicked him, in the presence of his Lordship; and at Dudley, the commanders and soldiers, with his permission, mutinied against the committee, and prevented them putting the ordinance of sequestration for the 5th and 20th part in execution. Capt. Kenn, with his soldiers, would have taken away one of the sequestrators with violence, threatened to fight him, and forced him to give him 10*l.*, and divers of his Lordship's officers and troops imprisoned the committee in the room where they sat. Major Freysor said his lordship should pluck the committee at Wem out by the ears. Col. Roper said that when the wars were ended with the enemy, there must be another between the commanders and committees, and Capt. Tovey that the committee had nothing to do but to provide money and carriages. His lordship also said he would not be satisfied to go on with the service, until Col. Purefoy and Mr. Abbots were removed from the committee of Coventry, and this he now justifies by his counsel before the committee, and that he would never come to Shropshire until some of that committee were removed, particularly Mr. Mackworth. Divers other reproachful words were proved to have been spoken by his officers against such committee; that they called them Brownists and Anabaptists, and said they would rather fight for the Papists than the committees, and Major Freysor threatened that if Major Bridges, the Governor of Warwick Castle, came out, he would have him by the head.

As to his lordship favouring delinquents, it is proved by Col. Purefoy and several others named, that upon Sir Rich. Shuckborough being expelled from the House of Commons, for adhering to the King's party, his lordship came with him to the committee at Coventry, and pleaded against the sequestration of his estate; excused his going to the King, and said it might have been to do good offices. He threatened Col. Bosville for saying Sir Rich. Shuckborough did not deal civilly with the committee, and reminded the committee that he was commander-in-chief. In Staffordshire his lordship protected Tyrer, a great malignant, opposed the sequestration of Mr. Lane and Lord Ward's goods, and sent warrants to interrupt the committee's proceedings against them; and he and his officers raised money and gave the public faith, without the committee's aid. He also, by his own warrant, and without the privity of the committee at Wem, released five townsmen of Wem that were imprisoned at Nantwich, for conspiring to betray the town of Wem, sent them home, and left them there at liberty to affront the committee. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

[Dec. 19.] 104. Particulars of the grounds of jealousy touching the Earl of Denbigh's intentions. After he was cleared upon his first stay, for the intercepted letter from his mother to him in Aug. 1643, an agent was employed by him to the committees of counties Warwick, Stafford, and Salop, to procure letters to him to come down, and at Stafford he urged a petition to the Houses for his coming. Major Medop, then present, wished Mr. Swinfen to take heed what they did, for Capt. Gower, an agent for the King, being with his lordship at his coming down in August, importuned the Major to go to the King, and told him that the Earl of Denbigh would go if he would, but could not then go without his consent, as he had as strong a party of horse as his lordship; and this being known, the petition was stayed. In Dec. 1643, upon his lordship's being again sent for by the Houses, Mackworth was persuaded by him to go with him, so as to get him hastened down, and then Swinfen privately told Mackworth of this business.

After the difference between the Earl of Denbigh and the committee of Warwick had been agreed at London, Mackworth being alone with him, and desirous to be satisfied, asked him of Gower's business, when he confessed that Gower had solicited him to go to the King, and told him that 1,000 of the King's horse should assist him; that a party in Huntingdonshire would join him, and that Medop had consented to go if he would ; but considering how he should answer for not apprehending Medop, he said his lady knew he would have questioned Medop about it, but she dissuaded him. Afterwards at Coventry, his lady said to Mackworth that Medop was a great Roundhead, and denied that she knew or heard that he would ever have gone to the King, and thereupon Mackworth began to suspect my lady about it. His lordship acknowledges this, but says he dared not apprehend Gower, lest Huntingdonshire should rise, and that for fear of that, he marched away early in the morning. Yet he dared to have fought with 900 of Cromwell's horse that came to apprehend him at Wellingborow, and took Gower along with him, as one of his officers, who was taken there in that capacity ; yet he never gave any notice of him to the State in Huntingdonshire, but, in his own defence, said he was loth to detect so many gentlemen of quality in Huntingdonshire as were nominated to join with him ; the true cause of his hasty departure from St. Neot's was on account of the notice given by the committee of safety of their purpose to stay him.

With regard to the suspicion of his design to raise a third party, Mr. Boughton, one of his chief friends, told Mackworth that he had good parties, yet talked much of raising a third, but in such a subtle manner that he knew not what to make of it. After his last going down, in Feb. 1643-4, he set on foot a discourse, in Mackworth's hearing, about the raising of this third party ; Mackworth apprehended by his expressions that he knew of such a design, and approved it, but when he saw Mackworth was of another mind, he changed his discourse, and said he would make good use of the opinion of those that were of that party, and of him, as by that means he would raise the greater force, and might have the garrisons of Dudley and Lichfield more easily surrendered to him, for they would trust him to put governors into those places.

The best construction that can be made of his purposes and proceedings is that he intended to raise such third party ; for when he came down, and was stayed at Wellingborough, Sir Edw. Littleton went down to Staffordshire, and there declared that he had come to raise forces for the Earl of Denbigh, and that Sir W. Wriothsley himself, and Mr. Skrimshaw would join in that service. Mr. Swinfen and others of the committee, having notice that Sir Edward Littleton had made his peace with the King, and that these gentlemen intended to settle that county for the King, gave intelligence to the committee of safety, and Sir Edward, finding his design was known, fled to Oxford ; the Earl of Denbigh hearing thereof, feared he might be suspected, as he got him to go down to raise forces.

The defence the Earl makes increases suspicion. He shows a letter from Sir Edw. Littleton, written darkly, but by comparing things together, it appears he held correspondence with the Earl of Denbigh, sided with some of the committee that complied with him, and counted them the most honest part, and named them as such to Mr. Swinfen, Capt. Stone, and others that had discovered him, and desired his lordship to get him leave to do him service. The letters from Lord Wharton and other evidences clearly prove a correspondence between the Earl of Denbigh and the enemy, or this third party; that he knew of Waller's business before it was discovered, and was wished to be out of London at the execution of the plot. All his proceedings are in pursuance of this design; he sides in every committee with those he finds opposite to the Parliament's best friends, and averred he would not be satisfied to go on in the service, until he had got Col. Purefoy and Mr. Abbots out of the committee. [1½ pages.]

106. Council of State to the Navy Commissioners. The State is likely to be much injured by the refusal of the owners of the Merchant frigate to keep to their contract. Since the above resolution, we hear that the owners will comply with their contract, if their master may command as captain, but as we have already approved Capt. John Coppin, he is to be employed. 114. Order of the Committee of the Council of State about obstructions of the Mint.

1. The officers of the Mint to prepare tables of the value of the gold and silver coin, current in merchant payments of Antwerp, Amsterdam, Hamburg, Spain, France, and Italy, in relation to that of England.

2. The commissioners and officers of the Custom House to send in an account of all goods exported and imported, from 1 January 1648–9 to 1 January 1649–50, and their value.

3. That this account may be given more easily in future, they are so to keep their books for the next year, as to give accounts of the quantity and value of all imports and exports, into the port of London, and other outports. Mr. Johnston to attend the committee on Wednesday, January 9, to report on obstructions to bullion coming into the Mint, and on the remedies; the Master of the Mint to bring the records from the auditor of the Exchequer, and extracts of the statutes concerning the business of the Mint and exchange. Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. The bailiffs of Yarmouth remind us of the taking up of four merchant ships to attend the Iceland fishing, which they desire may be ready by March. The Council of State having approved of the list of the summer guard sent them by you, you are to contract for four merchant ships for that service, to be ready to sail at the time required, and take care that two of them are of force, containing 22 guns a-piece. 116. Petition of John Greene, Commander of the Welcome pink to the Admiralty Committee. Being in Parliament service in 1646, by the wicked working of the inhabitants of Jersey, was betrayed and surprised at St. Malo, and made prisoner, where he with all his company suffered much misery for two years, until petitioner and Walter Shadwell escaped at great hazard; had to borrow money for himself and company, for which he is much pressed. Begs six months' pay for himself, and the wives of such of his crew as are now prisoners at Rheims, in France, they being all in a starving condition, and that amount of pay being the same as was received by others. With reference to the Navy Commissioners, to certify what has been paid to any of the company, and why petitioner has not been paid equal to them. [1 page.]

Dec. 29. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. To write the commander in Ulster to apply to the Lord Lieutenant for supplies there, so that they charge no debt thither.

3. The Irish Committee to consider the letters of Sir Chas. Coote, concerning money, provision, and recruits, and also as to planting parts of Ulster, and disposing of the Scots; and as it is of great consequence to have the victories in that province improved, they are to give their opinion to Council with expedition.

4. The Irish Committee to give such orders, and write such letters as they conceive best, for the speedy, safe, and orderly dispatch of the horse who are to go over to Ireland as recruits.

5. Approval of the appointment of a physician for the soldiers of the northern garrison.

Reports of the Irish Committee.

7. On the petition of Sir Robert Hanna, Bart., on behalf of Sir Chas. Coote, Lord President of Connaught, and of his son, Chas. Coote,—it appearing that Chas. Coote, the eldest son, contracted many debts for his maintenance in his 3 years' residence in England, and has been and still is so visited with sickness that his recovery is very doubtful, which illness has also much increased his debts,—they propose that Sir Adam Loftus be ordered to pay to Col. Arthur Hill in order to the discharge of Chas. Coote's debts, and his future maintenance, 197*l.* 2*s.*, being the remains of 597*l.* 2*s.* formerly ordered by the Irish Committee sitting at the Star Chamber to be paid to Capt. Nich. Lisle, out of the 5,000*l.* for Ireland due upon Haberdashers' Hall, in satisfaction for raising a troop of horse for Ireland, which was never performed; and also 100*l.* more, formerly ordered by the said committee to Viscount Claveboy, now in arms against Parliament, out of the 5,000*l.* aforesaid,—which sums are yet unsatisfied, making in the whole 297*l.* 2*s.*—in part of the arrears due to the said Sir Charles Coote for service in Ireland. As to the protection desired by Sir Robert Hanna, to free him from arrest during his attendance here, in discharge of important business entrusted to his management by Sir Charles, and which may receive damage by his restraint, the committee think that Col. Jones should move the Speaker for his accustomed favour to Sir Robert, for two months longer, by which time those occasions may be dispatched.

8. On the petition of Capt. Geo. Bishop, they find that he and Capt. Thos. Norris have, in pursuance of their contracts dated 30 July last, delivered 404 tuns of beer at Bristol for the Irish service, which, at 41s. 6d. per tun, amounts to 838l. 6s., $\frac{1}{3}$ whereof, 279l. 8s. 8d., they received upon delivery, and the other $\frac{2}{3}$ they were to receive at three and three months after delivery. The first three months having now elapsed, order should be given to pay the 279l. 8s. 8d. second payment; and as they received 400l. to buy casks, for which they have returned no account, nor any certificate of the goodness of the beer, the last payment should be respited, until both the account and the certificate have been returned.

9. On the petition of Mrs. Huncks, wife of Col. Hercules Huncks, now in Ireland, for arrears due to her husband, the committee, not knowing of any orders for payment of arrears, think she should make her application to Parliament.

11. The Committee—having met the Army Committee, and considered the Lord Lieutenant's letter concerning the establishment for Ireland, and future provision of money to carry on the wars there, and finding it will take up some time before an answer can be ascertained,—think letters should be sent by Council to the Army Committee, for issuing warrants to enable the treasurers-at-war to receive, out of the assignations of the 90,000l. a month, the pay of the army, general officers, train of artillery and life guard, in Ireland, according to the establishment, as it shall be proportionably levied with relation to the assignation ordered to the army in England; and that the Army Committee call to account the several regiments of the army, train, and life guard, to whom they formerly issued warrants to receive the said assignations, and see how the same have been received and sent to Ireland; if any money remains in their hands, or has not yet been received or sent by them to Ireland, the committee should order them to pay it to the treasurers, in places most convenient for transport, and the said treasurers should be ordered to have the same received and sent to Ireland monthly, for supply of the forces there, until the business can be fitted and prepared for a report.

12. On a letter from Sir Chas. Coote, of 18 Sept. last, recommending payment to Thomas Baxter, for provisions delivered at Derry, by direction of Sir Charles, at the time of the late siege, viz., salt, beef, broad cloth, kersies, &c., value 1,015l. 1s. 9d., there being no mention of the quantity or price of each commodity, the Committee examined Ralph King, agent to Sir Charles, who stated that the goods delivered were valued by two merchants, chosen by Sir Charles, and amounted to this sum; the Committee therefore think fit that order be given for payment of the said 1,015l. out of the last 50,000l. of the 150,000l. charged upon the Excise, the contracts formerly made with Rich. Downes, and others, for provisions for the army in

1. Dr. Paget recommended as physician to the Tower.
2. The Earl of Pembroke, Lord Commissioner Lisle, and Sir Hen. Mildmay to be a committee to consider how the venison in the New Forest may be preserved.
3. Upon considering all that has been before the Council concerning Mr. Ryley, they do not think fit, as formerly declared, either to approve the former election, or restrain the prosecution thereof; but leave it to the Turkey Company's discretion to choose a person as consul to Aleppo, for whose fidelity they will be answerable.
4. When the Levant Company have made their case concerning losses sustained by the French fit for letters of marque, they shall be granted.¹
5. For the importation of goods of the Levant in English bottoms, and order to be given to the Custom House thereupon, they must make their address to the House.
6. The committee for private examination to examine the printers who are printing the history of the Independency, and commit them if they see cause.
7. Alderman Pennington and Sheriff Wilson to acquaint the merchants what is done in their business.
8. Mr. Frost to draw up a report for the House, upon the debate concerning the application of the several merchants for encouragement in trade.
9. The Navy Commissioners to cause five or six months' pay to be sent to Plymouth, for the 32 men taken out of the Maria shallop, and put into a ship taken at Wexford, and they are to be added to the winter guard.
10. The Admiralty Committee to receive the petition of such widows as have lost their husbands at sea in the service, and give them rewards not exceeding 10*l.* each.
11. Also to prepare instructions necessary for the fleet that is to go southward.

16. Mr. Frost to write Mons. Augier, as to whether Sir Christopher Hatton intermeddles with the affairs of Charles Stuart, and to certify what he can learn therein.

17. To report to the House that several persons of quality of England, who have been in arms against Parliament, and compounded for their delinquency, are now abroad and very active, to the prejudice of this commonwealth.

18. The committee at Whitehall to consider where accommodation may be found there for depositing the State's papers.

20. Capt. Mildmay to deliver to Mr. Scott the letters and papers in his possession.

22. To write the Navy Committee as to the vote whereby Capt. Moulton is made Vice-Admiral of the fleet now going to the south, and enclose the opinion of the Masters of the Trinity House, as to sending the fleet to the south.

23. To return answer to the men of Colchester, by Sir Wm. Masham, that the business presented by them is not proper for the consideration of the Council, but for the House, where, if it be moved, the members of Council will give their assistance.

24. Mr. Musgrave to put in a charge, under his own hand, against the parties complained of, and the exceptions against the gentlemen in the commission of the peace, and the committee men in the country, showing cause why they should not be trusted with the examination of this business, in giving ground of proceeding against them as delinquents, whereupon the Council will give further direction.

25. Mr. Frost to pay Mr. Maundy his bill for the watermen's badges, that the Council may not be further troubled.

26. Mr. Husband to cause all the orders, ordinances, and declarations of Parliament, passed since 17 Nov. 1646 until the Act for the trial of the late king, to be printed in one volume, and the last-mentioned Act, and all other subsequent printed Acts, orders, and declarations of Parliament, in another volume, comparing the copies with the originals, and no other person to presume to print the same.

at Goldsmiths' Hall conceive they cannot pay them out of those moneys, by the rules hitherto given by the House ; considering the eminent service done by that troop, and how necessary it is to have it kept on foot, the House is desired to declare their opinion therein.

31. To report to the House that several companies of merchants, and especially those of the East India, Levant, and Eastland trade, taking notice of a power given to Council for encouragement of trade, have addressed desires which carry some restraint to general liberty of trade, which, if judged necessary, are proper for Parliament, to whom therefore they refer the same, that speedy course may be taken, the business being of great weight, and the recovery and establishment of those trades, or the loss thereof depending upon expedition.

Report of the Mint Committee.

32. That the officers of the Mint should be ordered to present two tables to the Council of State, expressing the par and intrinsic value of the gold and silver coins current in merchants' payment of Antwerp, Amsterdam, Hamburg, Spain, France, and Italy, in relation to the gold and silver coin of England.

33. That the commissioners and officers of the Customs should furnish Council with an account of all goods exported and imported, from 1 Jan. 1648/9 to 1 Jan. 1649/50, and their true value.

35. That the masters of the Mint should have power to search and peruse all public records concerning bullion brought in to be minted in the Tower, and what else concerns that office, and certify what bullion was brought in, and what sums were minted, from 16 to 20 James, and annually for 10 years after ; such records to be delivered to the master of the Mint.

36. That the warden of the Mint should be ordered to pay to the master of the Mint so much upon account, out of the public money in his hands, as shall buy in such proportion of the several coins of gold and silver used in merchants' payment of Hamburg, Spain, France, Italy, Amsterdam, and Antwerp, &c. as shall be sufficient for discovery of the par between them and the gold and silver coin of England. Dec. 31. Admiralty Committee to Col. Blake. Presuming your arrival at Plymouth, in pursuance of letters from the Council of State concerning the squadron to go southward in relation to Prince Rupert's fleet, we let you know that all things are ready, and that Stokes Bay is the place of rendezvous, the latter end of this month. Your presence will be more requisite at Portsmouth, where Col. Popham will meet and consult with you. Our greatest obstruction is likely to be from the Merchant frigate, whose owners are unwilling she should serve unless her master may be captain, which we have no mind to; therefore if you come in the Elizabeth frigate to Portsmouth, you must consider whether she may not be fitted for that service. 120. Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. We approve your causing the Merchant frigate to be brought to Deptford, to be fitted for service. We wonder at the adverseness of her owners, considering the State sets her forth in defence of the merchants' trade, and we are well assured that her commander will do good service. We have ordered the Elizabeth, now at Plymouth, to Portsmouth, to receive her victuals, stores, &c., and you are to take care there be no want of stores at Portsmouth, so that in case any of the twelve ships should fail at the time intended, there may be some other speedily supplied. It may be of importance to the welfare of the squadron that the reserve be hastened, and therefore you are to omit no opportunity for hastening the 20 ships of the summer guard, according to the estimate you sent to the Council of State, which is approved, and you are to send us notice how many of the 20 ships may be ready within six weeks. - Jan. 17. Additional instructions for the Generals of the fleet, for this southern expedition.
- By your former instructions, it is set forth that—as several ships of the Navy have departed from their duty, and still persist in their revolt, being lately got to sea on a design to disturb trade and to prejudice peace, and as several other vessels adhere to them, and many more are frequently at sea, endeavouring, under pretence of commissions from the commander of the revolted fleet, or from the rebels of Ireland, to infest merchants and others, in their passing to and from the ports of this commonwealth,—you were to improve your best endeavours to scatter and destroy them. Now this present fleet is set forth for the intents following; viz.: the suppressing of pirates, advantage of trade, encouraging of merchants and securing their shipping at sea; and also to pursue, seize, scatter, fight with, or destroy, all the ships of the revolted fleet, and other vessels adhering to them, or taking commissions or authority from their commander-in-chief, or any pretending power under him, or from any of the rebels in Ireland, or from Charles Stuart, eldest son to the late King, or any other of the said King's issue, or from the late Queen, or Prince Rupert, or Prince Maurice, or from any other persons whatsoever, in enmity or opposition against the Parliament or Commonwealth of England.
- If any foreign commander, set forth by any foreign Prince or State, should, with any foreign State or Prince's ships, join in a body with the said revolted ships, which we hope they will not, if you find yourself with this fleet strong enough, you are not to spare

Jan. 17.

the revolvers, but fight with them, and prosecute their destruction. In case the foreign ships assist the revolvers, or fight against you, you shall fight against them, and destroy or surprise them, as God shall enable you ; but so that, after the fight ends, in case you happen upon any foreigners, there be not made any slaughter of them in cold blood, but they be kept and used civilly, as prisoners of war, and sent over to England, to remain in prison till they shall be otherwise disposed of.

In case you find occasion, by reason of any unexpected assistance given to the said revolvers, or of any power of ships set forth by any, for surprising of our merchant ships, or prejudicing of this commonwealth, you are hereby enabled, as the Lord Admirals of England in such cases formerly were, to call to your assistance, and embargo, arrest, and use any English merchant ships to join with you, to fight or make defence, for the safeguard and benefit of this commonwealth. And they are hereby enjoined to yield obedience, under pain of being severely punished.

Furthermore, if the said revolted fleet, or any of them should happen to be sold by their commander-in-chief, captains or others, to any foreign Prince or State, or any of their ministers, or subjects, or stayed there under any pretence, you are not to forbear to seize, burn, destroy, or surprise them, wheresoever you can do it, but to proceed effectually therein, and signify to them that those ships are part of the Navy of England, and the Parliament's own ships, treacherously carried away by perfidious revolvers, who have no property in them, nor power to sell them ; and that your commission from Parliament enjoins you to demand them, wherever they be, and to seize upon them, and send them home.

Whereas by Act of 17 August 1649, it is declared that Parliament intends to uphold and renew leagues and amities between this commonwealth and foreign nations, and yet there has not hitherto been published the like declaration, by such foreign kingdoms and states, you are so to govern yourself and this fleet towards foreign Princes and nations, in former league with England, as not to molest them, or their subjects by acts of hostility, unless in cases where the ships are, or where subjects of foreign Princes join with the revolvers, or first do acts of hostility against your fleet, or some other ships of this nation. In which case (it being permitted by the law of nature and nations to make defence, or to seize by the way of justice for reparation of acts of force without rupture of league) you are to rescue and defend English ships so assailed, seize the assailants, and other ships of that nation that first unduly makes such assaults, and send them into some safe port in England, to be detained and proceeded against, in reparation for damages sustained by the English through such.

And whereas the dominion of these seas has time out of mind undoubtedly belonged to this nation, and the ships of all other nations, in acknowledgement to that dominion, have used to take down their flags, upon sight of the Admiral of England, and not to bear it in his presence, you are, as much as in you lies, to endeavour

Jan. 17.

to preserve the dominion of the sea, and to cause the ships of all other nations to strike their flags, and not to bear them up in your presence, and to compel such as are refractory therein, by seizing their ships, and sending them in to be punished, according to the laws of the sea, unless they yield obedience, and make such repair as you approve. But notwithstanding the said dominion of the sea be so ancient and indubitable, we would not have you, in this expedition, engage the fleet in any peril or hazard for that particular; so that if you should be opposed therein by a considerable force, then forbear the pressing thereof, and take notice who they were that did it not, that at some better opportunity, they may be brought hereafter thereunto.

And whereas there is put on board the Constant Warwick 3,000*l.* in Spanish money, and 1,000*l.* in English money, to be employed for the fleet by your order, as also letters of credit given you for taking up 10,000*l.* in Italy, Spain, and other places, for victuals and incidents which cannot be foreseen;—

And whereas there is also put on board the several ships, viz., the Tiger, John, Constant Warwick, Tenth Whelp, and Cignet, petty provisions for boatswain and carpenters' stores, over and above the ordinary allowance, as a magazine in case of necessity;—you are to take special care that the same be not spent unnecessarily, but kept as a reserve for any exigent; yet so that when you find it requisite, you, by consent of a council of war, may expend the said treasure of stores for the use of the State; and your warrants shall be a sufficient discharge to the persons intrusted therewith.

Lastly, as all particulars cannot be foreseen, nor positive instructions for emergencies given beforehand, but many things must be left to your prudent management as occurrences arise, you are to use your best circumspection, and advising with your council of war, to dispose the fleet to the best advantage, making it your special care that the commonwealth receive no detriment.

That you may be enabled to apply yourself to any foreign Prince or State, or any of their ministers, for the use of their ports, or buying of provisions or supply, there are special letters of credit delivered you, to make use of as you may have occasion. 7. Committee for Sequestrations in London to the Committee for taking the accounts of the Commonwealth, Worcester House. Upon your order of 19 December, we think that the giving an account of all warrants issued to our collectors, with the names of the persons sequestered, and what was brought in thereupon, cannot be done without much trouble, and will not render that fruit expected.

We confess that, upon the decease of our under treasurer, in 1643, some distraction happening in our accounts, we were required by the late committee of the House to make up our accounts; and after much debate, knowing no other way to straighten the account, we called several officers before us to answer for warrants issued to them ; which accounts so made up, after some months' time and pains spent thereabouts, we presented to the said committee of the House, who commanded us to deliver it to the late committee for accounts ; and then the said committee of the House appointed Mr. Williamson and Mr. Fox (since dead) to be our treasurers, all which trouble of accounting in this kind, we hope, by the care of Mr. Williamson, our present treasurer, is prevented ; and we doubt not but he will bring in to you a satisfactory account.

As it may be supposed that there are many sums sequestered by us and not brought in, we state that in Jan. 1648-9, we received two warrants from the committee for raising money for payment of the army, enjoining us to bring in to them all informations of concealed estates, that they might draw in the arrears for payment of the debts of the commonwealth. We made search for all sums sequestered which could not be received by us, amounting to 25,000*l.*, and delivered them to the Army committee, most of which sums have since been in question before the committee for Advance of money.

The condition of our treasury is so bare that it will noways contribute to the payment of the public debts, or raising money for the urgent affairs of the State, there being no estates under sequestration by us, save some few rents of delinquents and papists unpounded for, out of which we are to pay the taxes and assessments to the army, quit rents to landlords, a 5th part to delinquents' wives and children, and the salaries of our officers, besides the rent for the house we sit in, and taxes, duties, and quit-rents incident thereto, which we are required to pay in to the treasury at Goldsmiths' Hall.

There are several orders of Parliament brought to us requiring restitution of great sums of money, although the same have long since been paid into the treasury at Guildhall, and there by us passed in account, the particulars whereof we are ready to produce if demanded. [1½ pages.]

Jan. 24. Admiralty Committee to the Navy Commissioners. The instructions, &c. from the Council, for dispatch of the fleet southward, having to be speedily sent away, they ask whether all things within your charge are expedited, and in what state the Merchant frigate now is, the officers for her being settled by the admirals. We hear from Dunkirk, &c., that six or seven Irish frigates are coming thence to infest those seas, in the absence of the southern fleet, and this cannot be better prevented than by hastening out the ships of the summer guard. As you say you have no hope of having merchant ships, unless the masters go as captains, and as the Council does not hold that fit, you are to consider of the most effectual means for fitting out merchant ships, notwithstanding this obstruction. [I. 123, p. 229.]

12. Mr. Milton to have the above letter translated.

13. The business of the agent for Portugal to be taken to-morrow.

14. To report to Parliament that, in pursuance of their order, Council has considered the business of the ship Sta. Clara, and find that a civil action was instituted in the Court of Admiralty against her goods, by Col. Randall Manwaring and partners, as belonging to certain Spaniards, by whom a ship and goods of theirs was depredated at sea, and sentence was given for the Spaniards, from which Col. Manwaring and his partners appealed to the judges delegate, where the appeal remains undetermined. Until it is determined, Council cannot give any opinion, and therefore the House is desired to order the judges delegate to proceed to its termination with all expedition. The Council however find that, whichever way the sentence upon the appeal shall pass, Parliament are obliged, by their own orders, to pay the money to whom it shall appear to be due, and therefore Parliament is to be moved to consider speedily how the money may be provided. [I. 63, pp. 561-563.]

Jan. 25. Admiralty Committee to the Generals of the Fleet. We hear that there are seven Irish frigates of war to come forth to infest those seas, intending to divide themselves northward and westward, which will be a very great annoyance to merchants, if speedy course is not taken to prevent them. By the enclosed from Yarmouth, you will understand the dangers they apprehend, now Capt. Peacock with the Tiger is removed thence, and designed for the southward, which is matter of rejoicing to the enemy. We desire that you take care for the well guarding of the north coast, and the prevention of future mischief by these pirates, and appoint some active man to be commander-in-chief of the north coast, who will be able to serve the necessities of those parts, complaints being made against the present commander. We send the desires of the Dover merchants for a convoy to Calais. [I. 123, p. 230.]

 2. The Admiralty Committee to write the general order that, if they draw bills upon the Council from Spain for 5,000*l.*, they shall be paid.
 3. Dr. Walker to reconsider the report about Capt. Isaac Phillipps' business.
 4. A messenger to be sent to Gravesend, to hasten away the ships that are to go southward, take notice what officers are absent, and give notice how they proceed.
 5. The desires of Col. Thom. Eyre, concerning the supply of necessaries for Hurst Castle, referred to the Ordnance Committee.
 7. To report to the House that Council have appointed agents for Spain and Portugal, for whom commissions are preparing; that former commissions passed under the Great Seal; that the style of all instruments passing that seal is to be, by Act of Parliament, "Custodes libertatis Anglicæ, auctoritate Parliamenti," but as no style is appointed for foreign states, Council has adopted that of "Reipublicæ Angliæ ordines," which they submit to Parliament, and if approved, request an order for affixing the Great Seal to commissions for ambassadors, residents, or agents. [I. 63, pp. 563-565.]
- Jan. 26. Admiralty Committee to the Generals of the Fleet. You will receive by this, from the Council of State, the instructions and commission to all three generals for the next year's service, bills of credit, copies of the treaty with Spain and Portugal, and letters from Parliament to the several Kings, Princes, and States that you may have occasion to correspond with. Mr. Ascham is appointed for Spain as agent, and is to go along with you; he carries with him an interpreter, who may perhaps serve for an envoy to the Court of Spain, to carry the Parliament's letters to be sent by Col. Blake, to advertise the King of Spain of the fleet coming upon that coast. There is an intention of sending an agent into Portugal, to be ready if possible to go along with the fleet. We purpose to have them at Portsmouth this day week; if you wish them sooner, advertise us.
- All the ships are at Gravesend, except the Merchant frigate, which will not be ready until next month; tell us how you would have her disposed of. The Council have sent to hasten away the ships at Gravesend to you, and you will receive 4,000*l.*, which you are to take with you. We hear of the resolution of the States General to have 20 great and small vessels off the coast of Portugal, to avenge themselves of that King concerning the Brazil business.

We cannot procure any bills of credit for Spain, and so all you will have at present will be 5,000*l.* for Lisbon; the Council have forborne for the present what we intended furnishing you with for Leghorn, conceiving it will be time enough with the reserve of ships in the spring, unless you consider differently, in which case they will give order for it, and send it after you. Wherever you shall need the 5,000*l.*, if you can take it up, the Council will cause punctual payment to be made of the bills of exchange; if there be anything wanting hence for the dispatch of the fleet, let us hear; we hope the first fair wind will loosen you from the rendezvous where you now are. 13. ——— to Wm. Lenthall, Speaker of the House of Commons. Six months since, I wrote the Council of State respecting some models for coin of a curious and new form, the invention of Peter Blondeau, a Frenchman, who presented himself to me, and offered his service to the commonwealth. I had formerly heard a fair report of his ability, but thought it proper to inform myself of it before I wrote, and was well assured, by several men well experienced in the Mint, that he is one of the ablest of his age in the art, and the only man that can do it, whereof he has made several proofs, both in gold, silver, and copper, with as much diligence and facility as is done by the ordinary mill; if Cardinal Richelieu and M. des Noyers, then Secretary of State, had lived,—who drew him from Italy, and gave him his dwelling here in the gallery of the Louvre, where his family yet remain, and where none but men of extraordinary art and skill are lodged,—he had certainly had the direction of all the coining of France. As for his life and carriage, he is a very honest and ingenious man, to whom all trust can be given in anything he undertakes. Since then he has gone to England, and made his proposition to the Parliament, a copy of which has been sent to me, and I am assured there is no doubt but he will perform the contents. His younger brother is here in Paris, and being of the same profession, and of good fame and reputation, he is resolved to go and join with him, if he can find employment. I see no cause why any difficulty should be made in using him, according to his offers, nor can there happen to the State but a great and glorious advantage by his propositions and petition, which I understand he is resolved to present to the Parliament, but which I have advised him to deliver to you, to be reported as your prudence shall judge convenient. The same to President Bradshaw. I formerly wrote the Council of State concerning Mr. Blondeau, a Frenchman, lately arrived in England, where he has made a proposition to Parliament about coining of money after a new invention of his own, and I have no doubt he will be of great use to the State, and will deserve your patronage, and that of the rest of the Council. 14. Capt. R. Meade to Secretary Nicholas. Since my departure from Jersey, I have met with little worthy notice, and have stayed little in any one place. I have here had the happiness of overtaking the Marquis of Montrose, and have been twice with him in his ship. He would be much satisfied if the King of England would openly disavow such officers about him as he knows Presbyterian. He has great assurance of a strong party in Scotland, and only wants a good wind to carry him thither. His part of arms is already dispatched to Scotland. Lord Culpeper came to Hamburg three days after me, and went forward on his voyage next morning. I meet everywhere many good men for the King, but all very poor, and the truth is Montrose is not able to entertain soldiers on this side the sea.

It is generally complained of that the King does not write oftener to his friends abroad; the Queen of Sweden long expected to hear from him. I brought nothing from him to Montrose nor to Earl Brainsford, which was not kindly taken. I shall give you a full account of affairs from the Queen of Swede's court; concerning the arms here, Secretary Long will inform the Council. [The words printed in Italics are in cipher, deciphered. 1 page.]

Feb. 4. Order in Parliament that the Act appointing a day of solemn humiliation, fasting, and prayer, and declaring the grounds and reasons thereof,—having been read a third time and passed—be forthwith printed and published, and brought in to-morrow morning, and that the Council of State see the said Act sent down and dispersed in the several counties. Admiralty Committee to the Attorney-General and Serjeant Coniers. There is a cause depending, referred to us by order of the Council of State of 10 December last, upon the petition of Thos. Anderson and Nicholas Gatonbe, against the company of Muscovy merchants. We summoned the company to put in their answer to the petition, and they alleged that the matter of fact alleged was in the time of their predecessors, and there being matter of law in the business, they desired the privilege of retaining counsel, which being granted, they brought Mr. Recorder Steel and Mr. Newdigate. As the petitioners are very poor men, and not able to retain counsel, we put it to the company to consent to a reference to some able merchants. They have replied that, as their cause will rest much upon the construction of charters and Acts of Parliament, they must desire to be heard by counsel; therefore that the petitioners' cause may not suffer for want of counsel also, we nominate you on their behalf, and desire you to meet us next Friday at Whitehall, when the business will be heard; meantime you will inform yourselves of their cause, by the papers enclosed. Chester.

16. Rich. Bradshaw to "the Right Honourable John Bradshaw, Esq., Lord President of the most honourable Council of State." Your message to the old gentleman at Dunham was received with much affection, and drew from him very tender expressions of his sense of your respect for him and his. To acknowledge your many favours to me, I shall hasten the settling of my private affairs, that I may attend your commands. Since my return from Dunham, where I had in charge to present you and my lady with the service of Sir George and the gentlewomen, I have not had time to confer with the governor and the well affected, for settling the militia in the city, but hope to give you a speedy account. If Mr. Cann's son be a scholar, so as to be both chaplain and secretary, I beg your direction by Mr. Roe, upon what conditions I may have him with me in that double capacity. I could fit myself here with the ablest scholar in all these parts, who would undertake both offices, but he has served the Earl of Derby, as tutor to Lord Strange, yet was always moderate, and will take the engagement. He has a gallant pen, and able parts, if he may be trusted. [1 page.]

ADDENDUM TO VOL. I.

April?

74a. Notes of an informer in France. The L[ord] K[eeper] desired 200*l.* sterling to be given to the two archbishops of Scotland, to be distributed amongst the clergy, according to their necessity, and designs that more should be done afterwards, and they were to send true information of the state of his affairs there by the bearer. It is allowed by Mr. Innes, principal of the Scots' College at Paris, and the L[ord] K[eeper's] greatest adviser in Scotch affairs, that Bishop Pater-son, of Glasgow, gives them daily information from Scotland. It was lately designed, and the French king gave his promise, to send some forces to the Highlands in Scotland, but they have now abandoned it, and design to make considerable diversion, by sending provisions, ammunition, and arms to Ireland, with the following officers who are at St. Germain's, viz., Gen. Major Hamilton, Wauthope, Sutherland, Rutherford, Col. Cunningham, Purcell, two Col. Lutterels and several others.

They disagreed among themselves about their general, especially against Tyrconnel, as having been the main author of the mis-carriage of their affairs in Ireland, and at last Synzuth, a French Lieut.-General, is to command the army in Ireland. Col. Motley is seeking occasion upon the coast, and if that fail, by the packet boat, to go to England, and endeavour to make friends to the L[ord] K[eeper], and after staying 15 days, to ship for Ireland; he says that all his baggage is already shipped at Brest for Ireland.

There are some officers who depended upon the late King, who are now beginning to faint, and want to know if there are not other methods for making their peace in England. The Duke of Gordon sought leave of the L[ord] K[eeper] to retire and live privately, his estate being now taken from him, when he was promised a pension of 400*l.*; about a month since, he sent one Gordon his principal servant, to Scotland, to use his endeavours in the North for the late King's service.

It is the opinion of Sir Wm. Sharpe, Sir Alex. MacLean, and some other Scotch gentlemen at St. Germain's, that the measures which the French king has taken for this ensuing campaign were so rational that he could not, in all human probability, miss his designs, and he desired me to tell it to Sir William's wife in Scotland, or any of their friends, as he intends having about 80,000 men in Flanders, whereof there would be about 12,000 horse, and he is presently levying 10,000, so that they may be exercised against the 1st of July. He adds 40 new ships to his fleet, whereof eight are to be between three and four score guns, and endeavours by all means to have the advantage of being early at sea.

The bearer is returning to France, and expects nothing but the most cruel death if discovered; if not, he will be admitted to their most secret councils, and will report as formerly. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[IMPERIAL 8vo., cloth. Price 15s. each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although “the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world,” and although “they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes.”

Acting upon the recommendations of the Committees of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls :—

The two preceding volumes exhibit the negotiations of the English ambassadors with the courts of the Emperor Charles V. of Germany, of Henry II. of France, and of Philip II. of Spain. The affairs of several of the minor continental states also find various incidental illustrations of much interest.

A valuable series of Papers descriptive of the circumstances which attended the loss of Calais merits a special notice; while the progress of the wars in the north of France, into which England was dragged by her union with Spain, is narrated at some length. The domestic affairs of England are of course passed over in these volumes, which treat only of its relations with foreign powers.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS, DESPATCHES, AND STATE PAPERS, relating to the Negotiations between England and Spain, preserved in the Archives at Simancas, and elsewhere. Edited by G. A. BERGENROTH. 1862-1868

Vol. I.—Hen. VII.—1485-1509.

Vol. II.—Hen. VIII.—1509-1525.

Supplement to Vol. I. and Vol. II.

Mr. Bergenroth was engaged in compiling a Calendar of the Papers relating to England preserved in the archives of Simancas in Spain, and the corresponding portion removed from Simancas to Paris. Mr. Bergenroth also visited Madrid, and examined the Papers there, bearing on the reign of Henry VIII. The first volume contains the Spanish Papers of the reign of Henry VII.; the second volume, those of the first portion of the reign of Henry VIII. The Supplement contains new information relating to the private life of Queen Katharine of England; and to the projected marriage of Henry VII. with Queen Juana, widow of King Philip of Castile, and mother of the Emperor Charles V.

Vol. III., Part 1.—Hen. VIII.—1525-1526.

Upon the death of Mr. Bergenroth, Don Pascual de Gayangos was appointed to continue the Calendar of the Spanish State Papers. He has pursued a similar plan to that of his predecessor, but has been able to add much valuable matter from Brussels and Vienna, with which Mr. Bergenroth was unacquainted.

Vol. V.—1534-1554.

Mr. Rawdon Brown's researches have brought to light a number of valuable documents relating to various periods of English history; his contributions to historical literature are of the most interesting and important character.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo., half-bound. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house; and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom. The work is printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Seint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduuardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines, addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., and probably written in the year 1245, on the occasion of the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author. The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between the years 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. It does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, but is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between the years 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA; scilicet, I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. II.—Adæ de Marisco Epistolæ. III.—Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1858.

This volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It has been the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from being the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. When written, the disputes of the school-men had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries. Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The work gives a good idea of the controversies at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND ; or, A Metrical Version of the History of Hector Boece ; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, and was written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends, and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for in such a work as this ; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true ; and the chronicle is valuable as a reflection of the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed. The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this metrical version, and the student of language will find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three distinct parts, each having its own separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, and extends from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, and extends from the accession of Henry I. in the year 1100, to the year 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of King Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world.

Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for the history of which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS) : Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366 ; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, Esq., B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreae Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of this volume are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859–1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and early part of the fifteenth centuries.

The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the fourteenth century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the twelfth, thirteenth, and early part of the fourteenth centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in the year 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to the year 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, which are not to be elsewhere obtained, and some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another. The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable value to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—never before printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon: also a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologiae."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449-1298: necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSGOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399-1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events. The period requires much elucidation; to which it will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and against their general doctrines the "Repressor" is directed. Pecock took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecock, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in the year 447, and come down to the year 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, which was also used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. Davids, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V. and VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1861-1873.

These volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use. Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in the year 1183, the second in 1185-6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about the year 1188 and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history.

Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Kambriæ et Descriptio Kambriæ.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

The letters and papers contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Dépôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the line of policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and such other provinces of France as had been acquired by Henry V. We may here trace, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared to read of its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to the year 1154, is justly the boast of England; for no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, either in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In this edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from these documents is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066-1200. Vol. III.; 1200-1327. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862-1871.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages; the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which the original portions are distinguished from those which are mere compilations. When possible, the sources are indicated from which such compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice has also been given of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of them, especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272-1381: Vol. II., 1381-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. JOHANNIS DE TROKELowe ET HENRICI DE BLANEFORDE CHRONICA. ET ANNALES, 1259-1296; 1307-1324; 1392-1406. 4. GESTA ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, A THOMA WALSINGHAM, REGNANTE RICARDO SECUNDO, EJUSDEM ECCLESIE PRÆCENTORE, COMPILATA; Vol. I., 793-1290: Vol. II., 1290-1349: Vol. III., 1349-1411. 5. JOHANNIS AMUNDESHAM, MONACHI MONASTERII S. ALBANI, UT VIDETUR, ANNALES; Vols. I. and II. 6. REGISTRA QUORUNDAM ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, QUI SÆCULO XV^{mo} FLORUERE; Vol. I., REGISTRUM ABBATIS JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, ABBATIS MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, ITERUM SUSCEPTÆ; ROBERTO BLAKENEY, CAPELLANO, QUONDAM ASCRIPTUM: Vol. II., REGISTRA JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, WILLELMI ALBON, ET WILLELMI WALINGFORDE, ABBATUM MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, CUM APPENDICE, CONTINENTE QUASDAM EPISTOLAS, A JOHANNES WHETHAMSTEDE CONSCRIPTAS. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Cambridge and Oxford; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1873.

In the first two volumes is a history of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., written by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of St. Albans and prior of the cell of Wymundham, belonging to that abbey. It is printed from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the third volume is a Chronicle of English History, attributed to William Rishanger, monk of Saint Albans, who lived in the reign of Edward. printed from the Cottonian Manuscript, Faustina B. IX. (of the fourteenth century) in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219-231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cottonian Manuscript, Claudius E. III., fols. 306-331: Also an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol by Edward I., 1291-1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., attributed to William Rishanger above mentioned, but on no sufficient ground: A short Chronicle of English History, from 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton Claudius D. VI.: A short Chronicle from 1297 to 1307, Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with an addition of Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: A fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1299, 1300, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A fragment of a Chronicle of English History. 1295 to 1300, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: and a fragment of a Chronicle of English History, 1285 to 1307, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library.

In the fourth volume is a Chronicle of English History, by an anonymous writer, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Annals of Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe a monk of St. Albans, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henricus de Blanford, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: A full Chronicle of English History, by an anonymous writer of St. Albans, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and an account of the benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the fifteenth century, from MS. VI. in the same Library.

The fifth, sixth, and seventh volumes contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, and of the fortunes and vicissitudes of the house, from 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of the Abbey in the reign of Richard II.; from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum; with a Continuation, from the closing pages of the Parker MS. No. VII., in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The eighth and ninth volumes, in continuation of the Annals, contain a Chronicle, probably written by John Amundesham, a monk of St. Albans.

The tenth and eleventh volumes relate especially to the acts and proceedings of Abbots Whethamstede, Albon, and Wallingford, and may be considered as a memorial of the chief historical and domestic events occurring during those periods.

29. CHRONICON ABBATIE EVESHAMENSIS; AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMÆ ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, M.A., Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Vol. II., 872-1066. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863-1869.

The compiler, Richard of Cirencester, was a monk of Westminster, 1355-1400. In 1391 he obtained a licence to make a pilgrimage to Rome. His history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. He announces his intention of continuing it, but there is no evidence that he completed any more. This chronicle gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book iii. c. 3. It was on this author that C. J. Bertram fathered his forgery, De Situ Britannia, in 1747.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 21-22, 30-31, and 32-33. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1873.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and have been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and were received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of the attention of the general reader on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY, 1449-1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniæ: Le Recouvrement de Normandie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in the year 1450. The history commences with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ends with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The whole period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRIE. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester. The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century. In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities." Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century. The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre; and though there are many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole, above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1864-1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the times, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066–1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066–1263; Annales de Burton, 1004–1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519–1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1–1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1–1297; Annales Monasterii de Bermundeseia, 1042–1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016–1347; Chronicon vulgo dictum Chronicon Thomæ Wykes, 1066–1289; Annales Prioratus de Wigornia, 1–1377. Vol. V.:—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864–1869.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and, being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs. The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities was admitted to the closest intimacy. Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399-1422. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864-1868.

40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAVRIN. Albina to 688. (Translation of the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471, after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. Vols. III., IV., and V. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH RAWSON LUMBY, M.A., late Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge. 1865-1874.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation, and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion, is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land. To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engleterre." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French.

It is supposed that Peter of Ickham must have been the author, but no certain conclusion on that point has been arrived at.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA, AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of the Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067–1253. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1866–1869.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris) giving fuller details, which has been called the "Historia Major." The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455–1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources, which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements, which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, from the EARLIEST TIMES to 1135; with a SUPPLEMENT, containing the Events from 1141 to 1150. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are, the invasions of foreigners, and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866–1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and that he lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum," in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III. and in the third a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars. The language is singularly corrupt, and a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, or, THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University. Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not himself an eye-witness, must have derived his information from those who were eye-witnesses. The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192; known under the name of BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTEY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

This work will supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOUEDENE. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868-1871.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr. Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase; occasionally the two works entirely agree; showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work: it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

52. WILLELMI MALMESBIRIENSIS MONACHI DE GESTIS PONTIFICUM ANGLORUM LIBRI QUINQUE. Edited, from William of Malmesbury's Autograph MS., by N. E. S. A. HAMILTON, Esq., of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1870.

William of Malmesbury's "Gesta Pontificum" is the principal foundation of English Ecclesiastical Biography, down to the year 1122. The manuscript which has been followed in this Edition is supposed by Mr. Hamilton to be the author's autograph, containing his latest additions and amendments.

53. HISTORIC AND MUNICIPAL DOCUMENTS OF IRELAND, FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN, &c. 1172-1320. Edited by JOHN T. GILBERT, Esq., F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland. 1870.

A collection of original documents, elucidating mainly the history and condition of the municipal, middle, and trading classes under or in relation with the rule of England in Ireland,—a subject hitherto in almost total obscurity. Extending over the first hundred and fifty years of the Anglo-Norman settlement, the series includes charters, municipal laws and regulations, rolls of names of citizens and members of merchant-guilds, lists of commodities with their rates, correspondence, illustrations of relations between ecclesiastics and laity; together with many documents exhibiting the state of Ireland during the presence there of the Scots under Robert and Edward Bruce.

54. THE ANNALS OF LOCH CÉ. A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM 1014 to 1590. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1871.

The original of this chronicle has passed under various names. The title of "Annals of Loch Cé" was given to it by Professor O'Curry, on the ground that it was transcribed for Brian Mac Dermot, an Irish chieftain, who resided on an island in Loch Cé, in the county of Roscommon. It adds much to the materials for the civil and ecclesiastical history of Ireland; and contains many curious references to English and foreign affairs, not noticed in any other chronicle.

55. MONUMENTA JURIDICA. THE BLACK BOOK OF THE ADMIRALTY, WITH APPENDICES. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1871-1874.

This book contains the ancient ordinances and laws relating to the navy, and was probably compiled for the use of the Lord High Admiral of England. Selden calls it the "jewel of the Admiralty Records." Prymne ascribes to the Black Book the same authority in the Admiralty as the Black and Red Books have in the Court of Exchequer, and most English writers on maritime law recognize its importance.

56. MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VI.:—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THOMAS BEKYNTON, SECRETARY TO HENRY VI., AND BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS. Edited, from a MS. in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth, with an Appendix of Illustrative Documents, by the Rev. GEORGE WILLIAMS, B.D., Vicar of Ringwood, late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Vols. I. and II. 1872.

These curious volumes, which are of a very miscellaneous character, were, in all probability, compiled under the immediate direction of Bekynton, and commenced before he had attained to the dignity of the Episcopate. They contain many of the Bishop's own letters, and several written by him in the King's name. Besides these, there are letters sent to himself while he was the Royal Secretary, as well as others addressed to the King. This work will elucidate some obscure points in the history of the nation during the first half of the fifteenth century.

57. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS, MONACHI SANCTI ALBANI, CHRONICA MAJORA. Vol. I. The Creation to A.D. 1066. Vol. II. A.D. 1067 to A.D. 1216. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow of Trinity College, Registry of the University, and Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. 1872-1874.

This work contains the "Chronica Majora" of Matthew Paris, one of the most valuable and frequently consulted of all the ancient English Chronicles. It is now published from its commencement, for the first time. The editions by Archbishop Parker, and William Wats, severally begin at the Norman Conquest.

58. MEMORIALE FRATRIS WALTERI DE COVENTRIA.—THE HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF WALTER OF COVENTRY. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the MS. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1872-1873.

This work, now printed in full for the first time, has long been a desideratum by Historical Scholars. The first portion, however, is not of much importance, being only a compilation from earlier writers. The part relating to the first quarter of the thirteenth century is the most valuable and interesting.

59. THE ANGLO-LATIN SATIRICAL POETS AND EPIGRAMMATISTS OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY. Vols. I. and II. Now first collected and edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A., Corresponding Member of the National Institute of France (Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres). 1872.

The Poems contained in these volumes have long been known and appreciated as the best satires of the age in which their authors flourished, and were deservedly popular during the 13th and 14th centuries.

60. MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VII., FROM ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vol. I. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, M.A., one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. 1873.

This volume is valuable as illustrating the acts and proceedings of Henry VII. on ascending the throne, and shadows out the policy he afterwards adopted.

61. HISTORICAL PAPERS AND LETTERS FROM THE NORTHERN REGISTERS. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1873.

The documents in this volume illustrate, for the most part, the general history of the north of England, particularly in its relation to Scotland.

WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086 ; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., Director. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863) boards. Price 4s. 6d. to 1*l.* 1s. each Part, according to size ; or, bound in 2 Vols., 1*l.*

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each accord ing to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place ; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor ; the present possessor ; how many hides were in the manor ; how many ploughs were in demesne ; how many homagers ; how many villeins ; how many cottars ; how many serving men ; how many free tenants ; how many tenants in soccage ; how much wood, meadow, and pasture ; the number of mills and fish-ponds ; what had been added or taken away from the place ; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor ; the present value ; and how much each free-man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward ; who then held it ; its value in the time of the late king ; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, " it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

*For some reason left unexplained, many parts were left unsurveyed ; Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Durham, are not described in the survey ; nor does Lancashire appear under its proper name ; but Furness, and the northern part of Lancashire, as well as the south of Westmoreland, with a part of Cumberland, are included within the West Riding of Yorkshire. That part of Lancashire which lies between the Ribble and Mersey, and which at the time of the survey comprehended 688 manors, is joined to Cheshire. Part of Rutland is described in the counties of Northampton and Lincoln.

FAC-SIMILES OF NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey. Price, each Part, with translations and notes, double foolscap folio, 16s.

Part I. (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.). 1865.

Part II. (Henry VIII. and Edward VI.). 1866.

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth). 1867.

Part IV. (James I. to Anne). 1868.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey. The fourth Part concludes the series, and comprises a number of documents taken from the originals belonging to the Constable of the Tower of London; also several records illustrative of the Gunpowder Plot, and a woodcut containing portraits of Mary Queen of Scots and James VI., circulated by their adherents in England, 1580-3.
